introduction

Welcome to this brand new edition of Teach Yourself Indonesian. This fresh approach to learning the language is based on dialogues in the conversational Indonesian of the capital, Jakarta.

We developed this course with three considerations in mind. Our main goal was to produce a course that would give the reader an introduction to real, everyday Indonesian, even when this meant omitting certain archaic forms and other forms that are falling into disuse. This is a somewhat bold approach, as we have opted, at every step of the way, to teach you the language that is actually used in Indonesia today. We began with the premise that you want to learn to speak and understand the language as it is really used, rather than the textbook-style Indonesian that you might find elsewhere.

Second, we have endeavoured to make the language as easy to learn as possible by focusing on the vocabulary and structure that you will really need. Specific terminology has only been included where absolutely necessary. Indonesian is rare among foreign languages in that it is a lot less complicated than others you might have learnt, so why complicate matters?

Third, we have chosen to concentrate on language that is functional and, above all, useful. To achieve the goal of presenting authentic situational language, we have built the course around a series of dialogues that reflect the way Indonesians speak and use language naturally.

By the end of the course you will be able to function with confidence in Indonesian on a variety of topics and situations, and, most of all, you will understand and be understood.

Although the scope of a course such as this is necessarily limited, it does provide a good grounding in the language that you can use as a base for more advanced study. In the last unit, several suggestions are given to help you develop your skills further.

Structure of the course

Each unit (apart from Unit 1), contains two dialogues based around situations that you will most likely find yourself in either travelling or on business in Indonesia. The first dialogue in each unit deals with the language you will require for handling certain situations such as booking a hotel room or talking about your family. The Part One dialogue is centred around Ken Knight, a businessman from New Zealand with an Indonesian wife and a son and daughter who arrive later. The Part Two dialogue carries on the theme of the unit, consolidating what you already know and building on the knowledge gained in Part One, often taking similar situations and adding the sorts of complication you are more likely to need to deal with in real life. In Part Two we meet Mark Spencer, a student from Leeds who has flown to Indonesia to meet his e-pal, Reza, for the first time.

The two sets of characters carry out a further function in the course: the language in Part One tends to be rather formal, which is the sort of language you will be using if you are on business or if you want to carry out tasks such as booking hotel rooms and asking for information. The interactions between the characters in Part Two mean that we can introduce you to the more informal, chatty language you are likely to want to use among friends. That is not to say that it is slang. It is very good, natural, conversational Indonesian.

Part Two of Unit 17 is intended as a brief introduction to Indonesian street language, i.e. slang.

Each unit is split into two. Part One begins with a dialogue followed by vocabulary and a natural translation of the dialogue. Following this, there is a section of language notes called How the language works 1. This section introduces you to various important features of language structure and usage. Many of these sections include some exercises so that you can practise the specific point that section of the language notes refers to. Part One ends with an exercise section that focuses on the receptive skills of reading and listening and includes exercises that ask you to put what you have learnt in Part One to the test.

Part Two follows the same format: dialogue, translation, vocabulary and How the language works 2. However, the final exercise section concentrates on the so-called production skills, that is, writing and speaking, and features mainly communicative exercises that are designed to develop your functional ability in the topic area of each unit. This section requires you to look at both parts of the unit to complete the exercises. The final exercise in this section simulates a situational conversation that you will be able to take part in if you have the recording or another speaker to practise with. In this exercise, you should complete the part indicated in English and then check your answer in the key before using the recording for fluency practice. There may be more than one way of conveying the information in each of the utterances for you to take part in, but we have chosen just one version that either uses language structures and vocabulary you have encountered in the unit or indicates in full a new form to be used.

Learning a language is not just about the words you use, but the way you react and respond to people and situations and even your body language. It is essential that you are aware of possible problems that may arise from a lack of knowledge about a foreign culture. Each unit also introduces you to certain areas of Indonesian culture and behaviour that you need to be aware of to function effectively; background information on topics of interest, travel information and even the occasional language tip!

How to use the course

Start with the pronunciation guide and work through it until you are sure that you are familiar with it. Some letters represent values in Indonesian different from what you might expect in English, so you need to be sure that you are not embarking on the course with bad habits that may go unchecked and that will be very difficult to eradicate later. If, however, you have the recording, you can move on to the language units after only a brief run through the pronunciation guide as you will be hearing correct pronunciation of the dialogues from the outset.

As not all people like to learn in the same way, we suggest two equally effective methods of approaching a unit:

- 1 Listen to (or read) the dialogue first without concerning yourself with the meaning. This is likely to be the first time that you are being exposed to the language taught in a particular unit, so you should concentrate on the sounds of the words and intonation rather than meaning at this early stage.

- 2 Alternatively, if you are the type of person who prefers to know what the dialogue means as you listen to it, you could go straight to the vocabulary sections before you even look at the dialogue and learn the words and phrases first. Then you can see how the words and phrases fit into the dialogue to create interaction and meaning.

Listen to the dialogue again several times so that you understand what is going on. You should be starting to get a feel for the language with this repeated listening.

Then move on to the How the language works section and study the language notes one by one. If there is an exercise, complete it and check your understanding by referring to the key before moving on.

It is a good idea to listen to the dialogue again several times, now that you know how the language points covered in the language section relate to the meaning in the text. It is recommended that you start to use the recording to repeat the dialogue at this stage, in order to build speaking skills. When you have finished the unit, you should go over it again and practise speaking the parts in the dialogues as much as possible. For best results make sure you have fully understood and mastered all the points in the language sections, and that you can speak all the parts of the dialogues as quickly as the native speakers on the recording, if not faster!

Throughout each unit, we have added more vocabulary for you to acquire in the various exercises and activities. In addition, in some units we have also varied the range of language expression on a certain topic to help you broaden your language ability. For example, in some exercises, you are expected to use what you have learnt in the unit to construct a conversation that might be on the same theme as the unit topic, but might require you to adapt the language to a different context. On occasion we have introduced a new way of saying a phrase that you already know.

The first six units give you the basic sentence patterns and lay the foundation for the language so it is recommended that you master these fully before moving on in the course. If you can, work through these units again to reinforce your learning.

Learning tips

Dos

- Give yourself time for what you have studied to become part of your repertoire. A language is not a series of facts, it is a skill and a habit that needs to be learnt. Practice makes it a habit.
- Play the recording as much as possible. This could be while you are exercising, doing the washing up, driving to work and even at a low volume while you sleep! Do not make the mistake of thinking that passive listening alone will do the work for you. It will not. It will, however, create an environment which will allow your mind to become fully attuned to your new target language, in the same way it would if you were living in the country.
- When you listen to the dialogues after you understand the meaning, listen again several times with your eyes closed and try to imagine the ‘action’ that might accompany the conversation as you listen.
- Learn the dialogues by heart, to the extent that you know exactly what is coming next and so that you can respond in place of either speaker when you play the dialogue.
- Master each unit in its entirety before moving on and keep revising it so that the language stays fresh in your mind. For each new unit you progress onto, it is a good idea to go back two or three units and revise it fully too.
- If something does not make immediate sense come back to it a day later. Remember that, when you are learning a language, you are exposing your mind to a new way to relate to concepts and ideas. It can take a little time for your brain to begin to accept this, but you can be sure that it will if you persevere.
- Study or practise the language every day. If you cannot find time for active learning of new language try and spend time playing the recording or going over language that you have already studied.
- Go over what you have learnt during the day just before sleeping.
- Become as interested in the country and culture of Indonesia as you possibly can. Find as many reasons as possible why learning Indonesian is important and enjoyable to you!

Don'ts

- Do not try to learn too much at once, especially in the early stages. Language learning, and learning in general, becomes a habit that you can develop. The more you learn, the more you are capable of learning, so allow yourself to develop the art of acquiring a language over time.
- Do not underestimate the value of revision. Learning a language is a cumulative task. You will find that, as you cover later units, when you return to a unit that you completed earlier, you have a deeper sense of knowing and understanding as more parts of the language already learnt as phrases fall into place.
- Do not be disheartened if results do not appear immediately. When you have finished a unit, do not be irritated if you do not have that information at your fingertips straightaway. You will find that as you progress through the language, things that you have learnt before start to become available to you and make more sense! Allow time for the new information to ‘gel’ in your mind and become part of your linguistic repertoire.
- Do not feel that you have to start speaking the language straightaway, if you do not want to. Some language courses emphasize speaking and using the language from the very outset. It is up to you, of course, whether you do this. An effective strategy is to spend time learning to understand the language in the unit without speaking and then go over the unit or even a few units afterwards. If you have the time to do this, you may find it beneficial, as you are mimicking what you did when you learnt your first language. You spent months listening to the language around you before you ever started to speak it! The process of understanding and then using is built into the course to a certain extent.
- Above all, do not cram learn! Cram learning the night before an exam in which you have to produce factual information may result in your being able to retain facts in your short term memory long enough to pass, but if you have tried it, you will know that in a matter of days most of the information is lost. Language learning is a skill that needs to be developed over time. Do not try to rush through the course, for the same reason.

We hope that you will enjoy working through this course and enjoying the interaction with Indonesians that learning this wonderful language will give you! Selamat belajar!

You will be happy to know that Indonesian pronunciation is very regular. With one or two exceptions what you see is what you say.

The guide we give here will help you to pronounce Indonesian in an acceptable way. It must be stressed, however, that all a written explanation of these sounds can provide is an approximation of the real sounds. There is simply no substitute for hearing foreign sounds produced by native speakers so if you do not have access to a native Indonesian, then you would benefit greatly from hearing real Indonesian sounds from the recording that accompanies this book.

Modern Indonesian spelling is much more regular than English spelling. With very few exceptions, separate letters or certain combinations always have the same pronunciation. As far as possible, we have deliberately chosen useful, high-frequency words to illustrate the pronunciation of the sound within the word.

■ Vowel sounds

All vowel sounds are short:

a tiga three like a in far e has two distinct sounds, one is pronounced like the a sound in again. This is, by far, the more common e sound in Indonesian.

e empat four terus immediately

The other is pronounced like the e in egg. In texts produced for native speakers this é is not distinguished from the other e sound. This can make it difficult for a beginner to know where these é sounds are. It is surprising that most textbooks and dictionaries, even those intended for foreign learners of the language, do not point this out, especially as it occurs in some very common words!

é meréka they

énak delicious

Throughout this course an acute accent has been used to indicate this second sound. Note, however, that it is only used as a guide for learners of Indonesian as a foreign language so you should never use it in your own writing. Note further that this accent does not mark stress in a word, as it does in some languages.

i lima five

o tolong please u satu one aa saat moment

like the i in Capri like o in hot but with lips more rounded like the oo sound in cool but short pronounced as two separate a sounds rather like the two a sounds in the phrase sa(t) at with the t missing! If you are British, imagine how a Cockney might say this.

ai sampai until au haus thirsty

like ie in tie

like the ou in house

■ Consonant sounds

The following consonants are pronounced as in English:

b baru new d dua two

f foto photo

g gigi teeth

h habis finish

j rajin diligent k keras hard

l delapan eight m sembilan nine n enam six p sepuluh ten s siapa? who?

t tempat place

v végétarian vegetarian

w warna colour

y ya yes z zébra zebra always as a hard g as in got

These consonants are pronounced differently from English:

c cari look for h sekolah school

tujuh seven k tidak no r tidur to sleep

kh khusus special ng senang happy like ch in chop at the end of a word, it is pronounced as a puff of air at the end of a word, it is not pronounced

r is always rolled like the ch in the Scottish word loch like the ng in long but not pronounced as far as the final g sound. It can occur at the beginning of words and is still required to be pronounced as indicated above

bangun to wake up ny kenyang full (of food) like the ne sound in the word new ngg menggosok to brush like the ng in long but this time as the full sound sy isyarat sign asyik fantastic!

like the sh in shin

We have included a translation, just for information, but do not worry about trying to make sense of them at this early stage. They are just for pronunciation practice.

Satu, dua, tiga, empat, lima, enam, tujuh, delapan.

Siapa rajin ke sekolah.

Cari ilmu sampai dapat.

Sungguh senang.

Amat senang.

Bangun pagi-pagi sungguh senang.

Bangun tidur ku terus mandi.

Tidak lupa menggosok gigi.

Habis mandi ku tolong ibu.

Membersihkan tempat tidur ku.

One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight,
Who is keen to go to school.

To look for knowledge until he gets Really happy

Very happy

I get up early in the morning really happy.

Having got up I take a bath straightaway

I don't forget to brush my teeth

After taking a bath I help mother

To make my bed.

► Stress

Although stress may differ depending on where you are in Indonesia, as an English speaker, you will probably find it more natural to follow the pattern of stressing words on the penultimate syllable.

membersihkan

In 1972 Indonesian underwent spelling reforms that gave us the written language as it looks today. In some cases, such as place names, the old spelling has endured. For example, Java is sometimes written as Jawa although this does not affect the pronunciation. Where such discrepancies occur within the course, they are pointed out and the correct pronunciation is indicated.

► Pronunciation practice!

If possible, listen to these two Indonesian children's nursery rhymes and repeat after the native speakers. Repeat them until you can say (or sing!) them fluently and without hesitation.

Exercise 1

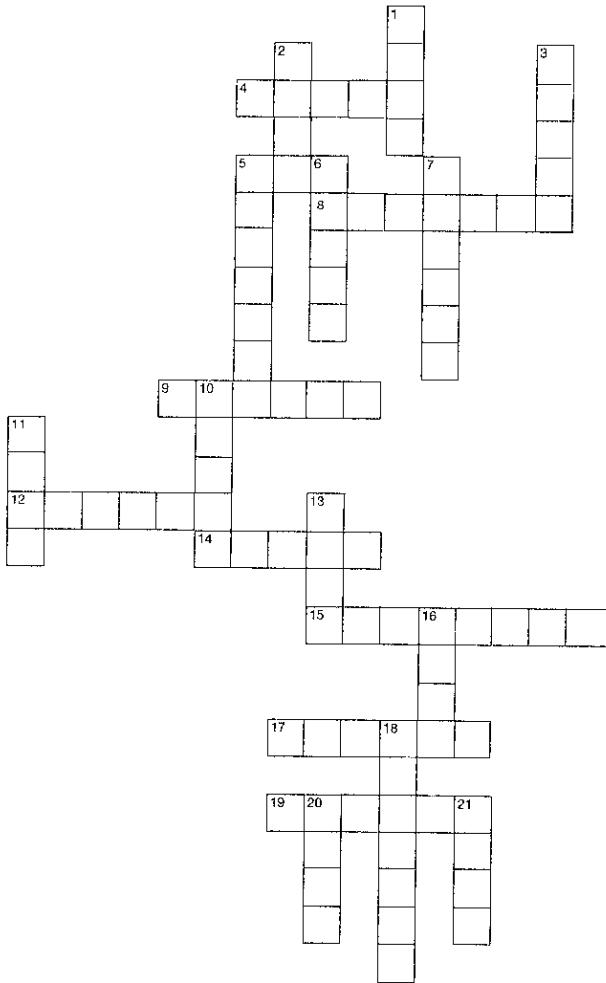

Although you will meet all these words in the course, any words that you can learn now will give you a head start! Look at the clues and fill in the crossword, saying each word out loud as you write it in.

PART ONEDialogue

Selamat siang!
Nama saya Ken Knight.
Saya berasal dari Selandia Baru.

Selamat siang!
Nama saya Jamilah Knight.
Saya berasal dari Indonesia.

Selamat siang!
Saya Mark.
Saya dari Inggeris.

Selamat siang!
Saya Reza.
Saya dari Indonesia.

saya	I am
nama	name
dari	from
Inggeris	England
Selandia Baru	New Zealand
Selamat pagi!	Good morning!
Selamat siang!	Good afternoon!/Good day!
Selamat soré!	Good afternoon!
Selamat malam!	Good evening!
nama saya	my name is
Saya berasal dari	I am from

How the language works 1

- Unlike English, there is no multipurpose word like Hello! in Indonesian. Instead the greetings for the specific time of the day are used: Selamat pagi in the morning, selamat siang which would correspond to good day in older style English, selamat soré which is used between 2 and 6 p.m., and selamat malam which is used throughout the evening and night.
- You do not need to use words for am, are, is in Indonesian. So saya can mean both I and I am. Compare the following sentences in English and Indonesian:

I am Reza.
Saya Reza.

I am from England.
Saya dari Inggeris.

Exercise 1 See if you can make these sentences.

- a I am John. I am from America.
 b I am Kylie. I am from Australia.
 c I am Suzie. I am from Canada.
- 3 To give your name in Indonesian you can use nama saya + your name or you can just use saya ..., I am ... Saya is far more natural and, consequently, more frequently used, especially in the spoken language, than nama saya. We do the same in English. Consider how much likely you are to say I am John, for example, than My name is John.

The same thing applies to saya dari... and saya berasal dari... when you want to say where you are from. The latter form is considered to be more formal and less natural than saya dari... In writing, however, it would be better style to use saya berasal dari...

Understanding IndonesianExercise 2 First familiarize yourself with the new vocabulary.

mahasiswa

pelancong

penari Bali

pengusaha	businessman mahasiswa	student (at college or university) pelancong	tourist
penari Bali	Balinese dancer

If you are not using the recording turn to the transcript on page 264 and treat this as a reading exercise. You will hear these people introduce themselves in the order indicated by the number next to their names. Listen to what each person says and link the person's name, the part of Indonesia he/she is from and, finally, the other piece of information about that person.

Muhammad (1)

Sutrisno (2)

Tuti (3)

Endang (4)

mahasiswa

pelancong

penari Bali

Exercise 3 True or false?

When you have completed the listening exercise try the following true/false test.

- a Muhammad is a student from Sumatra.
- b Endang is a student from Java.
- c Tuti is a dancer from Bali.
- d Sutrisno is a tourist from Bali.

PART TWODialogue

Mr Knight, a businessman from New Zealand, has arrived at Soekarno International Airport in Jakarta. He has come to Jakarta on business. His Indonesian wife, Jamilah, will be joining him later. Two men from the CITRA company have come to meet him.

Bapak Anton	Maaf! Apakah anda Bapak Knight?
Bapak Knight	Ya, betul.
Bapak Anton	Selamat datang di Jakarta. Kami dari perusahaan CITRA. Kenalkan, saya Anton dan ini Bapak Bambang.
(They shake hands.)
Bapak Bambang	Senang berkenalan dengan anda.
Bapak Knight	Senang berkenalan dengan anda juga.

maaf!	excuse me, I am sorry
apakah anda?	are you?
bapak	Mr
ya	yes
betul	that's correct
selamat datang	welcome
di	in selamat datang di	welcome to kami	we dari	from perusahaan	company
Kenalkan, saya	Allow me to introduce myself. I'm...
dan	and

ini	this/this is senang	happy
dengan	with
Senang berkenalan dengan	anda.
	juga
Senang berkenalan dengan	anda juga.
	Pleased to meet you too.

Translation

Mr Anton	Excuse me! Are you Mr Knight?
Mr Knight	Yes, that's correct.
Mr Anton	Welcome to Jakarta. We are from the CITRA company. Pleased to meet you. I'm Anton and this is Mr Bambang.
Mr Bambang	Pleased to meet you.
Mr Knight	Pleased to meet you too.

How the language works 2

1 To introduce yourself to someone in Indonesian use Kenalkan, saya + your name. (Note: Kenalkan, saya ... is the common colloquial variant of the expression. In hyper-correct Indonesian it would be perkenalkan saya ...)

When you pronounce this expression, note that there is a pause between kenalkan and saya. Listen for this on the recording if you have it.

Senang berkenalan dengan Pleased to meet you.
anda.

Senang berkenalan dengan Pleased to meet you too.
anda juga.

Learn all these expressions as set phrases.

To introduce someone else, simply use the word ini which means this (is)....:

2 When you welcome someone to a place in Indonesian you say welcome in rather than to as in English. For example, Selamat datang di Bandung, Welcome to Bandung.

Exercise 4

How would you welcome someone to the following places in Indonesian?

- a Sydney
- b Washington
- c London
- d your home town.

3 In this unit you have come across the words saya, I, anda, you and dia, he/she. Words such as these that can be used instead of repeating a person's name are known as personal pronouns. Here are the formal personal pronouns in Indonesian:

saya	I
anda	you saudara	you
dia	he/she
kami/kita	we
meréka	they

They are called formal personal pronouns because you should use them in a situation where you are not familiar with the speaker or where you would be expected to maintain a respectful tone to whomever you are addressing.

There are two words for you and two words for we. Saudara and anda can be used interchangeably. The words for we, however, have specific meanings and usage depending on the situation. Kita is used when you are including the person or people you are speaking to in what you say. Kami is used when you mean us but not you. For instance, imagine you are at a party with your spouse. When it comes time for you both to leave you announce your departure by saying We must be leaving now. You would use kami in Indonesian. If you used kita it would mean that you expect everybody else to leave with you! Obviously, it would not be taken literally. It is just an illustration, but it is worth bearing in mind the distinction when you are speaking Indonesian as you may unintentionally find yourself altering the meaning of what you want to say otherwise.

4 In Part One, you saw that you do not need to use words for am/are/is in Indonesian. You may also have noticed that you do not need to use a word for a (an) or the either. You just say I from England or I businessman, etc. Compare these English and Indonesian sentences:

I am a businessman.

Saya pengusaha.

This is a book.

Ini buku.

In a sentence such as That is tobacco, where there would be no a in English anyway, the pattern is the same:

That is tobacco.

Itu tembakau.

Exercise 5

Put these sentences into Indonesian.

- a This is a dictionary.
- b He is a businessman.
- c That is coffee.
- d This is a shop.
- e She is a teacher.
- f This is water.

buku	book	toko	shop
tembakau	tobacco	guru	teacher
kamus	dictionary	air	water
kopi	coffee	nasi	rice

5 There are two types of question – ones that require an explanation and ones that simply require the answer yes or no. One way to form a yes/no question in Indonesian is by using apakah. In English, we change the word order, for example to turn the statement This is a book into a question we say Is this a book? To form the question in Indonesian simply take the statement and add apakah to the beginning:

Ini buku.

Apakah ini buku?

This is a book.

Is this a book?

Similarly:

Anda pengusaha.

Apakah anda pengusaha?

You are a businessman.

Are you a businessman?

Itu nasi.

Apakah itu nasi?

That is rice.

Is that rice?

Notice that the punctuation rules (capital letter at the beginning of the sentence and question mark at the end) apply in Indonesian too. Also, as in English, you should use a rising intonation at the end of the question.

Exercise 6 See if you can form apakah-type questions using the statement you made in Indonesian in Exercise 5. For example:

a (This is a dictionary.) Ini kamus. Apakah ini kamus?

Using Indonesian

Exercise 7 Look at the dialogue between two people. Can you unscramble it so that it makes sense? Then translate it.

Ya betul.

Senang berkenalan dengan anda juga.

Selamat datang di Inggeris. Kenalkan saya Robert Davies.

Maaf... Apakah anda Bapak Pranoto dari Indonesia?

Ya betul. Senang berkenalan dengan anda.

Apakah anda dari perusahaan BRITIMPORT?

Exercise 8

Over to you!

Imagine that you (A) are from a company called ANGLOTRANS. As the only Indonesian speaker at your firm you have been sent to the airport to meet an Indonesian lady (B) called Mrs Nasution (Ibu Nasution). You see a lady waiting who might just be Mrs Nasution. Write out the dialogue replacing the English in brackets with suitable Indonesian phrases you have learnt in this unit.

A Excuse me. Are you Mrs Nasution?

B Ya betul.

A I'm from the ANGLOTRANS company. I'm (your name).

B Senang berkenalan dengan anda.

A I'm pleased to meet you too.

iShaking hands

Young Indonesians and those who are used to contact with foreigners will probably greet you with a western-style handshake and a slight forward bow.

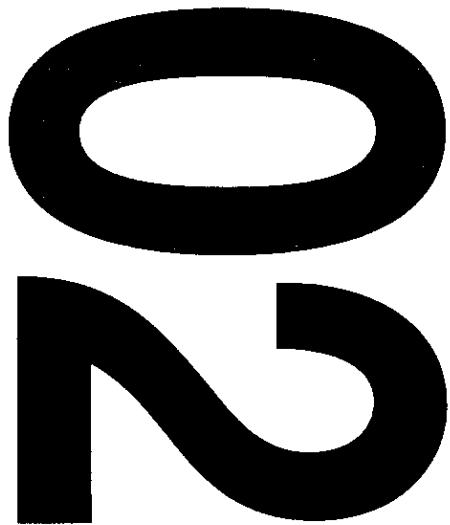

Out of respect, young Indonesians may kiss the hand of their older relatives.

In certain areas, you may encounter a traditional Indonesian style handshake. The hands are clasped together as though in prayer and held, fingers pointing upwards, just above the nose. The hands are brought down until they are horizontal and at a level between the chest and the waist. The fingers of the hands only interlock with the other person's in a sort of clasping motion, but with the fingers still held straight and together and then the hands are withdrawn to the starting position, above the nose.

This is the Javanese way. The Sundanese start the handshake with the hands in the lower position and then bring them up to the nose. This has given rise to a certain amount of humour among Indonesians. They say that a Javanese and a Sundanese can never shake hands as their hands will never meet!

PART ONE

Dialogue

Having met at the airport, Ken, Bambang and Anton continue their conversation.

- | | |
|----------------|--|
| Bambang | Mobil kami sudah menunggu di luar. |
| Anton | Apakah ini kopor-kopor anda? Mari saya bantu. |
| Bambang | Anda berbicara bahasa Indonesia dengan baik sekali. |
| Ken | Terima kasih. Saya coba tetapi saya hanya berbicara sedikit. |
| Bambang | Tidak apa-apa. Sedikit-sedikit, lama-lama menjadi bukit. |

mobil	car
sudah	already menunggu	waits, to wait
di luar	outside
kopor-kopor	luggage
mari	let, allow bantu	help, to help
mari saya bantu	let me help
berbicara	speak, to speak
bahasa Indonesia	Indonesian (language)
baik	well, good sekali	very dengan baik sekali	very well terima kasih	thank you coba	try, to try tetapi	but hanya	only sedikit	a little
tidak apa-apa	that's all right/no problem

Indonesian proverb: Sedikit-sedikit lama-lama menjadi bukit.
Take it one step at a time.

Translation

- | | |
|----------------|---|
| Bambang | Our car is already waiting outside. |
| Anton | Is this your luggage? Let me help you. |
| Bambang | You speak Indonesian very well. |
| Ken | Thank you. I try, but I only speak a little. |
| Bambang | That's all right. Take it one step at a time. |

- In this unit you will learn how to
- use less formal yes/no questions
 - show possession

How the language works 1

1 To express thanks in Indonesian use the phrase terima kasih. Adding banyak which means many or much gives you terima kasih banyak, thank you very much.

To respond with don't mention it, use terima kasih kembali (often shortened to just kembali) or sama-sama.

2 Mobil kami, our car, kopor-kopor anda, your luggage. The same words that are used for the personal pronouns are also used to show ownership or possession. Take careful note of the position. When they are used to show possession, they are placed after the noun they refer to. It is important to be aware that, as these words are the same, meaning depends exclusively on position. When they are placed before the noun they refer to, they have a different meaning, as was discussed in Unit 1.

Study the following:

guru anda	your teacher
teman saya	my friend
buku dia	his book or her book

Exercise 1 How would you say:

- a her photo
- b their present
- c my watch
- d our picture?

foto	photo	jam tangan	watch
hadiyah	present	gambar	picture

The kita/kami distinction applies here too. Bambang uses mobil kami in the dialogue because in Indonesian he is obliged to convey the idea that the car that is waiting is from the company he and Anton work for and not the one Ken works for.

3 Mari means let or allow. It is used to form expressions like Mari saya bantu, Let me help, or, more commonly with kita in making an invitation Mari kita pergi Let's go! (i.e. Let us go.)

Exercise 2 Can you write these sentences?

- a Let's speak Indonesian!
- b Let's go to Bandung!
- c Let's wait outside!

4 Verbs are often described as the action words of a language, such as run, speak, take and try, although they do not necessarily have to indicate action to be verbs. Be and have are also verbs.

In English, verbs change their form to indicate tense (i.e. whether they refer to the present, past or future) and sometimes to indicate the person who is performing the action. For example, we say I speak and they speak but he speaks and she speaks. In Indonesian, the same form of the verb is used no matter which tense or person is being expressed. Thus, berbicara may mean speak, speaks, spoke, speaking, to speak etc.

Note that in the vocabulary sections in the text and at the back of the book the to form (such as to run) is used to indicate a verb.

Understanding Indonesian

Exercise 3 True or false?

Read these statements in Indonesian based on the dialogue in Part One and say whether each is true or false.

- a Mobil Ken menunggu di luar.
- b Anton membantu Ken.
- c Kopor-kopor Ken di luar.
- d Ken berbicara bahasa Indonesia dengan baik sekali.

membantu to help/helps

Exercise 4 Fill in the gaps in the sentences below with the verbs in the vocabulary section, concentrating on the meaning of the Indonesian only. Then match up the sentences in Indonesian with the correct English version.

- | | |
|---|-----------------|
| Dia sudah _____ surat. She teaches Indonesian. | merajut |
| Meréka sedang _____ koran. We are watching TV. | menonton |
| Dia _____ bahasa Indonesia. He has written a letter. | menulis |
| Saya sedang _____ téh. They are reading a newspaper. | meminum |
| Kami sedang _____ TV. I am drinking tea. | menonton |

membaca	to read mengajar	to teach menulis	to write menonton	to watch*
minum	to drink
surat	letter
koran	newspaper
TV	TV (pronounced as in English)

*Menonton is the strictly correct form you should use in writing; however, colloquially Indonesians shorten this word to nonton.

PART TWO

Dialogue

Mark Spencer, a student from the UK, arrives at Soekarno-Hatta Airport in Jakarta to meet his long-standing e-pal Reza for the first time. He passes customs without a hitch but there is no sign of Reza! Looking like a lost tourist, Mark is approached by several private taxi drivers offering their services.

Supir taksi 1 Taksı, Pak?

Mark Tidak, terima kasih.

Supir taksi 2 Bapak perlu taksi?

Mark Tidak, terima kasih.

Supir taksi 3 Mau ke mana, Pak?

Mark Saya sedang menunggu seseorang.

Supir taksi 4 Saya bisa mengantar Bapak ke hotél? Mau pergi ke mana?

(Presently, a young lady approaches Mark and says...)

Reza Maaf, kamu Mark? Maaf saya terlambat. Saya terjebak macet.

Mark Ya. Apa kamu Reza?

Reza Betul. Senang bertemu dengan kamu.

Mark Saya juga.

Reza Apa ini semua kopor-kopor kamu? Mari saya bantu.

supir taksi	taxis driver
Tidak, terima kasih	no, thank you perlu	need taksi	taxis
kamu	you (informal) mau	to want
ke mana	where to?
Mau ke mana, Pak?	Where do you want to go, Sir?

hotél	hotel
Mau pergi ke mana?	Where do you want to go?
maaf	sorry

Maaf, saya terlambat.	I'm sorry I'm late.

Saya terjebak macet.	I was stuck in traffic.

Translation

Taxi driver 1 Taxi, Sir?

Mark No, thank you.

Taxi driver 2 Does Sir need a taxi?

Mark No, thank you.

Taxi driver 3 Where do you want (to go), Sir?

Mark I am waiting for someone.

Taxi driver 4 Can I take you to a hotel (Sir)? Where do you want to go?

Reza Excuse me, are you Mark? I'm sorry I'm late. I was stuck in traffic.

Mark Yes. Are you Reza?

Reza That's correct. Pleased to meet you.

Mark Me too.

Reza Is this all your baggage? Let me help.

How the language works 2

1 In the dialogue, bapak is used to mean you. Bapak perlu taksi? Used in this way, bapak can be likened to the older style, hyper-polite English, Does Sir require a taxi? although its usage is still commonplace in Indonesia. Any title or a name can be used to mean you. Therefore, if you say, for example, Apakah Tuti dari Bali? this could mean Is Tuti from Bali? but if you were addressing Tuti directly, the meaning would be Are you from Bali, (Tuti)?

2 In addition to the formal pronouns, there is an informal pronoun kamu that is widely used between friends. Note, however, that it should only be used with people with whom you are on very familiar terms, or with people who are the same age or younger. It would be highly inappropriate to use kamu in a business environment or when you are unfamiliar with the speaker. If in doubt use anda or saudara.

Kamu behaves just like most of the formal pronouns in that it can be placed after a noun to indicate possession.

Thus:

Kamu cantik.	You are beautiful.
kucing kamu	your cat

However, when it is used to show possession it may be shortened to -mu. When shortened in this way it is added onto the word it refers to:

kucingmu	your cat
rokok kamu → rokokmu	your cigarette

Exercise 5 Use -mu to make the following phrases:

- a your camera
- b your spectacles
- c your key
- d your passport

kaméra	camera kacamata	spectacles

kunci	key
paspor	passport

4 In Unit 1, you were introduced to apakah as a means of forming a yes/no question. As in the dialogue, you can make the same type of question just by placing apa at the beginning of the statement. In this case, apa is simply the shortened form of apakah:

Apakah dia sedang menunggu seseorang?	}	Is she waiting for someone?
Apa dia sedang menunggu seseorang?

Exercise 6 Use apa to ask the following questions:

- a Is this all your (use kamu) luggage?
- b Are they waiting outside?
- c Is he stuck in traffic?
- d Are we (use kami) late?

Whereas apakah may be considered to be highly formal, apa tends to be less so. As we shall see later on in the course, it is the -kah that gives the question a more formal tone.

5 Did you notice that not all the questions in the dialogue are formed with apa or apakah? In informal style, these may be omitted when forming a question and, as Indonesian tends towards brevity and simplicity, this is often the case, especially in the spoken language. So another way to form a yes/no question is simply to take the statement and add a rising intonation at the end; that alone forms the question.

► Look at the following examples and, ideally, follow along with the recording, if you have it, as this type of question relies solely on the rising intonation you use.

Itu menarik.	It's interesting.
Itu menarik?	Is it interesting?
Dia capék.	She's tired.
Dia capék?	Is she tired?
Ini anjing kamu.	This is your dog.
Ini anjing kamu?	Is this your dog? cantik	beautiful menarik	interesting

capék	tired

3 In Unit 1, we saw that maaf can mean excuse me. It can also be used to express apology for something in the following way:

Maaf, saya terlambat. I'm sorry I'm late.

22 at the airport

Exercise 7 Choose the correct response from the choice of three for each question or statement and write it in the space provided.

a Maaf, apa anda supir taksi?

- 1 Terima kasih.
- 2 Ya betul, mau ke mana Pak?
- 3 Tidak apa-apa.

b Mari saya bantu.

- 1 Terima kasih, kopor-kopor saya di luar.
- 2 Saya sedang menonton TV.
- 3 Saya berbicara bahasa Indonesia dengan baik.

c Mau ke mana Pak?

- 1 Mau ke hotel Ciputra.
- 2 Senang bertemu dengan kamu.
- 3 Tidak, terima kasih.

d Apa anda sedang menunggu seseorang?

- 1 Ya, saya sedang menunggu supir taksi.
- 2 Tidak, dia turis.
- 3 Senang berkenalan dengan anda juga.

Exercise 8 Over to you!

While you are working at your desk, your Indonesian friend Mustafa (A) comes up to you to ask for help with something. Use the English in the prompts to answer Mustafa's questions in Indonesian. You are (B).

A Bisa anda membantu saya?

B I'm sorry. I'm busy.

A Apa anda sedang belajar bahasa Indonesia?

B Yes.

A Bisa saya kembali lagi nanti?

B OK.

A Selamat belajar!

bisa (verb)	can, to be able to sibuk	busy
belajar	to study
sedang belajar	studying kembali	to come back (note that this also means Don't mention it!) lagi	again
nanti	later
Selamat belajar!	Happy studying!

When you have finished writing the answers, check that you know what Mustafa is asking you, then use the recording to practise the dialogue.

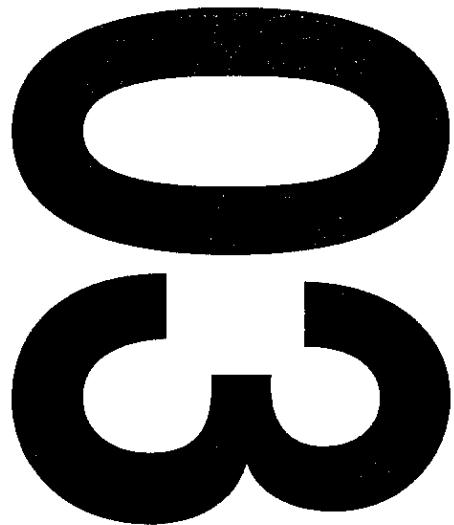

Taxi drivers

When Mark arrives at the airport in Jakarta, the setting for Part Two of this unit, he becomes the object of attention of the many private taxi drivers who vie for his custom. In fact, in the dialogue, the amount of attention attracted by someone who is ostensibly foreign, owing primarily to his or her ethnicity, is rather understated! Although not really menacing, the taxi drivers can be extremely persistent as they see an opportunity to solicit a high taxi fare from a foreigner not yet accustomed to prices and Indonesian ways. Bear in mind that what the taxi drivers may tell you about prices and availability of other services may not necessarily reflect the truth. If you are on a low budget and you arrive in the capital, you can take a bus from the airport to the city centre or a variety of other bus terminals. If you have a particular destination in mind, however, then taking a taxi is by far a more convenient alternative. You can always bargain with the taxi drivers and set a price beforehand or simply decline their offers politely (Tidak, terima kasih), go straight out of the airport building and take a Blue Bird or a Silver Bird, both of which use a meter. Moreover, it is generally safer for a foreigner to use this kind of taxi.

getting to know you

In this unit you will learn how to

- give information about yourself and ask about other people
- express nationalities and languages
- ask basic questions

PART ONE

Dialogue

On the way to the hotel, Ken, Anton and Bambang pass the time by getting to know each other a little more.

- Ken Bagaimana kabar anda Bapak Bambang?
Bapak Bambang Kabar baik dan anda Bapak Knight?
Ken Saya juga, terima kasih.
Bapak Bambang Bagaimana dengan penerbangan anda?
Ken Sangat menyenangkan, walaupun sedikit melelahkan.
Bapak Bambang Anda berbicara bahasa Indonesia dengan lancar sekali.
Ken Terima kasih. Saya belajar dari isteri saya. Dia berasal dari Bandung. Apakah Bapak sudah berkeluarga?
Bapak Bambang Belum. Saya masih bujangan.
Bapak Anton Saya sudah berkeluarga.
Ken Maaf. Bisa anda berbicara dengan lambat?
Bapak Anton Baiklah. Maafkan saya.

bagaimana?	how?
Bagaimana kabar anda?	How are you?
baik	good/fine
kabar baik	I am fine
dan anda	and you?
Bagaimana dengan	How is...? How was...?
penerbangan	flight
sangat	very menyenangkan	pleasant
walaupun	although melelahkan	tiring
lancar	fluent
dengan lancar sekali	very fluently
belajar	to learn/to study
isteri	wife masih	still bujangan	single berkeluarga	married lambat	slow
dengan lambat	slowly
baiklah	all right
maafkan	to forgive
maafkan saya	I'm sorry

Translation

Ken	How are you, Mr Bambang?
Mr Bambang	Fine, and you, Mr Knight?
Ken	I'm (fine) too, thank you.
Mr Bambang	How was your flight?
Ken	(It was) very pleasant, although a little tiring.
Mr Bambang	You speak Indonesian very fluently.
Ken	Thank you. I learn (it) from my wife. She is from Bandung. Are you married, Mr Bambang?
Mr Bambang	Not yet, I am still single.
Mr Anton	I am married.
Ken	Sorry, could you speak (more) slowly?
Mr Anton	OK then. I am sorry.

How the language works 1

1 To ask How are you? in Indonesian you can use Bagaimana kabar anda? or Apa kabar? (kabar just means news). To answer you could use Kabar baik, terima kasih, I am fine, thank you or you could just use baik for short.

Other common answers are séhat, I'm healthy or alhamdulillah, baik, I'm well, thanks be to God. The last response is partly Arabic and widely used by Muslims.

2 Countries, nationalities and languages.

Inggeris	England	Belanda	Holland
Amérika	America	Malaysia	Malaysia
Kanada	Canada	Singapura	Singapore
Irlandia	Ireland	Cina	China
Skotlandia	Scotland	Jepang	Japan
Wales	Wales	Spaniol	Spain
Sélandia Baru	New Zealand	Jérman	Germany
Australia	Australia	Perancis	French

To talk about nationality simply take orang which means person and add the name of the country to it:

orang Amérika an American (person)
Saya orang Irlandia I am Irish. (I am an Irish person.)

Talking about languages is just as simple. Take bahasa which means language and add the name of the country that corresponds to the language you want to express:

bahasa Italia

Dia bisa berbicara bahasa Perancis.

Italian (language)

She can speak French.

When Indonesians talk about their own language they often just refer to it as bahasa, taking it as read from the situation that it is bahasa Indonesia they are talking about.

Exercise 1 How would you say:

- | | |
|---------------|-------------------|
| a a Spaniard | f an American |
| b Chinese | g a New Zealander |
| c a Scot | h Malay |
| d a Malaysian | i a Singaporean |
| e Dutch | j Japanese? |

3 Some question words. So far we have seen how to make yes/no-type questions in Indonesian. The other type of questions are those that require an answer and begin in English with question words such as what?, who?, how? and when?

- apa what? Apa itu? What's that?
- siapa who? Siapa ini? Who's this?
- kapan when? Kapan rapat? When is the meeting?
- Bagaimana what kind of?/what's _____ like?/how's?/how are?/how was/how were? etc. *Bagaimana film itu? How was that film?
Bagaimana isterimu? How's your mother?*

In the dialogue, Bambang asked Bagaimana dengan penerbangan anda? Bagaimana dengan is a more colloquial usage which can be used to ask how something is or was.

4 In English, nouns can be described by an adjective, for example, a big car, a happy occasion, or they can be described by another noun whereby the first noun gives more information about the second, for instance, lifestyle, bookshop and fighter pilot. In English, the describing word occurs before the main noun.

In Indonesian, nouns can be modified by adjectives, by nouns and even by verbs which also carry out the role of describing the noun. When any of these are used to describe a noun they are placed after the noun they refer to.

Study the following. The describing words are in bold italics:

- with adjectives

mobil baru

gambar indah

a new car

a beautiful picture

- with nouns

pusat kota

orang Wales

town centre

a Welsh person

With nouns that describe other nouns you may find it easier in many cases to think of it as the centre of town or a person of Wales as word order is similar in both languages this way.

- with verbs

tempat parkir

kamar mandi

parking space

bathroom

When more than one describing word, including possessive pronouns (my, your, our etc.) and personal names, occurs in a phrase, the word order is the reverse of the English:

sekolah bahasa Indonesia Indonesian language school paspor teman saya my friend's passport

baru	new gambar	picture indah	beautiful pusat	centre
kota	town

tempat	place parkir	to park kamar	room
mandi	to take a bath
sekolah	school

Exercise 2 How would you say:

- heavy luggage
- sports clothes
- bed (say: a place to sleep)
- My Indonesian language teacher's friend
- My friend's Indonesian language teacher?

berat	heavy olahraga	sports

pakaian	clothes
tidur	to sleep

Here are some phrases that you will find very useful in helping you to communicate with Indonesians:

Maaf, saya tidak mengerti.

I'm sorry, I don't understand.

Bisa anda ulangi lagi?

Could you repeat that please?

Bisa anda tulis?

*Could you write it down
please?*

Bisa anda éja?

*Could you spell it please?
Could you speak more slowly
please?*

Bisa anda berbicara lebih lambat?

Bisa anda berbicara lebih

keras?

*Could you speak more loudly
please?*

Note that in many of these expressions, bisa...? corresponds to the English could you...? and can be used in a variety of situations.

Understanding Indonesian

Exercise 3 Say whether the following statements based on the dialogue are true or false.

- Penerbangan Bapak Knight sangat melelahkan.
- Isteri Bapak Knight tidak berasal dari Bandung.
- Bapak Knight belajar bahasa Indonesia dari isterinya.
- Bapak Bambang sudah berkeluarga.

isterinya his wife

Exercise 4 First familiarize yourself with the vocabulary, then listen to Ibu Rani interviewing a young man and circle the correct answer to each question:

- What nationality is the speaker?
Australian – Indonesian – Dutch – Malaysian
- How well can he speak Indonesian (according to the interviewer)?
like a native – fluently – only a little
- What other language can he speak?
Chinese – Portuguese – English – German

d What problem does he have with the interviewer's Indonesian?

It's too fast – It's too unclear – It's heavily accented seperti	like

asli	authentic, native
seperti orang asli	like a native
Portugis	Portuguese
jelas	clear
tidak jelas	unclear
aksén	accent
kental	thick, strong
aksén yang kental	a strong accent

Mr Tanto Just call me Pak Tanto. Have a nice stay!
Mark Thank you. See you later.

How the language works 2

1 Negation. Indonesian makes sentences or phrases negative by using tidak or bukan depending on the situation. It is important that you understand the distinction between the usage of these two words.

- To make a verb negative in English, we use don't or doesn't before the verb. For example, we would say He doesn't speak English or They don't eat pork.

In Indonesian, insert tidak directly before a verb to make it negative:

dia minum he drinks

dia tidak minum he doesn't drink

saya tahu I know

saya tidak tahu I don't know

- In Indonesian adjectives are also made negative by using tidak:

dia séhat he is healthy dia tidak séhat He isn't healthy meréka mabuk they are drunk

meréka tidak mabuk They aren't drunk

- When what you want to make negative is a noun (a thing) or a pronoun, bukan must be used. Again it is inserted directly before the noun (or pronoun) if refers to.

Saya orang Indonesia.

I am an Indonesian.

Saya bukan orang Indonesia.

I am not an Indonesian.

- Ini kucing. This is a cat.
Ini bukan kucing. This is not a cat
Dia présidén? Bukan dia. Is he the president? It's not him.

tahu	to know sehat	healthy

mabuk	drunk
présidén	president

Exercise 5 Complete the sentence with either tidak or bukan.

- Dia _____ sopan.
- Meréka _____ buta.
- Kami _____ tinggal di Denpasar.
- Itu _____ mobil saya.
- Dia _____ gembira.

sopan	polite
buta	blind

gembira	happy
----------------	--------------

- Finally, both tidak and bukan mean no as a one-word response to a yes/no question. You need to recognize what the focus word is in the question. Is it a noun, verb or adjective?

Apa kakakmu penari? Is your sister a dancer? No.
Bukan.

Apa dia péndék? Tidak. Is she short? No.
Apa dia bekerja di Bali? Tidak. Does she work in Bali? No.

Exercise 6 Answer no to these questions:

- Apa itu pénsilmu?
- Apa pénsilmu patah?
- Apa ibumu cerewét?
- Apakah meréka tahu?

kakak	elder sister/brother péndék	short pénsil	pencil patah	broken
cerewét	talkative

2 In the dialogue did you notice that Pak Tanto asked Mark Kapan tiba di Jakarta? and Berapa lama mau tinggal di sini? without including a pronoun? This is perfectly acceptable and widely used in conversational style. Indonesians like to express themselves in the simplest and most economical way possible which leads to their omitting certain words from the sentence when the context is fully understood. In this case, it is obvious that Pak Tanto is addressing Mark and no-one else. It would be unthinkable to miss words out like this in correct English, even when the context is fully understood. The omission in this sentence is optional. It would be perfectly correct to say Kapan kamu tiba di Jakarta? and Berapa lama kamu mau tinggal di sini?. However, the forms in the dialogue come naturally to native Indonesian speakers so you should be aware of them.

As you work through this book and, especially if you have the opportunity to converse with Indonesian speakers, you will begin to get a natural feel for which words may be dropped when the context is understood.

3 To ask where?, where to? and where from? Indonesian uses:

di mana...?	where...?
Di mana kamu tinggal?	Where do you live?
ke mana...?	where to...?
Ke mana kamu pergi?	Where are you going (to)?
dari mana...?	where from...?
Dari mana kamu berasal?	Where do you come from?

These three questions are made up of a preposition (a word that indicates location) and mana. Note that the two components that make up these questions cannot be separated as in the corresponding English sentences. For instance, in the last example, notice how where can occur at the beginning of the phrase with the from at the end. This is not possible in Indonesian. In fact, you will find these questions easier to understand and use if you think of how they would appear in older-style English: To where are you going? From where do you come?, as this is what you are effectively saying in Indonesian.

Exercise 7 Fill in the blanks with the appropriate question according to the meaning:

- a _____ dia masuk?
- b _____ dia belajar?
- c _____ meréka membawa kopor itu?
- d _____ kami datang?

masuk	to enter	membawa	bring/take
-------	-----------------	---------	-------------------

4 Used on its own, berapa? means how many?

berapa mobil?	how many cars?
berapa kucing?	how many cats?

However, berapa is often combined with other words to create specific questions that ask about the quantity of something. In the dialogue you were introduced to:

Berapa lama? How long?/For how long?

This question is made up of berapa and lama which means a long time. (Note that berapa lama? can only be used to refer to time. If you want to ask how long? to refer to physical length the question berapa panjang? must be used.)

Similarly, berapa kali?, how many times?

Berapa kali kamu datang How many times have you come to Indonesia?

Many useful questions can be formed with berapa. It is worth bearing this in mind as you work through the units, as other questions using berapa will be presented in appropriate units. The answer to a question with berapa will, more often than not, have a number in the answer.

Exercise 8 Complete these questions with berapa lama or berapa kali as appropriate.

- a _____ penerbangan dari London ke Jakarta?
- b _____ anda makan nasi goréng?
- c _____ kita menunggu?
- d _____ dia tinggal di Indonesia?
- e _____ dia menélpon?

makan	to eat
menélpon	to call/to make a phone call

5 In Part One of this unit you were introduced to the question word siapa. When you ask for someone's name in English, you use what? (What's your name?) Indonesian, by way of contrast, uses siapa!

Siapa nama anda? What's your name?

Siapa nama orang itu? What's the name of that person?

But, if you are inquiring about the name of something other than a living being, you must use apa:

Apa nama kota ini? What's this town called?

If you mix these up, you can cause confusion. If you ask someone the name of her pet dog, for instance, the question would be Siapa nama anjing ini? If you were to ask, Apa nama anjing ini? you would be asking about the breed of dog.

6 Pernah and tidak pernah relate to the past in a specific way. From the English speaker's point of view, it is easier to grasp how to use tidak pernah first. Tidak pernah simply translates never as in such sentences as:

Saya tidak pernah pergi ke Lombok. I have never been to Lombok.

Kami tidak pernah melihat dia. We have never seen her.

Pernah expresses ever as in the English Have you ever been to Lombok? However, whereas English only uses ever in the question form, Indonesian uses it in the positive statement too. In this sense it expresses something you have done in the distant past and can often be translated as once in English:

Saya pernah pergi ke Bali. I once went to Bali.
Dia pernah belajar memasak. She once learnt cookery.
Apa kamu pernah ke Lombok? Have you ever (been) to Lombok?

(Note that in the last example pergi can be omitted as it is understood from the context which ke – to creates.)

memasak to cook

Exercise 9 How would you say:

- I have never seen that film (movie).
- Have you ever been to Medan?
- We (use kami) once ate durian.
- He once lived in America?

durian durian (see Unit 14)

7 Selamat, a word connected with the idea of prosperity, welfare, happiness and salvation is used in many an Indonesian greeting. In addition to several set greetings, some of which you will see in the following list, you can combine selamat with any verb to convey an idea of well wishing in that particular action etc. Here are some common ones you may find useful:

Selamat belajar!	Enjoy your studies!
Selamat makan!	Enjoy your food!
Selamat bekerja!	Enjoy your work!
Selamat terbang!	Have a good flight!
Selamat ulang tahun!	Happy birthday!
Selamat tidur!	Good night!
Selamat Lebaran!	Happy Eid!
Selamat Natal!	Merry Christmas!
Selamat jalan!	Goodbye!*
Selamat tinggal!	Goodbye!*
Selamat bersenang-senang!	Have a good time!

*There are two words for goodbye in Indonesian. If you are the one who is leaving you say Selamat tinggal to whomever you are taking leave of and, if you are the one staying, you wish the person leaving a happy journey, Selamat jalan!

Using Indonesian

Exercise 10 See if you can make these sentences in Indonesian:

- a They didn't arrive yesterday.
- b This isn't the flight to Jakarta.
- c I don't speak Arabic.
- d My wife isn't Indonesian.
- e That isn't an orang outang.
- f Endang is not stubborn.

bahasa Arab	Arabic
orang utan	orang outang
keras kepala	stubborn

Exercise 11 Look at the following sentences. Use the rules given earlier to determine whether the sentence uses bukan or tidak in the right way. If there is a mistake, correct it. Check your answer in the key.

- a Dia tidak orang Brazil.
- b Dia bukan pemain sépak bola.
- c Kami tidak bahagia.
- d Saya bukan bodoh.
- e Kemarin meréka bukan datang.

orang Brazil	Brazilian
pemain sépak bola	football player bahagia	happy
bodoh	stupid
datang	to come

Exercise 12 Look at the answers. What were the questions?

- a Séhat.
- b Penerbangan sangat melelahkan.
- c Tidak, saya masih bujangan.
- d Nama saya Angela.
- e Ya, saya pernah ke Miami.
- f Meréka mau tinggal di Solo cuma dua minggu.
- g Bukan, saya bukan orang Thailand.

Thailand (pronounced Tailan) Thailand

Exercise 13 Over to you!

Imagine you are an Australian called Stuart from Canberra (A). One day you are out and about in your home town and you notice a foreign tourist having difficulty making herself understood (B). You notice that her guidebook is in Indonesian so you take the opportunity to practise the Indonesian you learnt at school (di sekolah).

- A Are you Indonesian? How are you?
- B Ya, kabar baik, terima kasih.
- A Excuse me? What's your name?
- B Nama saya Triwulandari. Panggil saja Tri.
- A My name's Stuart. Just call me Stu.
- B Maaf, bahasa Inggeris saya tidak lancar.
- A Don't worry. I once learnt Indonesian at school.
- B Bagus kalau begitu.
- A Where are you staying?
- B Saya tinggal di hotel Hilton.
- A How is Australia?
- B Bagus sekali.
- A How long will you stay in Canberra?
- B Cuma dua minggu.
- A Have a nice holiday!
- B Terima kasih. Sampai berjumpa lagi.

bagus sekali	great
Sampai berjumpa lagi!	See you!

Some conversation pointers

Some pointers about Indonesian culture are indispensable when it comes to successful communication. A westerner's lack of understanding of the Indonesian standpoint can sometimes lead to misunderstanding and embarrassment.

Did you notice that, in the first dialogue in this unit, in the conversation about marriage, Bambang does not say directly that he is not married, but says that he is not married yet. This reflects the traditional family values of Indonesia. Whereas it is perfectly acceptable in many western countries to say one is single, for the Indonesians one is either already married – sudah berkeluarga – or one is not married yet – belum berkeluarga. It is always assumed that you will get married one day.

sound patronizing in English, these forms are polite and are widely used in Indonesian.

Remember also that all these forms can be used to mean you as Indonesian often uses a title or someone's name where we would use you in English, even though you are addressing that person directly.

Learning tip

Make pocket-sized flashcards with Indonesian vocabulary or expressions on one side and the English on the other or make a small vocabulary and expression book that you can carry around with you so that you can revise the material from the unit you are studying and keep previously covered material alive during all those spare moments when you are waiting in queues, taking the bus etc.

40 Getting to know you 03

As a westerner, you may find it better to stick to this formula rather than saying that you are not married, as you might arouse unexpected concern for your future in the Indonesians you meet!

In addition to these expressions, you may also hear and use menikah (or nikah, in informal conversation) and kawin both meaning married. Be warned, however that the use of kawin is becoming increasingly associated with animals rather than human beings and in a few years its usage will probably become restricted to beasts alone!

First-time western visitors to Indonesia are often indignant about the apparent nosiness of Indonesians as they seem forever to be inquiring about where you are going! Mau ke mana?, Where are you off to? In reality, this is just a very common greeting which is not really meant to be taken literally and, most of the time, the person who asks does not really expect anything other than the standard reply, Jalan-jalan, Oh, I'm just off for a walk.

Forms of address

Generally, men are addressed as Bapak which means Sir and Mr, when used with the person's name. Women are addressed as Ibu meaning Madam or Mrs when used with a name. Unlike English, the first name can be used after Bapak or Ibu or, as in English, the family name can be used. Therefore, Ken Knight could be either Bapak Ken or Bapak Knight. Bapak is often shortened to Pak and Ibu to just Bu when the person is being addressed directly.

Mas meaning brother and mbak which means sister are Javanese words that are used by the speaker to address people who are older. They can also be used with the person's name as with Bapak and Ibu.

In West Java, the Sundanese use A'ak for Mas and Tétéh for Mbak.

To address someone younger, especially in West Java, ujang is used for a male and neng is used for a female. Although these words mean little boy and little girl respectively, the person does not have to be a child to be addressed in this way.

Two more forms of address you may come across are adik (which is often shortened to just dik) which can be used when speaking to someone younger, male or female, and abang which is only used to address males who are older than the speaker.

You can attract someone's attention by using these forms, for example maaf mas, excuse me, young man. Although this may working and studying

In this unit you will learn how to

- talk about your job and ask about what other people do
- express your capabilities
- talk about education and study

- Rita I'm sorry, Sir, (but) I'm only able to work part time. Three days a week.
- Ken That's fine. I'll think about it more and let you know as soon as possible.

How the language works 1

1 Silahkan is a useful and polite word to use when urging someone to do something. It is one of the ways to say Please (do something) in Indonesian. Just combine it with a verb.

Silahkan duduk!	Please sit down!
Silahkan berdiri!	Please stand up!
Silahkan cuci!	Please wash!
Silahkan ikut saya!	Please follow me!

Exercise 1 Try forming Silahkan... phrases with the following words and then write the meanings:

- a menyanyi
- b berbicara
- c minum
- d menari
- e masuk

berdiri	to stand up	menyanyi	to sing cuci	to wash	menari	to dance
ikut	to follow

2 Expressing ability. There are three ways to talk about what you can do in Indonesian. You can use bisa, dapat or mampu, all of which mean can or to be able to. Place them before the verb they refer to:

Saya dapat berhitung.

I can count.

Meréka dapat mengajar bahasa Spanyol.

They can teach Spanish.

Dia bisa berkomunikasi dengan baik.

He can communicate well.

Saya mampu menjual produk itu.

I can sell this product.

Mampu is a good word to use when talking about your capabilities. Indonesians will be impressed to hear you using this!

berhitung	to count	menjual	to sell berkomunikasi	to communicate	produk	product

3 Bisa and dapat can both be used to form phrases that make a request which corresponds to Could you...? in English, as in Could you help me? As in the dialogue they can both occur with -kah attached. Bisakah anda ceritakan tentang pendidikan saudara? As with apakah, the -kah makes the question even more polite, which is appropriate for a formal situation such as the job interview in the dialogue.

4 You have already come across a way of indicating how an action is performed. Such a word is known as an adverb. It tells you more about the action expressed in the verb. These are usually formed by adding -ly to an adjective in English, for example: quick → quickly.

Look at these examples:

Saya berbicara Inggeris dengan baik.

I speak English well.

Dia mampu mengetik dengan cepat.

He can type quickly.

You will see that in Indonesian they are formed by dengan plus adjective. Adding any adjective to dengan has the same effect as adding -ly to a noun in English, turning it into an adverb:

otomatis	automatic dengan otomatis	automatically

automatic	automatically
------------------	----------------------

Exercise 2 How would you say:

- a Please drive carefully!
- b Please write accurately!
- c Please read quietly!

mengemudi	to drive	teliti	accurate
hati-hati	careful	tenang	quiet

5 Job talk

dokter	doctor dokter gigi	dentist perawat	nurse ilmuwan	scientist montir	mechanic dosén	lecturer wartawan	journalist pegawai negeri	public servant ahli hukum	lawyer penulis	writer penyanyi	singer pemusik	musician juru foto	photographer juru masak	chef
pelayan	waiter
Apa pekerjaan anda?
What's your job?

When stating what job someone does, the word seorang is often inserted just before the job title:

Dia seorang wartawan. She's a journalist.

Used in this way seorang corresponds to a or an in English. Although it is entirely optional, native speakers tend to express jobs in this way.

Understanding Indonesian

Exercise 3 Using the dialogue say whether the following statements are true or false.

- Rita menyelesaikan pendidikan di Jakarta.
- Rita hanya mampu menggunakan komputer dan email.
- Dia tidak dapat mengerjakan surat-menyurat.
- Dia mampu mengetik dengan cepat.
- Dia tidak bisa mulai kerja minggu depan.

mengerjakan to do

Exercise 4 Imagine you work for an international employment agency. A company has asked you to find a salesperson who is between 30–55 years of age, has a university diploma, has at least five years' experience in sales and is computer literate. An Indonesian speaker is preferred but fluent English is a must. There are four people on your books who may be suitable. Read the information about each person and choose which one best fulfils the requirements the company is looking for.

1 Tenses. In English, when you talk about what you are doing now, what you did yesterday and what you will do tomorrow, you convey the meaning through a change in the form of the verb you use, for example: I am eating, I ate, I will eat. The form of the verb is usually enough to indicate tense, i.e. when the action takes place. If you hear I went then you know immediately that the speaker is referring to the past. In fact, English has a very complex tense system. If you have bad memories of learning a foreign language before and are struggling with the complications of learning tenses, then you will be happy to hear that you are about to make a quantum leap in your study of Indonesian!

Indonesian verbs do not indicate person; they do not indicate tense either. This means that, for instance, pergi can translate as go, went, has been etc. depending on the context in which it occurs. This does not pose a translation problem for English speakers as your knowledge of English will automatically compensate and place the action in the correct time frame.

Indonesian has two ways of indicating tense: The first way is by using a time expression which will give you a time frame and a tense for the verb.

Some basic units of time are:

hari	day
minggu	week
bulan	month
tahun	year

Adding either depan or yang akan datang to any of these or a day of the week or month puts the time unit into the future and automatically creates a future tense for anything you put with it and translates as next...:

tahun depan	next year
minggu yang akan datang	next week

Similarly, adding yang lalu to any of the time units just mentioned above creates a past tense and translates as last... or ...ago:

bulan yang lalu	last month
------------------------	-------------------

Note also:

hari ini	today besok	tomorrow kemarin	yesterday
dua hari yang lalu	the day before yesterday (two days ago)
dua hari yang akan datang	the day after tomorrow

When you are talking about events that happened in the very near past or future, usually the same day or in the same 24-hour period, you need to be aware of the usage of particular time expressions. These only occur with pagi, morning, soré, late morning, siang, afternoon, and malam, evening. With one or two exceptions tadi is used to refer to the past in this extremely limited time frame and nanti is used to refer to the future.

Thus:

tadi malam	yesterday evening
tadi pagi	this morning nanti malam	tonight
nanti soré	this afternoon

You need to note the form bésok pagi (rather than nanti pagi) for tomorrow morning as this is the only exception.

Note, finally, that if you are talking about something that will happen later on in the same time frame you are currently experiencing, for instance, it is evening and you want to talk about something that will happen on that same evening, the preferred form is malam ini. Note also pagi ini etc.

Exercise 5 How would you say:

- a last year
- b next month
- c the year before last
- d last week
- e this afternoon?

The second way to indicate tense is by use of a tense marker. These are generally adverbs that, by the very nature of their meaning, carry with them the idea of tense when used with a verb. For example, you have already met sedang which means now. When you combine sedang with a verb, it forms the equivalent of a continuous tense which is expressed by to be ...-ing in English:

Saya mengajar biologi.	I teach biology.
Saya sedang mengajar biologi.	I am teaching biology.

You have also come across sudah which you know means already but when used as a tense marker indicates a past tense:

Meréka sudah datang.	They have arrived/they arrived.
-----------------------------	--

A tense marker with a similar meaning is telah which you met in the dialogue in Part One:

Saya telah menyelesaikan pendidikan. I finished my education.

In spoken Indonesian you will almost always use sudah because telah is considered highly formal. It is fitting for the job interview situation in the dialogue but it would seem out of place in everyday conversation. In writing, however, it would be appropriate to substitute telah for sudah.

Exercise 6

How would you say:

- a he wrote

The role of women

In the cities and in the workplace the role of women has changed radically in the last few years and it is now possible for women to hold the same positions as men. This is most apparent in the government where, for the first time in Indonesian history, a woman, Megawati Soekarno Putri, is in charge of running the country.

Education

Education for Indonesian children begins at kindergarten, taman kanak-kanak (shortened to TK), when they are five years old.

After TK they go to elementary school, sekolah dasar (SD) for six years from the age of seven.

Following elementary school, pupils go to junior high school sekolah lanjutan tingkat pertama (SLTP) for three years. Junior high schools used to be called sekolah menengah pertama which was shortened to SMP. Even though the name of the school has been changed, Indonesians still refer to junior high school as SMP.

After SMP comes senior high school, sekolah lanjutan tingkat atas (SLTA). As with junior high, Indonesians still use the old acronym SMA, which refers to the former name, sekolah menengah atas. In the second of three years at senior high school, students can choose to major in natural sciences (ilmu pengetahuan alam), social science (ilmu pengetahuan sosial) or languages. Following SMA students can continue their studies at a university or an academy.

Agriculture

Indonesia is traditionally an agricultural country with most of the population living in villages and working on farms. Most Indonesian farmers work the land for their own survival. Rice is the staple diet so rice fields abound! Known centuries ago as the Spice Islands owing to the export in spices, Indonesia still farms spices, as well as rice, coffee, tea, coconuts, corn and rubber for export.

PART ONE

► Dialogue

Ken and Anton take the opportunity to get to know each other a little better during a coffee break in the company canteen.

- Ken Bapak sudah berkeluarga, bukan?
- Anton Ya, Isteri saya dari Padang. Kami punya tiga orang anak. Yang pertama laki-laki, masih sekolah dasar. Yang kedua kembar perempuan. Meréka sangat lucu sekali.
- Ken Berapa umur meréka?
- Anton Sepuluh tahun dan tujuh tahun. Dan Bapak punya berapa orang anak?
- Ken Saya punya dua anak. Yang sulung perempuan, dan yang bungsu laki-laki.
- Anton Apa isteri Bapak bekerja?

- Anton Dia seorang guru bahasa Inggeris. Tapi kami punya pembantu untuk menjaga anak-anak.
- Ken Bagus kalau begitu. Isteri dan anak-anak saya akan datang minggu depan dari Selandia Baru. Meréka ingin bertemu kakék, nének dan sepupu-sepupunya.
- Anton Apa kakéknnya masih bekerja?
- Ken Dia dulu seorang guru besar di Universitas Pajajaran, tapi sekarang sudah pensiun. Isteri saya punya keluarga besar. Dia punya dua saudara laki-laki dan dua saudara perempuan. Meréka semua sudah menikah.
- Anton Jangan lupa kenalkan meréka, kalau meréka datang ke Jakarta. Saya akan mengundang meréka untuk makan malam.
- Ken Pasti, terima kasih.

Ken Sure. Thank you

How the language works 1

1 In spoken English, we add phrases like ... don't you?, ... isn't she? to the end of statements to form what are known as question tags. In English, the tag changes depending on the content of the statement it refers to, for instance, She speaks Malay, doesn't she?, They were at the airport, weren't they?

In Indonesian, you only need to use one tag, bukan?, which is often shortened just to kan? in more casual speech:

Meréka sudah berangkat ke Jakarta, bukan?	They've already left for Jakarta, haven't they?
Kamu mau membeli mobil, bukan?	You want to buy a car, don't you?

It is very important, however, to note that you must always use bukan (or kan) when you are adding a question tag to a negative statement, even when you have used tidak in the statement already, according to the rules given in Unit 3. Tidak can never be used as a question tag:

Meréka tidak datang, bukan?	They didn't come, did they?
Dia tidak marah, kan?	She isn't angry, is she?

Exercise 1 Turn these statements into questions using question tags, then translate them, noting the simplicity of the Indonesian question tags compared to the English ones.

- Dia sedang tidur.
- Itu salah.
- Meréka bukan tentara.

berangkat	to leave for marah	angry

salah	wrong
tentara	soldier(s)

2 Sangat and sekali can both be used to translate very; however each is used in a different position in relation to the word you want to refer to. When you use sangat you need to place it before the word it refers to but when you use sekali you need to place it after the word. You can use these with adjectives or adverbs in the following way:

sangat ganteng	very handsome ganteng sekali	very handsome
dengan cepat sekali	very fast

In colloquial language, Indonesians tend to prefer to use sekali rather than sangat.

As in the dialogue, you can use both sangat and sekali together to mean very, very or extremely:

sangat lucu sekali	very, very cute
---------------------------	------------------------

Exercise 2 Give the Indonesian for the following. Give both forms where possible:

- very dark
- very wide
- very good
- extremely strong
- extremely tired

gelap	dark
luas	wide

kuat	strong (physically)
lelah	tired

► 3 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 10 form the basis for all the numbers that come after, so learning them thoroughly now will really pay off later.

satu	one dua	two
tiga	three
empat	four lima	five
enam	six
tujuh	seven
delapan	eight sembilan	nine
sepuluh	ten

Note also:

pertama	first
kedua	second
ketiga	third

4 In this unit, we have come across the word yang which has several important uses in Indonesian, some of which will be examined here and some in later units.

- Yang corresponds to the one which (is), the one who (is), the ones who (are) and the ones which (are) in English. It can refer to things as well as people:

Yang sulung perempuan. The (one who is) first born is a girl.

Yang laki-laki berumur 7 tahun. The one who is male is 7 years old.

Mau yang kecil? Tidak, yang besar. Do you want the small one (i.e. the one that is small)? No, the big one (the one that is big).

Kamu perlu yang ini? Do you need this one (the one that is this)? Tidak, yang lain. No, the other one (the one that is other).

Saya mau yang itu. I want that one.
Yang menolong saya The one who helped me is sepupu Eva. Eva's cousin.

- By extension, yang can be used, as in the dialogue, with ordinal numbers meaning the first one, the second one etc.:

Yang pertama laki-laki. The first one (i.e. the one who is first) is male.

Yang ketiga sudah siap. The third one is ready.

menolong	to help
-----------------	----------------

• Dia isteri yang baik. It is very common for Indonesian speakers to insert yang between the noun and the adjective, even though it may not seem necessary given the rules for noun + adjective you learnt in Unit 3. It is sometimes used by the speaker to stress the quality expressed by the adjective in relation to the noun it refers to. It could be used by the speaker to add emotional emphasis creating a meaning such as She is a good wife, stressing the quality good, although you will hear it used naturally and regularly by Indonesians simply as a speech habit and not always to add emphasis.

5 Talking about your family.

ayah	father
ibu	mother putera	son
putri	daughter kakék	grandfather nénék	grandmother paman or om	uncle
bibi or tante	aunt suami	husband
isteri	wife

Many family words in Indonesian are not gender specific:

saudara	brother/sister
adik	younger brother/sister kakak	older brother/sister
ipar	brother/sister-in-law anak	child/son/daughter cucu	grandchild/grandson/granddaughter sepupu	cousin keponakan	neice/nephew mertua	father/mother-in-law
kembar	twin(s)

This is not usually a problem as either context will tell you or you may already be aware of the gender of the person the speaker is referring to. When clarification is needed laki-laki is applied to all these words to indicate a male and perempuan is applied to indicate a female.

Laki-laki and perempuan can also be used with anak, child, to mean boy or girl or with orang, person, to indicate man or woman, although perempuan or laki-laki alone can also mean woman or man respectively.

Orang tua means old person or old people but it can also mean parent or parents. Grandparents is rendered by kakék nénék in Indonesian.

Exercise 3 Write the gender-specific forms of the following:

- a granddaughter
- b father-in-law
- c nephew
- d older sister

To talk about what you have you can use punya or mempunyai interchangeably.

Saya punya anak kembar. I have twins.

Saya mempunyai anak kembar. I have twins.

Kami mempunyai rumah bagus. We have a nice house.

6 Punya can combine with siapa to form the question whose? It can occur at the beginning or end of a sentence but the two parts cannot be separated. Look at the following examples:

Gelas ini punya siapa? Whose is this glass?
Punya siapa gelas ini? Whose is this glass?

Exercise 4 Write out both versions of these questions:

- a Whose book is that?
- b Whose job is it? (use ini)
- c Whose child is this?
- d Whose car is that?

• Siapa on its own can also mean whose? but with this meaning the word order is important. In this case siapa must immediately follow the noun it is referring to, like an adjective does:

Gelas siapa ini? Whose glass is this?

Exercise 5 Go back to Exercise 4 and write out the sentences again using siapa.

7 -nya. Another Indonesian word with many uses is -nya. It is very commonly used as an alternative to dia or meréka when they occur as possessive pronouns (his/her/their). -nya cannot occur as a separate word in a sentence. Instead, it is attached to the end of the word or words it refers to to create one word (like -mu in Unit 3):

permainan dia	his toy permainan + nya = permainannya	his toy rumah besar meréka	their big house
rumah besar + nya = rumah besarnya	their big house

(Note in the last example, the -nya is attached to the adjective as the noun and the adjective in this case form a single unit. If you attached the -nya to the rumah, as in rumahnya besar, it would change the meaning to Their house is big.)

Exercise 6

Give the alternative forms of the following:

- jam tangan dia (her watch)
- sekolah dasar meréka (their elementary school)
- kebun meréka (their garden)
- alat CD dia (her CD player)
- Keponakan perempuan dia lucu sekali. (His niece is very cute.)

kebun garden

alat CD CD player

The important point to remember when using -nya is that it has to refer back to something already mentioned or a context that has already been established.

Kakak saya akan tiba besok. My brother is arriving tomorrow. His wife works in an advertising bureau.

The context you establish does not have to be verbal. You could just as easily point to someone and say, His wife works in advertising and use -nya as just seen.

kantor periklanan advertising bureau

8 Saya akan mengundang meréka untuk makan malam, I will invite them to dinner. Meréka means they, but it also means them. In English, some of the personal pronouns change to me, him, her, us and them when they occur as objects (when they are on the receiving end of the action) or when they occur after words like for, to etc. In Indonesian they remain the same, with one exception:

Kami mengenal meréka.
Ken menolong kami.

We know them.
Ken helps us.

There is the potential for confusion here because dia is used to refer to both males and females. Look at the following: Kami melihat dia, We saw him. But it can also mean We saw her. The context of the situation will usually tell you which is intended.

The exception occurs in sentences such as He knows her or She knows him because you cannot have dia for both the subject (the person who is doing the action, in this case knowing) and the object (here the one who is being known). In such a situation you must use -nya for the object pronoun and attach it to the verb:

Dia mengenal + nya = He knows her etc.
Dia mengenalnya.

Exercise 7

How would you say:

- We are waiting for them.
- She phoned me.
- They disturbed him.
- He loves her.
- We went with them?

mengenal menelpon to know to telephone menganggu mencintai to disturb to love

9 Berapa umur anda? How old are you? There are two ways of expressing age in Indonesian.

- The first uses umur which is a noun, therefore you need to use a pronoun or a name after umur, which means age:

Umur Tuti 10 tahun. Tuti is 10.
Umurnya 10 tahun. She is 10.

- The second uses the verb berumur, to be X years old. As it is a verb the pronoun or name occurs in front:

Tuti berumur 10 tahun. Tuti is 10 years old.
Dia berumur 10 tahun. She is 10 years old.

Exercise 8

Give the alternative forms of the following:

- Kembar saya berumur empat tahun.
- Umur Agus sembilan tahun.

- c Yang sulung berumur tiga tahun.
d Umur cucunya lima tahun.

- The use of umur is similar in construction to the use of nama in Nama saya..., My name is... As with umur there is an alternative way to give someone's name in Indonesian which uses a verb bernama – to be called.

Nama saya Ratna. My name's Ratna.
Saya bernama Ratna. I am called Ratna.

It is easy to see that both verbs, berumur and bernama, are formed from umur and nama respectively. This is a common feature of Indonesian which we will look at in more depth in a later unit.

10 Dulu means formerly but it can also function as a tense marker to indicate used to as in She used to be a teacher. Dulu dia seorang guru. Dulu can occur first in the sentence or after the subject of the sentence:

Dulu kami tinggal di Surabaya.

We used to live in Surabaya.

Dulu dia miskin.

She used to be poor.

Kami dulu sering kencan di tempat ini.

We often used to go dating in this place.

miskin	poor
sering	often

kencan to go dating

11 The other tense marker you have met in this unit is akan which always indicates a future action or event. Unlike dulu it is used purely as a tense marker and translates will, shall and to be going to... in English:

Meréka akan pergi ke suatu tempat.

They will go somewhere.

Tuti akan menjemput nénék. Tuti will pick grandma up.

suatu tempat	somewhere
---------------------	------------------

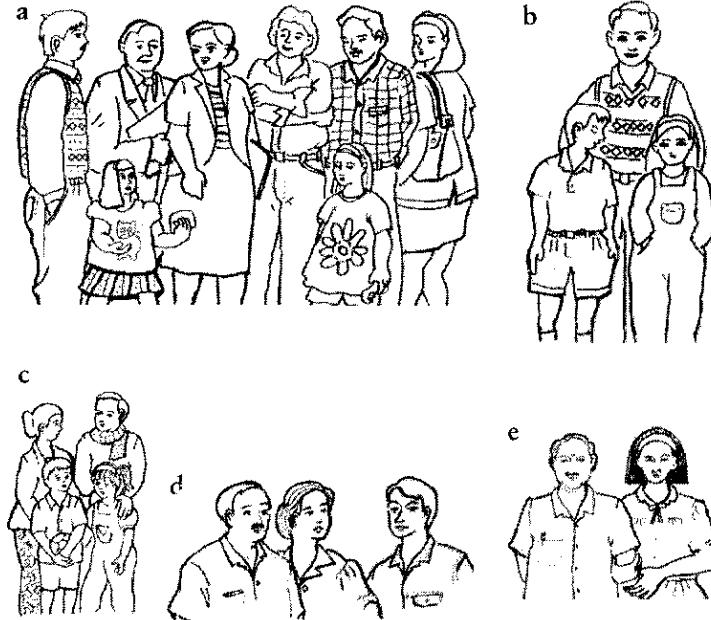

menjemput	to pick up
------------------	-------------------

Exercise 10 First familiarize yourself with the vocabulary. Look at the five pictures of families (a–e), and choose which picture fits with what each person (1–5) says about his or her family. If you are not using the recording, turn to page 264 and treat this as a reading exercise.

- Reza Nék, ini teman saya Mark. Dia akan tinggal dengan kita di sini beberapa hari.
Nénék Selamat datang, Nak Mark. Saya sudah siapkan kamar.
Mark Terima kasih. Jangan répot-répot.
Nénék Tidak apa-apa. Saya punya banyak kamar karena saya punya tujuh anak. Tapi sekarang anak-anak saya sudah kawin semua. Saya tinggal sendiri dengan pembantu. Kamar-kamar tidur di sini banyak yang kosong.
Mark Berapa kamar tidur nénék punya?
Nénék Lima kamar tidur. Kamar tidur saya paling besar. Dulu saya dan suami tidur di sini, tapi dia sudah meninggal dua tahun yang lalu.

- Grandmother Welcome, young Mark. I already prepared a room (for you).
- Mark Thank you. Don't trouble yourself too much.

- Mark How many bedrooms do you have?
- Grandmother Seven. My bedroom is the biggest. My husband and I used to sleep there but he died two years ago. Whose room is this?
- Mark This is my eldest son's room. By the way, Reza will show you round the other rooms. Make yourself at home. Don't be shy.
- Reza Don't worry, Grandma. Come on, Mark, follow me. We'll start from the back (of the house). This is the kitchen and next to the kitchen is the dining room. And then, after the dining room is the living room. Whose books are those?

- Reza (That's) very interesting.
- Mark I hope you (will) feel at home here.

How the language works 2

1 anak-anak, children, buku-buku, books.

- When we talk about something being plural we mean that we are talking about more than one thing. In English we usually indicate a plural by adding -s or -es to the singular form, bus, buses etc. In Indonesian, the noun is simply doubled to create a plural.

orang	person
orang-orang	people

- If you need to make a plural of a noun that is modified by another noun (see Unit 2) note that only the main noun is doubled:

rak buku	book shelf
rak-rak buku	book shelves

- Having said that, plural forms are nowhere near as common in Indonesian as they are in English. In fact, plurals are only really used in Indonesian when it is not obvious from the context that more than one thing is intended. Thus, if you use a number or a word that indicates a quantity, you do not need to double the noun:

empat orang	four people
banyak anak	a lot of children

This also applies to berapa. Where we always use a plural in English when we ask How many? you only need to use the singular form in Indonesian:

Berapa orang? How many people?

Exercise 11 Rewrite these sentences making the plural form of the word indicated in brackets. When doing this exercise, pay attention to the meaning of the sentence. Do you need to double the noun or can you leave it as it is? Could the sentence be ambiguous if you do not use a double plural? Where you decide to use double plurals, indicate what the sentence would mean had you not doubled the noun.

- (Anak) meréka pergi ke sekolah di désa itu.
- Saya mempunyai empat (saudara perempuan).
- Berapa (buku) yang anda pinjam?
- Apa kamu suka (film) Stephen Spielberg?
- Di mana (tas) saya?

2 As with who? in English, siapa combines with other words to form questions such as:

who from?	dari siapa?
who for?	untuk siapa?
who to?	kepada siapa?
who with?	dengan siapa?

However, as with ke mana? and dari mana? (Unit 3), the main difference in usage is that the components of the Indonesian questions cannot be separated. For example, in modern English it is usual to say Who did he do it for? or Who did you go with?, splitting the two parts of the question. The Indonesian questions, however, follow the pattern of older hyper-perfect English forms (For whom did he do it?, With whom did you go?). Thinking of these questions in this way will help you greatly in formulating this type of question in Indonesian. Compare the following.

Dari siapa surat ini?	Who is this letter from?
Dengan siapa meréka berolahraga?	Who do they do sports with?
Untuk siapa kita masak?	Who do we cook for?
Kepada siapa kamu menulis surat?	Who did you write the letter to? berolahraga to do sports

masak to cook

Exercise 12 Add untuk siapa, dari siapa, kepada siapa and dengan siapa to complete the following questions (use each question only once):

- a ____ meréka pergi ke pesta?
- b ____ bingkisan ini?
- c ____ kita menyanyi?
- d ____ kami mengirim surat?

bingkisan present, parcel

In the same way, certain other questions can be formed with apa:

what with?	dengan apa?
what for?	untuk apa?

Again, the two components cannot be separated, and they correspond to the English forms with what? and for what?:

Kamu sedang menulis dengan apa?

Kamu memanaskan makanan dengan apa?
Dengan apa kita membayarnya?
Untuk apa kita datang ke sini?

Uang ini untuk apa?

What are you writing with?

What do you heat the meal with?

What do we pay for it with?
What did we come here for?

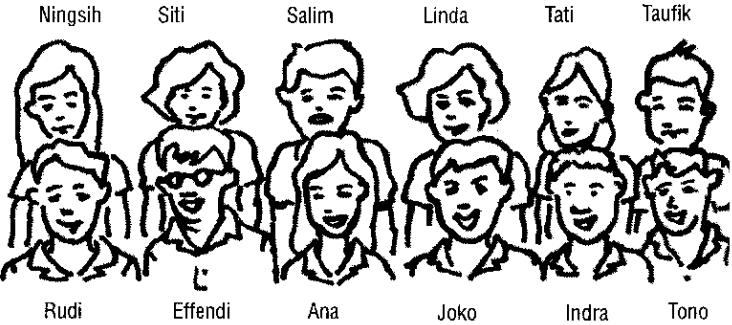

What is this money for?

memanaskan to heat

makanan food

- d Siapa anak laki-laki di antara Rudi dan Ana?
- e Siapa anak laki-laki di belakang Joko?

Exercise 16 Over to you!

You (B) are on vacation in Indonesia and your friend has invited you to stay with her family. When you arrive at your friend's house, you find that dinner has been prepared and you waste no time in getting to know your friend's mother (A) who is eager to find out more about you!

- Saya sudah siapkan makanan untuk kamu. Jangan malu malu!
- Thank you. Don't trouble yourself too much.
- Apa kamu sudah berkeluarga?
- Yes, I am. I have two children.
- Berapa umur meréka?
- The first is seven and the second is four.
- Ini kamar kamu, di dalamnya ada kamar mandi.
- Where is the kitchen?
- Di belakang dekat ruang makan. Anggap saja rumah sendiri.
- Thank you. Whose room is that?
- Ini kamar saya. Mudah-mudahan kamu betah tinggal di sini.

mudah-mudahan hopefully

B Bathing facilities

Most Indonesian houses and very small hotels are not equipped with western style bathing and toilet facilities.

In the kamar mandi which means bathroom (kamar, room, mandi, to bathe) you will find a bak, a large vessel filled with cold water which you pour over yourself with the help of a pail that is usually on hand. Although the western image may be somewhat different, this is what Indonesians mean when they say they are going to take a shower! You should not get into the bak even though some may be big enough to climb into, neither should you contaminate the water with soap, as others have to use water from the same receptacle.

Some houses may have a traditional toilet that is nothing like a western toilet. It is more like a hole in the ground that you must squat over in order to use! Hygienic it may be, but it is surely one of the cultural differences that western visitors to Indonesia will find least comfortable to adapt to. The shape of the toilet will indicate where your feet should be placed for accurate aim.

Indonesians are very thorough when it comes to cleaning themselves after using the toilet. Paper alone will not do! You are expected to wash yourself thoroughly with water from a bak which will most likely be next to the toilet, by means of a hand pail or even a separate shower. If you have ever used an Indonesian toilet and you were wondering what the shower on the wall next to the toilet was for...

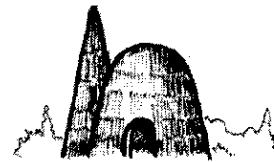

One final (but vital) note on the subject of toilets in Indonesia. If you use a public toilet, it is wise to take your own paper with you as it is often not provided.

i Arabic greetings

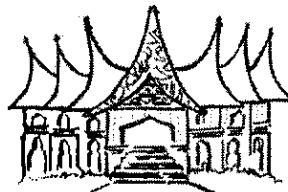

As Indonesia is essentially a Muslim country, the traditional Arabic greetings Assalamualaikum which means Peace be upon you, and to which the reply is Waalaikum salam, which means Peace be upon you too, is often used. You may find it useful when visiting a Muslim Indonesian family at their home, or even as a greeting on the telephone.

How the language works 1

1 To express the existence of something in Indonesian you only need to use one word, ada. This translates both there is and there are in English:

Ada air mancur di pusat kota.	There is a fountain in the city centre
Ada bunga-bunga di taman itu.	There are flowers in that garden

To ask about the existence of something you can simply use apa ada...?:

Apa ada kantor polisi di sini?	Is there a police station here?
Apa ada penerbangan yang murah?	Are there (any) cheap flights?

Finally, as ada is a verb, it is negated with tidak. It translates there is no and there are no/there aren't any:

Tidak ada margarin di lemari es.	There is no margarine in the fridge.
Tidak ada ikan di sungai ini.	There aren't any fish in this river.

(Note: As with berapa and other quantity words, you do not need to indicate plurals when using tidak ada as we do with the English equivalent.)

Tidak ada bunga.	There aren't any flowers.
-------------------------	----------------------------------

air mancur	fountain bunga-bunga	flowers kantor polisi	police station
margarin	margarine

Exercise 1 Form the following sentences in Indonesian.

- a There is a souvenir shop.
- b There are some traditional restaurants.
- c There aren't any hotels.
- d Is there any information?
- e Is there a sports centre?
- f There isn't an art gallery.

toko cinderamata tradisional	souvenir shop traditional pusat kegiatan olahraga balai kesenian	sports centre art gallery

2 More on using yang. When a noun is described by two or more adjectives in English we simply list them in order before the noun, as in a beautiful, friendly flight attendant and large, romantic restaurants. Notice how these phrases are represented in Indonesian in the dialogue: pramugari yang ramah dan cantik and rumah makan yang besar dan romantis. You will notice that the two adjectives, which still follow the noun, are separated by yang and dan so you end up with phrases that more literally translate as a flight attendant who is beautiful and friendly and restaurants which are large and romantic.

From this you can see that the pattern is:

noun	yang	first adjective	dan	second adjective
kota	yang	damai	dan	indah
a peaceful, beautiful city
pesta	yang	meriah	dan	ramai
a lively, crowded party

If you need to have three adjectives to describe the same noun (as in) a friendly, beautiful, slim flight attendant or large, romantic, cheap restaurants you simply place two of the adjectives together after the yang and the third after the dan.

pramugari yang ramah, cantik	dan	langsing
rumah makan yang besar	, romantis	dan

In theory, if you want to add even more adjectives to describe one noun you can amass all but one in between the yang and dan being sure to leave one to place after the dan.

Sepuluh, as you know, means ten, but it also means one ten. The se- only indicates something in the singular or to do with the number one.

As the -teens were formed with -belas, the -ties, that is twenty, thirty, forty etc. are formed with puluh. Thus:

dua puluh	twenty tiga puluh	thirty
empat puluh	forty etc.

Note that to make compound numbers you use the same pattern as in English, i.e. take forty, empat puluh, and add one, satu, making empat puluh satu, forty-one.

Exercise 3 Can you form these numbers?

- a 54
- b 78
- c 81
- d 99

There are two ways of telling the time in Indonesian, as in English. To answer the question Jam berapa?, What time is it?, you always start with jam in the reply.

To express the o'clock start with jam and add the number for the hour to it:

Jam satu.	It's one o'clock.
Jam lima.	It's five o'clock.

It is important to know that jam + number for the hour forms the basis for telling the time in Indonesian. Minutes past and to the hour come after this base.

To express minutes past the hour use léwat or lebih. Look at the following examples. Remember that time phrases always start with jam and the minutes past or to come after.

Jam dua léwat sepuluh.	It's ten past two.
Jam empat léwat lima belas.	It's 15 minutes past four.

Minutes to the hour is expressed by kurang:

Jam sembilan kurang sepuluh.	It's ten to nine.
Jam delapan kurang lima.	It's five to eight

Quarter past and quarter to can also be expressed using seperempat which means quarter. Quarter past is léwat seperempat (or lebih seperempat) and quarter to is kurang seperempat:

You might find it useful to think of it in the same way we list adjectives in English:

She was beautiful, charming, lovable, honest and cute.

A final, but important point to note is that this rule applies to true adjectives only and not to nouns or verbs acting as adjectives (refer back to Unit 2):

rumah makan Indonesia	romantic, excellent, cheap yang romantis, unik dan murah	Indonesian restaurants

damai	peaceful indah	beautiful (of places) meriah	lively ramai	crowded langsing	slim
unik	unique/excellent*

*Note: Although unik has the same meaning as in English, it has also come to refer to something excellent which is not necessarily unique.

Exercise 2 How would you say:

- a a long, boring film
- b keen, clever children
- c a long, tiring journey
- d a lively, crowded, expensive holiday resort
- e a big, comfortable, stylish room?

panjang	long membosankan	boring antusias	enthusiastic, keen pandai	clever perjalanan	journey tempat beristirahat	holiday resort mahal	expensive modern	stylish

3 Telling the time. First, you will need numbers up to 60, although if you have learnt numbers 1 to 10 from the last unit, it is very easy to form numbers up to 99.

Jam tiga lewat seperempat. It's quarter past three.
Jam tiga kurang seperempat. It's quarter to three.

Half past is expressed using setengah meaning half but care needs to be taken when using this, as it is thought of as half to the next hour. Therefore, what we think of as half past six in English must be rendered as half to seven in Indonesian! Moreover, with setengah only, the pattern changes with setengah occurring before the hour:

Jam setengah tujuh. It's half past six.
Jam setengah sembilan. It's half past eight.

Exercise 4 Write the following times in Indonesian.

- a It's seven o'clock.
- b It's half past four.
- c It's 9.45.
- d It's quarter past ten.
- e It's quarter to two.

As in English, you can also tell the time simply by using a number from 1 to 59 after the hour.

Jam enam tiga puluh lima = 6.35

Note also that oh as in ten oh five is expressed using kosong.

Jam sepuluh kosong lima = 10.05

a.m. can be expressed by adding pagi and siang and p.m. can be expressed by adding soré or malam after the time. Which one you use will depend on the way the day is divided according to Indonesian ways. (Refer to Unit 1 for specific details of each time frame.)

Résépsi pernikahan mulai jam 10 pagi.	The wedding reception starts at 10 a.m.
Pesawat dari Sydney mendarat jam 6 soré.	The aircraft from Sydney lands at 6 p.m.
Pertunjukan berakhir jam 11 malam.	The show finishes at 11 p.m.
Dia selalu pergi ke kantor jam 6.30 pagi.	He always goes to work at 6.30 a.m.

résépsi pernikahan pesawat	reception wedding aircraft	berakhir selalu	to finish always
----------------------------------	----------------------------------	--------------------	---------------------

The 24-hour clock is used in Indonesian with more frequency than you might expect to find in your home country. You will see it used on invitations and in TV programme listings etc. It is formed exactly as in English, with 18.20, for example, being expressed as eighteen twenty:

Pesawat Garuda ke London The Garuda flight to London akan lepas landas pada jam will take off at 18.20. delapan belas dua puluh.

Berita terakhir di TV adalah The last news on TV is at jam dua puluh satu tiga 21.30. puluh.

lepas landas berita	to take off news	terakhir	the last
------------------------	---------------------	----------	----------

► The days of the week in Indonesian are as follows:

Senin	Monday
Selasa	Tuesday
Rabu	Wednesday
Kamis	Thursday
Jumat	Friday
Sabtu	Saturday
Minggu	Sunday

You can use the days of the week as they stand, but colloquially, Indonesians prefer to express them by adding each to hari which means day. So they say:

hari Senin	Monday
hari Selasa	Tuesday
hari Rabu	Wednesday etc.
Hari ini hari apa?	What day is it today?
Hari ini hari Senin.	Today is Monday.
Kemarin hari apa?	What day was it yesterday?
Kemarin hari Minggu.	Yesterday was Sunday.
Bésok hari apa?	What day is it tomorrow?
Bésok hari Selasa.	Tomorrow is Tuesday.
Lusa hari apa?	What day is it the day after tomorrow?
Lusa hari Rabu.	The day after tomorrow is Wednesday.

hari ini lusa dua hari yang lalu	today the day after tomorrow the day before yesterday
--	---

Exercise 5 Answer the questions using short sentences as in the examples just given.

- a Kemarin hari Kamis. Hari ini hari apa?
- b Hari ini hari Rabu. Besok hari apa?
- c Dua hari yang lalu Senin. Lusa hari apa?
- d Lusa hari Jumat. Besok hari apa?

To say on a certain day of the week Indonesian uses pada. Note that you must include hari if you use pada. Thus: pada hari Selasa, on Tuesday.

In spoken Indonesian, however, pada is almost always omitted, so hari Selasa can also mean on Tuesday.

When you ask the question On what day? you can say either pada hari apa? or just hari apa?

Hari apa dia datang? On what day is he coming?

5 Apa yang dapat kami lihat. Under certain circumstances, when you want to ask what?, it is necessary to insert yang after the question word apa, creating the question form apa yang? When you are going to make a sentence in Indonesian using apa, where we use what?, ask yourself whether you can replace what with the phrase What is it that...?, for example, What (is it that) we can do there? and this will show you whether yang needs to be inserted.

Look at the following examples:

Apa yang boléh saya lakukan What may I do in that place?
di tempat itu?

Apa yang bisa meréka buat What can they do for us?
untuk kita?

Apa yang sedang dia tulis What is she writing now?
sekarang?

buat to do

You may also notice that an inversion occurs with kami dapat becoming dapat kami. This is because a verb should directly follow yang. Although some speakers do not adhere to this rule, it is bad form not to do so.

In the same way, siapa may also be followed by yang. The question form siapa yang is used when Who? is followed by a verb, for instance, when you want to ask, Who lives here? You cannot use siapa alone in this type of question.

As with apa yang it may also help if you consider whether Who? can be replaced by Who is it that...? Who (is it that) speaks French?

Look at these examples:

Siapa yang punya peta Dénpasar? Who has a map of Denpasar?

Siapa yang mengarang buku itu? Who wrote that book?

Siapa yang mau mendaki gunung besok? Who wants to go mountain climbing tomorrow?

peta	map mengarang	to write, compose mendaki	climb
gunung	mountain

6 When you make part-sentences such as The man who sells fruit and The building which is behind the museum the parts of the sentences in bold are both rendered by yang in Indonesian:

Orang yang menjual buah-buahan ayah saya.

Gedung yang terletak di belakang musium, kedutaan besar.

The man who sells fruit is my father.

*The building which is located behind the museum is the embassy.

*Notice the comma in the Indonesian sentence. It indicates a slight pause that you need to take when saying this sentence. Can you spot the reason? musium kedutaan besar without the pause means the embassy museum! This leaves what appears to be an unfinished sentence – The building which is located behind the embassy museum... Remember that is is not usually translated in Indonesian. Remember also that we commonly drop words such as which and who in spoken English, so you may need to bear this in mind when creating Indonesian sentences, as the yang will always be needed in such sentences. The cake you bought should really be The cake which you bought. Thinking of it in this way will indicate that you need yang in Indonesian: Kué yang kamu membeli.

kedutaan besar embassy

Exercise 6 Try writing these part-sentences in Indonesian.

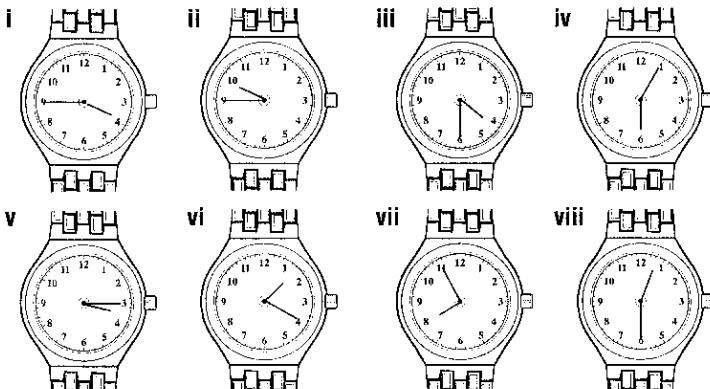

- a the house he built
- b the town we visited
- c the girl who used to work here

Understanding IndonesianExercise 7 Read or listen to the dialogue again and say whether these statements are true or false.

- a Jamilah mau informasi tentang Yogyakarta.
- b Ada pertunjukan kecak dan tari-tarian setiap hari Selasa jam setengah sembilan malam.
- c Orang tua Calvin ingin bernostalgia di rumah makan.
- d Ada pakét wisata yang murah bagus dan termasuk makan.
- e Biro perjalanan tutup jam enam sore.

Exercise 8 Look at the times on the clocks and match them to the correct times:

- a jam setengah lima
- b jam empat kurang seperempat
- c jam tujuh lima puluh lima
- d jam satu dua puluh
- e jam enam belas kosong lima
- f jam setengah satu
- g jam sembilan lewat empat puluh lima
- h jam tiga lebih seperempat kosong zero, 'oh' (with numbers)

PART TWODialogue

Reza and Mark are in a tourist information centre in Jakarta asking about things to do.

How the language works 2

1 To say what + noun, as in what day? or what flight? Indonesian uses apa, but with this meaning, apa follows the noun it refers to. For example:

hari apa	what day? penerbangan apa ?	what flight?
Rumah apa ini? Ini rumah makan.	What room is this? It's the dining room.

Exercise 9 How would you say:

- a What flower is this?
- b What programme is that?
- c What language is this?

2 Lagi is a useful word with various uses in Indonesian, two of which we will look at here.

- With a positive statement or question, lagi means further, more or again.

Apa lagi ?	What else?
Silahkan ulangi itu lagi .	Please repeat that again.
Berapa jam lagi kita menunggu?	How many more hours shall we wait?

Exercise 10 How would you say:

- a Do you want some more?
 - b I must take a bath again.
- With a negative statement or question, it means not... any more or not... any longer.

Dia bukan guru lagi .	She's not a teacher any more.
Dia bukan pacar saya lagi .	He is not my boyfriend any more.
Saya bukan pemilik perusahaan itu lagi .	I am not the owner of that company any more.

Exercise 11 What about these sentences:

- a She is not a dancer any more.
- b He is not rich any more.

kaya	rich
-------------	-------------

3 You will hear saja used a lot in everyday Indonesian speech. While it really means only or just, as in Saya mau satu saja, I want just one, it is very frequently used for emphasis. We often do the same in English using just for instance in the question Just what do you want? In the dialogue, Mark says Apa saja yang bisa kami lihat? The meaning is Just what can we see there?

However, saja used for emphasis does not always correspond to just in English. It is used in a variety of expressions, such as Kalau saja...! If only...!

Kalau saja kita tiba tepat pada waktunya!	If only we had arrived on time!

Other examples:

Ke mana saja kamu selama ini?	Just where have you been all this time?
Siapa saja yang datang ke pesta?	Just who came to that party?

tepata pada waktunya	on time selama ini	all this time
pesta	party

Baru saja is a tense marker that is used to express have just done something:

Dia baru saja bangun.	She has just woken up.
Saya baru saja menyelesaikan PR.	I have just finished my homework.

bangun	to wake up menyelesaikan	to finish
PR, pekerjaan rumah	homework

Exercise 12 How would you write these sentences in Indonesian?

- a He has just arrived.
- b We have just had dinner.

tiba	arrive
makan malam	to have dinner

4 Terima kasih atas..., Thank you for... Notice that when you express thanks for something in Indonesian, for is rendered by atas and not by untuk, as you might expect:

Terima kasih atas bantuannya. Thanks for the help.

Using IndonesianExercise 13 Reconstruct these sentences so that they make sense starting with the word in bold in each case.

- a hari Minggu – kami – Ciater – ke – akan – pergi – pada
- b ada – air panas – kolam renang – dan lain lain – rumah makan – di Ciater
- c pusat kota – dari – memakan waktu – jam – dua – ke sana kolam renang	swimming pool dan lain lain	and so on

memakan waktu	take time

Exercise 14 Read the schedule Mr Knight's secretary made for him, then answer the questions below in Indonesian.

Senin	10.15	janji dengan Bapak Habibie
	11.00	mengambil tiket
	14.40	janji dengan Bapak Rustam
Selasa	15.45	ke bandara / berangkat ke Surabaya dengan Garuda
Rabu	12.10	makan siang dengan Ibu Fraulina
Kamis	09.25	menjemput Bapak Knight dari Surabaya
Friday	08.30	rapat karyawan

janji	appointment menjemput	to pick up

- a Jam berapa kamu harus mengambil tiket?
- b Jam berapa ada janji dengan Bapak Rustam?
- c Jam berapa Bapak Knight makan siang dengan Ibu Fraulina?
- d Hari apa Bapak Knight pulang dari Surabaya?
- e Jam berapa ada rapat karyawan?

Exercise 15 Over to you!

Something for everyone!

There is something for every type of tourist in Indonesia. Bali is the place to go for sun, sea, surf and nightlife but if you are more adventurous, Indonesia can offer you a wealth of unforgettable experiences. Each of the main islands is distinctly different from the others, both in culture and religion. The main religion of Indonesia is Islam, with about 90% of Java, the most populated island and home to the capital Jakarta, being Muslim. In fact, Indonesia is the largest Muslim country in the world outside the Arabian peninsula. Whatever the religion, be it Muslim, Hindu, Buddhist or Christian, the Indonesians co-exist peacefully often with places of worship for the various religions existing side by side.

For the nature lover, Indonesia can offer a wealth of exotic flora and fauna. Indonesia boasts the second largest rainforest in the world, which is home to thousands of species of birds, mammals, trees and orchids, many of which are unique to Indonesia. If Indonesia can boast only the second largest rainforest in the world, it can boast the biggest and the best of much else! The islands of Indonesia make up the largest archipelago in the world; Indonesia is the most volcanic country on the planet with 70 of its 400 or so volcanos still active, including the infamous Krakatau (Krakatoa); it is home to more species of mammal than any other country in the world; Yogyakarta is the site of the biggest Buddhist temple in the world, Borobudur. Sumatra is home to the biggest flower in the world, known in Indonesian as bunga bangkai, carcass flower, owing to the highly unpleasant smell the flower emits when in bloom. You can see (and smell) the flower at the Kebun Raya (Botanical Gardens) in Bogor. Another world's biggest also hails from Indonesia, this time from the island of Komodo. The largest lizards in the world, known as the Komodo, can grow up to three metres in length. This has earned them the apt name of Komodo Dragon in English!

Learning tip

Indonesian does not have the same enormous base to draw vocabulary from that English does. This often means that concepts are expressed more literally than in English, for example, tempat means place and tidur means to sleep. Combined, tempat tidur means place to sleep i.e. bed. Similarly rumah means house and makan means to eat so rumah makan means eating house, i.e. restaurant. This does not mean that Indonesian is not a poetic language. It can be that too, for example, matahari meaning sun literally means the eye of the day.

Look at the meanings of the following words and then see if you can give the English equivalents of the vocabulary created from the combined words.

sakit	ill	kebun	garden air	water	binatang	animal panas	hot	minyak	oil mancur	to squirt	wangi	fragrant

- a rumah sakit
- b air panas
- c air mata
- d air mancur
- e kebun binatang
- f minyak wangi

How the language works 1

1 When dealing with numbers we came across se- prefixed to numbers that indicated one such as seratus, one hundred and seribu, one thousand.

A further but very common usage of the se- prefix with nouns is to indicate the same, for example, sekantor, the same office:

Kami bekerja sekantor. We work in the same office.

(Note that with this type of usage di, in, is not required.)

Exercise 1 Use another two important similar expressions: sekelas, in the same class, and seumur, to be the same age to make these two sentences:

- a Kami ujian _____. We have a test in the same class.
 b Dia _____ dengan saya. She is the same age as me.

ujian test / exam

Se- can also mean all or the whole (of):

Saya ingin mengundang I would like to invite you and bapak sekeluarga ke pesta. all your family to a party.

It is best to learn the words from this section as set expressions.

2 a Boléh can be used when accepting an offer or an invitation:

Bagaimana kalau kita Shall we go to the cinema ke bioskop nanti malam? tonight?
Boléh! Sure!

Note that Bakaimana kalau, literally What if ...?, is often used to make a suggestion, where it means something like How about ...? So the question above, put more literally, would be How about we go to the cinema tonight?

b It is also used in making polite requests where we use may or can in English. For example, we might say May I use this? or Can I use this? This usage of can should be distinguished from bisa in Indonesian. While bisa can be used in making simple requests, it is more polite to use boleh, especially if you are asking for permission. Therefore boleh carries the meaning of to have permission to.

Boléh saya menggunakan May I use that? itu?

Boléh kami parkir di sini? May we park here?

Exercise 2 How would you say the following?

- a May I open the window?
 b May we smoke?
 c May I turn on the radio?

buka	to open
jendéla	window
merokok	to smoke

hidupkan	to turn on radio	radio

c Question words such as boleh and bisa can be made more formal by the addition of -kah: bolehkah, bisakah. Nowadays, this form is almost entirely confined to written Indonesian, but it may also be used in speech on especially formal occasions.

Bisakah anda menjelaskan Could you explain that masalah itu?

menjelaskan to explain masalah problem

d Boléh followed by jadi means maybe or likely, as in:

Boléh jadi dia akan datang It's likely he'll come pada hari Selasa.

3 To ask why? in Indonesian use kenapa? or mengapa? They both mean why? but kenapa? is the form widely used in conversation. Mengapa? is preferred in writing.

Unlike other question words, which may appear in various positions, these question words can only occur at the beginning of the sentence.

Kenapa dia marah?	Why is he angry?
Kenapa mobil itu berhenti?	Why did that car stop?
Kenapa kamu tidak minum?	Why don't you drink?
Kenapa meréka tertawa?	Why are they laughing?
Kenapa kamu tidak menélpon?	Why don't you call?

tertawa laugh

Of course, to answer this question you will need the word karena which means because.

It can be used just like because in English as the answer to kenapa? (mengapa?):

Kenapa kamu tidak mampir ke tempat tinggal saya kemarin? Karena saya sibuk.	Why didn't you come over to my place yesterday? Because I was busy.
Mengapa dia sedih? Karena dia baru saja putus dengan pacarnya.	Why is she sad? Because she has just broken up with her boyfriend.

mampir	to come over (to a place) tempat tinggal	place (where someone lives) sedih	sad
putus	to break up

Karena can also be used independently as in:

Karena sibuk dia lupa Because he was busy, he forgot to phone his wife.

4 Sampaikan salam saya untuk meréka, Give them my regards.
 Look at the way this useful phrase is structured in Indonesian.
 Sampaikan salam, pass greetings, saya, of me, untuk meréka, to them. (Note that untuk, for, is used in the Indonesian version.)

Exercise 3 How would you say...

- a Give her my regards.
- b Give Sue our regards.
- c Give them our regards.
- d Give them regards from me and my family.

5 An introduction to word bases. English has a vast vocabulary. This is due, in part, to the fact that the vocabulary of English makes use of root words from several different languages. This often means that parts of speech (i.e. nouns, verbs, adjectives etc.) referring to related concepts bear no relation to one another. Indonesian vocabulary, by way of contrast, tends to build related words, or words that relate to a single topic area, around the same root.

Compare the Indonesian with the English in the following words, all related to the topic of teaching and learning. Note the ever-present base ajar in the Indonesian and no similar roots in the English translations we have used to illustrate this vital difference between the two languages.

belajar	to learn mengajar	to teach pelajar	student pelajaran	lesson pengajar	instructor terpelajar	educated

To describe how words are built up in Indonesian we will regularly be referring to three basic concepts:

- prefix – this is a bit added to the beginning of a word, such as the im- in impossible in English.

- suffix – this is a bit added on to the end of a word. You have already come across the Indonesian possessive -mu (Unit 2) and -nya (Unit 5).
- base word – this is the word in its simplest form to which prefixes or suffixes may be added. A base word may be a noun, a verb or an adjective. (These may be called root words in some textbooks or dictionaries.)

A prefix or a suffix, or a combination of both, added to a base word can create related vocabulary. There is often a pattern whereby a specific prefix or suffix creates a new and particular part of speech. This happens in English too. For example, some verbs, with the suffix -ion added, create a related noun, the meaning of which is derived from the verb. For example, to suggest is the verb, but when we add -ion we end up with the noun suggestion. In Indonesian, the addition of prefixes and suffixes to base words is an integral part of how the vocabulary is built up, and there is often a definite pattern to the resulting words created.

An ability to see how words are built up from their bases will not only help you learn related vocabulary more easily, but it will also give you a better chance of deducing the meaning of new words you may come across. At this stage it is better just to notice how the prefixes and suffixes affect the base word. You will soon begin to get a feel for the patterns in which prefixes and suffixes modify the base and create a word with a separate meaning.

From now on, base words are included next to modified words in the vocabulary sections. They appear in brackets followed by n, v and a to indicate whether the base word is a noun, verb or adjective. Base words from all units appear in the vocabulary list in a similar fashion.

- Mark Of course. I want to drink wine and look for a girlfriend.
- Reza Yes, kill two birds with one stone
- Mark Where there's sugar there are ants.

- Reza I don't know. But I guess they're not. Don't worry. He will treat us.

- Mark What kind of music do they have there?
- Reza Many different kinds. They have live music with singers from abroad.
- Mark Really?
- Reza That's right. You must dress well.

How the language works 2

1 bertiga, three of us. From two onwards, you can specify a group by prefixing the number with ber:

dua	two	berdua	as a pair
empat	four	berempat	in a group of four

In English, when we say in a group of three or the four of them etc., we usually only include the number for a specific purpose, such as to stress the number of people in the group. Otherwise we normally just say together. Indonesian, however, tends always to be specific in this situation, as long as the group is small and, of course, as long as you know how many people are in the group. These ber- + number words are usually used with a pronoun, as in the following examples:

Meréka selalu bertiga.	They are always together (the three of them).
Kami berdua pergi berlibur ke danau Toba di Sumatra Utara.	The two of us went on holiday to Lake Toba in North Sumatra.
Meréka berlima keluar untuk makan malam di rumah makan yang baru di pusat kota.	The five of them went out for dinner to that new restaurant in the town centre.

Exercise 6

See if you can form these sentences:

- a They came together (in a pair).
- b The three of us are good friends.
- c The ten of us climbed Mount Salak.

bersahabat (sahabat, n)	to be friends bersahabat dengan baik	to be good friends mendaki (daki, v)	to climb
Gunung Salak	Mount Salak

If you know the number in the group you should try and be specific by using language such as that just discussed. If you do not know the number, you can use bersama-sama to mean together:

Meréka selalu bersama-sama. They are always together.
Meréka makan malam bersama-sama. They have dinner together.

If you want to express together with use bersama dengan:

Saya bersama dengan dia berenang di pantai.	I swim together with him at the beach.
Ibu itu bersama dengan anak-anaknya bekerja keras.	That woman, together with her children, works hard.

2 Months of the year

Januari	January
Fébruari	February
Maret	March

April	April
Méi	May
Juni	June
Juli	July
Agustus	August
Séptember	September
Október	October
Novémber	November
Désémber	December

In the same way hari is used with days of the week, bulan which means month (and also means moon) occurs before the name of the month when you wish to express in + month, which also uses pada:

pada bulan Méi in May

In speech, however, it is common to drop the pada when the meaning is understood, so bulan Mei can also mean in May.

3 Verb + -an. Many nouns ending in -an are created from verb base words. Their meaning is closely related to the verb they come from.

pakai	to wear
pakaian	clothes
makan	to eat
makanan	food

Exercise 7 Note the meanings of the verb bases in the left-hand column. Look at the nouns created from the respective verbs in the right-hand column and see if you can deduce the meanings:

a minum	to drink
b jawab	to reply
c main	to play
d pilih	to choose e beli	to buy f hibur	to entertain
g kerja	to work
h pikir	to think minuman jawaban mainan pilihan belian hiburan kerjaan pikiran

A few noun bases and verb bases also have the suffix -an applied to them, which makes other nouns, although the meaning created by the suffix is not always as easy to see as with verb base -an nouns.

With noun bases the meaning of the suffixed noun tends to be an extension of the noun base:

laut	sea	lautan	ocean/seas gambar	picture	gambaran	description jalan	street	jalanan	road rambut	hair	rambutan	a type of hairy fruit
duri	thorn	durian	a kind of spiky fruit

With adjective bases the noun created reflects the quality expressed by the adjective:

kotor	dirty	kotoran	rubbish/trash manis	sweet	manisan	sweets
asam	sour	asaman	pickles

Exercise 9 Over to you!

Your new Indonesian acquaintance (A) has decided to invite you (B) out for dinner at the Hotel Mulia. Respond in Indonesian as indicated.

- A Saya ingin mengundang bapak beserta isteri untuk makan malam.
 B Thank you. When?
 A Bésok sekitar jam tujuh malam di hotel Mulia. Apa bapak dan ibu ada waktu?

- B I'm sorry, we are not used to it.
 A Jangan kuatir, saya akan pesan sari buah atau minuman tanpa alkohol.
 B Thank you! See you then.
 A Salam untuk ibu.

beserta together with sekitar around, about minuman beralkohol alcoholic drinks biasa used to (something) tanpa without

minuman tanpa alkohol alcohol-free drinks salam untuk say 'hi' to... (a more informal way of saying it) salam untuk ibu say 'hi' to your wife. (Note that in this context ibu is automatically taken to mean your wife.)

1 Invitations – Indonesian style

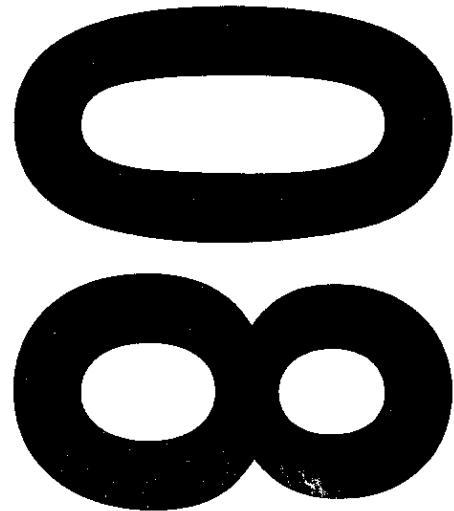

If you invite Indonesians out for a meal or other form of entertainment, they will assume that you intend to pay the bill. Similarly, if you are invited out by an Indonesian, he or she will expect to treat you.

An interesting quirk! In western countries we invite each other round for a coffee, when the goal is to socialize and chat. In Indonesia people are invited to each other's houses for a chat, Datanglah ke rumah saya, kita ngobrol-ngobrol even though you can count on coffee or tea or some other beverage being served!

Some Indonesians might invite you for rujakan which can also imply a chat. Rujak is a mixture of various kinds of raw fruit such as paw-paw, mango and pineapple that is accompanied by a sambal (a relish) made from chilli and brown sugar. Of course, while you are eating your rujak you are engaging in conversation too.

Note also that if you are invited to an Indonesian home it is a customary courtesy to take your shoes off before entering.

asking the way

PART ONE

Dialogue

Ken and his family finally decided to book a package tour offered by the travel agency. On the way to pick up the voucher, Ken gets lost and has to ask a passer-by for help.

- Ken Maaf Pak, numpang tanya? Di mana Biro perjalanan Anta Tour?
- Pejalan kaki Boléh saya tahu alamatnya? Di jalan apa?
- Ken Di Jalan Thamrin. Apa nama jalan ini?
- Pejalan kaki Oh ini namanya Jalan Sudirman.
- Ken Bagaimana menuju ke sana?
- Pejalan kaki Dekat sekali. Ambil jalan ini lurus saja, sampai ketemu lampu mérah, kemudian béllok kanan. Kira-kira 50 méter, ada hotél Mandarin. Biro perjalanan itu ada di sebelahnya.
- Ken Apa itu dekat bioskop?
- Pejalan kaki Tepat sekali, kantor itu ada di antara bioskop dan hotél Mandarin.
- Ken Terima kasih.

Passer-by Could you tell me the address? On what street?
Ken On Thamrin Street. What's the name of this street?
Passer-by It is called Sudirman Street.
Ken How can I get there?
Passer-by It is very near. Take this street, straight on until you find the traffic light, then turn right. About 50 metres, there is a hotel Mandarin. That agency is next to it.
Ken Is it close to the theatre?
Passer-by Exactly. That office is between the cinema and the hotel Mandarin.
Ken Thank you.

How the language works 1

1 When you need to ask for directions to a place in Indonesian, you can use di mana?, where is? or you could use the phrase Bagaimana menuju ke?

Di mana Monas?	Where's Monas?
Bagaimana menuju ke Monas?	How do I get to Monas?

If you need to stop a passer-by, after you have said Maaf, Excuse me, it is nice to start with the useful phrase Numpang tanya, May I ask you...

Exercise 1 Ask how to get to...

- a the Aryaduta Hotel
- b the airport
- c Cihampelas.

Understanding Indonesian

Exercise 2 Answer the following true/false questions based on the dialogue.

- Pejalan kaki Mau pergi ke mana?
Mark Saya mau pergi ke BIP di Jalan Dago. Bagaimana ke sana?
- Pejalan kaki Jauh sekali kalau berjalan kaki.
Mark Tidak apa-apa saya suka jalan kaki.
- Pejalan kaki Ikuti jalan ini, lurus saja sampai ketemu bundaran, lalu ambil bélakan pertama. Jalan terus sampai ke perempatan. BIP terletak setelah tiga bangunan dari perempatan.
- Mark Sulit saya untuk mengingatnya. Bisa kamu tunjukkan di peta ini?
- Pejalan kaki Mari saya lihat. Sekarang kamu berada di sini dan ini gedung yang kamu cari.

How the language works 2

1 Most Indonesian words beginning with ber- and me- are verbs. These prefixes can be applied to noun, adjective and verb bases.

When ber- and me- occur as prefixes to a verb base, they often have no particular function and express the same meaning as the verb base.

Some verbs of this type are:

- with ber-

berhenti	to stop	(from henti , to stop) berbelanja	to go shopping	(from belanja , to go shopping)
bertanya	to ask a question	(from tanya , to ask a question) bermain	to play	(from main , to play)
berenang	to swim	(from renang , to swim)

It is best to learn these verbs with the ber- prefix as a single unit as this is the form you will almost always use.

Note that there are some cases where, due to sound changes, ber- changes slightly.

Learn these two exceptions as they are common:

bekerja	to work	(from kerja , to work)
belajar	to learn	(from ajar , to learn)

- with me-

membeli	to buy	(from beli , to buy) melihat	to see	(from lihat , to see) mendengar	to hear	(from dengar , to hear) mencari	to look for	(from cari , to look for)

menjual	to sell	(from jual , to sell)

(The me- prefix creates certain sound changes which will be dealt with in a later unit.)

Some verb bases that are verbs in their own right occur with me- which creates a verb with a different meaning, usually related. Some common ones are:

menunggu	to expect	(from tunggu , to wait) meninggal	to die	(from tinggal , to stay or to live) mendatang	to approach	(from datang , to come) mendapat	to get	(from dapat , to be able)
membangun	to build	(from bangun , to wake up or to get up)

Care needs to be taken with a few verb bases as they can exist with either the ber- or the me- prefix which create verbs with different meanings. For example:

membuat to make berbuat to do (from buat, to make/do) mengajar to teach belajar to learn (from ajar, to teach/learn)

Body language

When you enter a foreign country you cannot escape entering that country's culture. No matter how good your intentions are, you may, without the proper advice, inadvertently end up creating embarrassing and even potentially volatile situations. If you are from the UK, you may have had the experience of talking to a foreigner who unwittingly uses a two-finger salute, probably just to buy two of something in a shop, and witnessed the problems that this can cause. Ignorance of certain aspects of Indonesian culture can create a problem of similar magnitude!

If you should need to point at anything, refrain from using your finger. Instead, you should use your thumb and, specifically, the thumb of your right hand. The left hand is traditionally associated with using a toilet so it is considered highly impolite to use it for anything concerning your interactions with other people. For example, you should not hail a taxi with your left hand, neither should you use it to pass something to someone. If you do use your left hand for something by mistake, it is best to acknowledge your mistake immediately by saying Maaf. This will show Indonesians that you respect their culture, which will be highly appreciated, even if you do happen to err.

It is also considered insulting to point at anything with your foot. This is because the feet are regarded as the lowest part of the body and as such should not be used for pointing. Note also, that if you are sitting on the floor, you should ensure that the soles of your feet are not outstretched towards someone as this also conveys a silent, but poignant, insult. As the feet are the lowest part of the body, the head is regarded as the highest part, which acts as a vessel for the soul. You should refrain from touching people on the head for this reason.

For westerners, the act of putting our hands on our hips or crossing our arms in front of our chest is an innocent one. Be warned, however, that in Indonesia this is interpreted as a sign of arrogance or anger. Either way it is regarded as highly impolite and will not serve you well.

If you have to cross someone's path, interrupting, say, a conversation between two people, the correct and polite way to do this is to say permisi, bow a little and make a slow upward cutting motion with your hand held vertically, thumb uppermost.

Point with the thumb of your right hand!

Jamilah	I'm sorry, I don't have enough money. Can I pay in dollars?
Shop assistant	Sorry, Madam, but we only accept rupiah. But across the road there is a bureau de change. Or you can change it at the bank next to that shop on the right.
Jamilah	Good, please keep my stuff (to one side). I'll come back later.
Jamilah	Good morning, can I change dollars into rupiah?
Clerk	Yes, what kind of dollars, Madam, US dollars?
Jamilah	No, New Zealand dollars. What's today's rate?
Clerk	It's one dollar to 4,552 rupiahs. How much do you want to change?
Jamilah	500 dollars. How much (is that) in rupiah?
Clerk	500 times 4,552. That's 2,276,000.
Jamilah	Please give it to me in 100,000 and then some 50,000 bills.
Clerk	Please count your money again.
Jamilah	Yes, it's correct. Thank you.

How the language works 1

1 When you are shopping in Indonesia you will need to know how to express and understand very high numbers. You already know that to form the -teens you follow the number by belas and to make the -ties you need to use puluhan.

It is just as simple to form hundreds, thousands and millions.

For hundreds use ratus:

dua ratus	two hundred lima ratus empat	five hundred and four

For thousands use ribu:

delapan ribu	eight thousand enam ribu empat ratus	six thousand four hundred dua belas	and twelve

For millions use juta:

empat juta	four million
tujuh juta empat ratus ribu	seven million four hundred thousand

Note that numbers that refer to one or a (as in one million or a million) are different and are formed with the prefix se- which means one.

seratus	one hundred seribu	one thousand
sejuta	one million

Exercise 1 Write the following numbers in words (note that where we separate parts of a big number with commas in English, Indonesian does the same thing using full stops):

- a 19.432
- b 2.865.714
- c 3.197
- d 8.600.111
- e 25.155.613

2 Years are formed in the same way as the numbers we have just looked at. They follow the word tahun which means year.

- 2003 tahun dua ribu tiga
- 1492 tahun empat belas sembilan puluh dua

In informal spoken language, years can be expressed in a slightly different way. The first two numbers are said as a normal number, but the last two are said separately. For example, if you want to express 1945, you would form this in Indonesian as nineteen, four, five:

- 1945 tahun sembilan belas empat lima
- 1492 tahun empat belas sembilan dua

As with days and weeks, pada can be used to express in with years, although it is not obligatory, furthermore, it is rarely used in spoken Indonesian.

3 In addition to meaning You're welcome and to come back kembali can also be used to mean to (do something) again. In this case it is placed directly after the verb it refers to.

Hitung kembali uang mu!	Count your money again!
Baca kembali perintahnya!	Read the instruction again!
Dia memeriksa kembali dompénya.	He checked his wallet again.

Guru mengingatkan kembali pekerjaan rumah. The teacher gave a further reminder about the homework.

perintah	instruction, command dompét	wallet
mengingatkan (ingat, v)	to remind

Exercise 2

How would you say:

- a to enrol again
- b to repeat again
- c to research again
- d to hit again?

mendaftar (daftar, n)	to enrol mengulangi (ulang, v)	to repeat meneliti (teliti, a)	to research, to examine carefully
memukul (pukul, n)	to hit

Adding the suffix -an to puluh, ratus, ribu and juta gives you tens, hundreds, thousands and millions:

Ratusan anak muda akan ambil bagian dalam perlombaan maraton amal.	Hundreds of young people will take part in the charity marathon.
Ribuan tikus besar menyerang sawah.	Thousands of rats attacked the rice field.

ambil bagian dalam perlombaan (lomba, n)	to take part in race perlombaan maraton amal	marathon charity menyerang (serang, n)	to attack
sawah	rice field

Understanding Indonesian

Exercise 3 Answer the following true/false questions based on the dialogue.

- b Penjaga toko hanya menerima uang tunai.
- c Jamilah akan kembali ke toko setelah menukar uang.
- d Bank ada di seberang jalan.

e Tempat tukar uang ada di samping kanan toko.

f Jamilah ingin menukar uang sebanyak 500 dolar Amérika.

penjaga toko	shop assistant tunai	cash setelah	after
sebanyak	as much as, to the tune of

Exercise 4 You are going to hear numbers being called out in a lottery game. Check off the numbers for each of the players as you hear them and note down who wins first, second and third by getting all four numbers. The empty card is for you to play. Choose four numbers between 1 and 100. Semoga suksés! (Good luck!)

- Clerk Can I help you, Sir?
- Mark Yes, I would like to change pound sterlin into rupiah. What's today's rate?
- Clerk 14,620. Today (the rate) is better than yesterday.
- Mark (I'm) so lucky. I want to change 30 pounds only.
- Clerk Well, the total is 438,600.
- Mark Wow! It's a lot of money. I can be a rich man.
- Clerk Do you want (it in) small or big money?
- Mark Please give (it to) me in 100,000 bills and the rest in small money.
- Clerk OK. This is all your money. Don't forget to count (it) again.

How the language works 2

1 So far we have seen how -nya is used to mean his or her. It is frequently used where we would use the or your in English in sentences such as:

Bagaimana penerbangannya? How was the flight? How was your flight?

Bagaimana kelasnya? How was the class? How was your class?

Ini kamusnya. This is the dictionary. This is your dictionary.

It is especially used in this way to refer back to something that has been previously mentioned or a situation that is understood by both speakers. In the first example, it could be that you are being met by someone at the airport who asks you how your flight was, knowing that you have just arrived on a plane. The second could be asked by someone who knows that you have just had a class. As you can see from the third example, the usage of -nya in this way is not restricted to questions. This person may have borrowed your dictionary and is returning it, he or she might be handing you a book that was the subject of a previous conversation meaning This is the dictionary I told you about. There could be many situations that would warrant the use of -nya by an Indonesian speaker, but what all these situations have in common is that they refer to a situation or something previously known or understood by both speakers.

Similarly, in the dialogue, the clerk says Ini semua uangnya as a situation has been set up whereby, due to a previous interaction, Mark is waiting for money so the clerk says Here is the money (that you have been waiting for).

This use of -nya is very common and, even though it may take a little time to get used to, you will start to get a feel for how it is used as you hear it used by Indonesians or see it used in the dialogues. In our previous examples it is not wrong to say Bagaimana penerbangan kamu? or Ini kamus in the same situations. It just so happens that native Indonesian speakers tend to use -nya in such cases.

By extension, you will notice that questions that ask about prices and fares use -nya:

Berapa harganya?

How much does it cost?

Berapa onkosnya?

What's the fare?

In the same way, -nya is also used with weight and measure words. It refers to these words in such a way as to mean, for example, Its length is 45 centimetres where we would say It is 45 centimetres long in English. Such measure words are mostly formed from an adjective to which -nya is attached:

panjang long

Panjangnya 45 sentimeter.

It is 45 centimetres long.

tebal

thick

Buku itu tebalnya 300

That book is 300 pages thick.

halaman.

An exception is kecepatannya which is formed from the noun kecepatan, speed:

Kecepatannya 70 km per jam.

Its speed is 70 km per hour.

halaman	page	per jam	per hour

Exercise 5 Use the adjectives in the vocabulary section beneath the exercise to express the following:

- a It weighs 56 kilos.
- b It is 45 centimetres high.
- c It is 100 metres wide.
- d It is 2 metres deep.
- e It takes 7 hours.

berat	heavy/weight	lama	long tinggi	high/tall	séntiméter	centimetre lébar	wide	méter	metre dalam	deep

These adjectives combine with berapa to form questions related to measure:

berapa tinggi

how tall?

Make sure you do not confuse lama and panjang as they both translate as long in English. Lama refers to a length of time only, whereas panjang refers to physical distance only:

Berapa lama penerbangan dari Jakarta ke Manila?

How long is the flight from Jakarta to Manila?

Berapa panjang meja itu?

How long is that table?

2 The ber- and me- prefixes with noun bases.

With ber-. Many verbs in Indonesian are nouns that have been modified by means of a prefix. You have already come across this in Unit 5 when you met berumur and bernama. For example, when olahraga which means sport occurs with ber- the result is the verb berolahraga which means to play sport. In the same way, istirahat, (a) rest, becomes beristirahat, to rest, and bahasa which means language becomes berbahasa, to speak (such and such a language).

In the final example notice how the noun and the meaning of the noun become absorbed into the verb. You already know that bahasa Inggeris means (the) English (language), berbahasa Inggeris means to speak English. It is an alternative to berbicara bahasa Inggeris.

Many ber- + noun verbs can be translated into English as to be... or to have...:

akal	intelligence	berakal	to be intelligent libur	holiday	berlibur	to be on holiday pendapat	opinion	berpendapat	to be of the opinion

untung	luck	beruntung	to be lucky (i.e. to have luck) isteri	wife	beristeri	to have a wife (i.e. to be married)

anak	children	beranak	to have children
-------------	-----------------	----------------	-------------------------

Ber- used in this way can create expressions such as:

Dia berkaki panjang.

He has long legs. (kaki panjang long legs)

gedung berlantai empat

a four-storey building (a building that has four storeys)

kaki	leg
panjang	long

gedung	building
lantai	storey

Exercise 6 Look at the nouns in the left-hand column noting the meaning. See if you can find suitable English meanings for the verbs in the right-hand column that use the nouns as a base.

- a puasa fast (as in a religious fast)
- b gerak movement
- c keluarga family

With me-.

tari	dance	menari	to dance rokok	cigarette	merokok	to smoke bungkus	parcel	membungkus	to wrap up
gunting	scissors	menggunting	to cut with scissors

You will notice that, in some cases, when the me- prefix is added to create a verb, the noun (which has now become the base) undergoes a change in spelling and, therefore, pronunciation. Such sound changes are for ease of pronunciation (from an Indonesian point of view) and will be dealt with in more detail in Unit 17. For now, just concentrate of the meaning of the prefixed verbs.

Exercise 7 See if you can deduce the meanings of the me- verbs in the right-hand column created from the nouns in the left-hand column. You may find that with me- + noun verbs, the meanings are a little less easy to deduce than with the ber- + noun verbs.

- a potong slice
 - a potré photograph
 - a rampok robber
- | |
|-----------------|
| memotong |
| memotré |
| merampok |

Exercise 9 Over to you!

You want to change some money ...

- A Good afternoon. Can I change dollars into rupiah?
- B Dolar apa? Dolar Amérika?
- A No, Singapore dollars.
- B Ya.
- A What's the rate?
- B Satu dolar sama dengan 1.600 rupiah. Mau tukar berapa?
- A 1,000 dollars. I'd like some small change please.
- B Ini uangnya. Silahkan hitung kembali.

Cash, travellers' cheques or plastic?

The rupiah is the standard unit of currency used in Indonesia. Most shops do not accept foreign currency, although some well-established shops and businesses do take credit cards in the major cities and tourist areas. If you plan to travel in areas less frequented by mainstream tourists, you will need to carry cash, as travellers' cheques can be difficult to change and you may find that your credit cards are not accepted. In addition, you may also find that the rates of exchange in such areas are not as competitive as in the cities. Outside tourist areas you may find that money changers, as they are known in Indonesia, are closed on national holidays, which can create difficulties if you are running low on Indonesian currency. In short, as far as money goes, you need to be prepared in advance.

Learning tip

Are you finding some Indonesian words difficult to memorize? If you are, then this approach to memorization that you can use for any foreign language may be just what you need.

Languages that are related to English or that have had a significant influence on English will offer you many natural similarities that you can use as mental hooks or associations. It is easy to learn Hund, the German for dog because it is related to the English word hound. Similarly the French word mouton meaning sheep gives us mutton.

Indonesian, unfortunately, offers virtually no natural associations to the English speaker as the two languages are not related. However, by using your imagination and your unique experience of the world around you, you can create false associations that are just as effective.

Here is how it works: Take a word like selimut which means blanket. Somehow you have to create an association that will make the word selimut and its meaning unforgettable to you. What does it sound like? It sounds very similar to silly mutt in English. How are you going to link the words so you not only get the sound, but you also get the meaning? In your mind's eye, see a cartoon dog bound into a room with a slippery floor, a kitchen, for example, come to a flying halt on a brightly coloured blanket, slide uncontrollably across the room on the blanket and crash into the wall on the other side. Only a silly mutt would do something like that! An important point to remember when doing this is to include action. Just the image of the blanket with a dog on it will not be as effective as a colourful image that moves and has great sound effects.

The Indonesian for to jump is meloncat (pronounced melonchat). At first glance it offers no apparent associations and it does not readily fit into a known phrase in English. But look again. You have two words there: melon which we can take as melon and chat which, if you frequent Indian restaurants, you might know is a kind of salad. Imagine a beautifully dressed Indian waiter taking a flying leap off a springboard into a huge bowl of chat made with melon. As the waiter lands in the salad with a huge splat, pieces of fresh, ripe juicy melon (savour the smell!) fly everywhere, including over you. This gives you the approximate sound of the word and an action that gives you the meaning within the same image. Just repeat the word a few times with the proper pronunciation and use the image to reinforce it.

You could have taken chat as the French for cat and made a different image, although you would have to bear in mind the difference in pronunciation. Or you could have taken chat to mean the act of talking casually and created an action-filled image around that. The beauty of this memory system is that the choice is yours!

Speaking of chats, to chat in Indonesian is bercakap-cakap. If you take the ber- prefix away, which you know indicates a verb, you are left with four words that sound like chuck up, chuck up! You might create an image of yourself chatting to someone, a friend perhaps, who then chucks up all over you! And then does it again, hence the doubling effect. Remember to put yourself in the image and imagine with all your senses what it would be like. You could even add the ber- as a sort of wretching sound before the chucking up to remind you that it is a ber- verb. The image is necessarily disgusting. In this case, the more revolted you feel, the more engaged your senses are which, in turn, makes the association more memorable.

Finally, let us take a more obscure association as an illustration. Dorong means push like a sign you might see on a door. That has started to give it away already!... Dorong sounds like door wrong which does not make sense. However, imagine you are going up to a door (marked dorong), imagine pushing it open gingerly only to find a huge, snarling monster with snapping teeth behind it that scares the living daylights out of you. Oops! Wrong door! Wrong door! Wrong door! How many times will you need to repeat that to remember it? Not many!

The mind likes the unusual or anything that stimulates your emotions or senses. Images that are grotesque, hilarious, full of action and colour, sexual, vulgar or rude tend to be the most memorable and, therefore, the most effective for this type of exercise. Each person has a unique life experience, so it is more effective for you to come up with associations based on that rather than associations that someone else can offer.

What about words that you cannot find associations for? There will be some, but you may also find that the focus spent on a word trying to come up with an association may be enough to learn it anyway!

This does not mean that you have to go through the whole process of bringing the image back every time you want to recall a word. That would not be productive. You may need to trace it back to your association a couple of times, but once you have used the word or phrase a few times in different contexts, it will start to come to you naturally. This system is not meant to replace learning the words properly, but it can certainly help your learning along and save you time and effort! Most of the time you can only find approximations or the word stresses might be different, so you still need to refer to the Indonesian words for proper pronunciation.

Some learners frown on this approach, dismissing it as childish or stupid. It is offered here simply as an option to use or not to use, as you see fit.

But try this... without even glancing at our earlier explanations, can you say what the Indonesian word is for blanket? How about to jump, to chat or push? If you imagined the images as you read along, you will probably find that you have been 'hard wired' to remember these words. If you know those words now and you did not know them before you read this learning tip, you may have found something that works for you.

Still sceptical? If so, write the four words in English down on a piece of paper and put it in an envelope to be opened in a month's time. Do not make any effort to recall the words over this time. When you open the envelope, can you recall the Indonesian by using the associations?

Is it better to learn words without this step, if you can? Yes. But if learning vocabulary is proving to be a barrier to your progress in the language then try another way of remembering, such as association.

How the language works 1

1 When asking about the cost of travel, it is normal to use the word ongkos which means expenses or fare rather than harga which means price. So Berapa ongkosnya? means What's the fare?

Berapa ongkosnya ke Denpasar?

What's the fare to Denpasar?

Exercise 1 How would you ask:

- a What the fare is to Medan?
 b What the fare is from Kupang to Dili?
 2 A key phrase to use when asking for anything is Bisa saya minta... May I have...?

Bisa saya minta tiket pulang pergi? May I have a return ticket?

Two other useful phrases to use when asking for services occur in the dialogue:

Tolong, antarkan saya ke... Please take me to...
Tolong, buatkan saya... Please make/do for me...

The verbs antar (to take) and buat (to make) can both have -kan attached to them with the specific meaning of to do something for someone. This will be covered later in the course in more detail so, for now, just notice the verb forms and learn them as set expressions. Notice also that tolong, please, should be placed before the request as it is polite to do so in Indonesian.

3 Dilarang + verb is used to state that something is forbidden. You will come across it regularly in official signs telling you not to do something:

DILARANG MELONCAT DI KOLAM RENANG! DON'T JUMP INTO THE SWIMMING POOL!

meloncat	to jump	kolam renang	swimming pool
-----------------	----------------	---------------------	----------------------

What do you think this sign means?

pintu	door, gate
--------------	-------------------

DILARANG PARKIR DI DEPAN PINTU

4 Berapa jam? Jam means hour and Berapa jam? means How many hours?

Berapa jam ke Bandung? How many hours to Bandung?
 Do not confuse this with Jam berapa?, What time is it?

Exercise 2 Which question would you ask to get the following answers?

- a Jam lima sore.
 b Kira-kira dua jam.

5 You have already come across lagi meaning further or more with verbs in Unit 6. With periods of time, it has another important and distinct meaning: it translates in a certain period of time where that means after a certain period of time has passed. For example:

Saya beritahu kamu sepuluh menit lagi.

I'll let you know in ten minutes.

Meréka akan pulang dari pesiar keliling dunia dua bulan lagi.

They will come back from their world cruise in two months.

pesiar	cruise keliling	around

dunia	would
--------------	--------------

Exercise 3 Form the following time periods:

- a in seven months
 b in 55 minutes
 c in three weeks

English also uses in to refer to the time it takes to complete an action, as in I will complete this exercise in ten minutes in other words It will take me ten minutes to complete this exercise. Indonesian does not use lagi to convey this meaning. In this situation, dalam waktu translates in:

Saya akan menyelesaikan latihan ini dalam waktu sepuluh menit.

I will complete this exercise in ten minutes. (within the space of ten minutes) menyelesaikan (selesai, v)	to finish latihan	exercise

6 Durations of time such as hari, minggu, bulan etc. take the prefix se- with the specific meaning of a as in once a month etc.:

minggu week
Berapa kali seminggu?

seminggu a week
How many times a week?

bulan month
Pulau ini menerima 4.000 turis sebulan.

sebulan a month
This island receives 4,000 visitors a month.

Exercise 4 Prefix these time expressions with se- then make the phrases that follow:

hari	day
tahun	year
abad	century

- a twice a year
- b three times a day
- c once a century

sekali once

7 If and when... To make a question with when? you already know that you must use kapan? In English we also use when in sentences where it is not a question such as When I was young I use to eat ice cream or Remember to give her this book when you see her. You cannot use kapan in this type of sentence. When translating when you must think whether you are talking about an event in the future or the past.

To express when in the past in Indonesian, waktu or ketika is used. Waktu is used more in the spoken language while ketika tends to be more used in written language. This usage often corresponds to while in English, as in while I was waiting for the bus....:

Dia datang ke rumah saya waktu saya sedang menonton TV.

He came to my house when I was watching TV.

Ketika kakaknya menikah, dia di London.

When her brother got married, she was in London.

Ibu menélpon saya ketika saya sedang makan.

Mother called me when I was eating.

To express when in the future, you must use kalau or jika, both of which also mean if:

Tolong beritahu kami kalau sudah sampai.

Please tell us when we get there.

Jika saya lulus ujian, saya akan buat pesta.

If I pass the exams, I will have a party.

Kalau saya jutawan, saya akan sumbangkan ke orang miskin –

When I become a millionaire, I will give charity to the poor.

A word needs to be said about the tense structure in sentences such as the last one. As kalau and jika have two meanings (when and if) this sentence could also mean If I were a millionaire, I would give charity to the poor. Note that in if sentences of this type, akan still needs to be included where it replaces would in English.

Understanding Indonesian

Exercise 5 Read or listen to the dialogue again and say whether the following statements are true or false.

- a Taksi yang ingin Ken naik tidak pakai météer.
- b Supir taksi bersedia menunggu Ken.
- c Ken dan keluarga membeli tikét kelas bisnis.
- d Ken membeli 5 tikét.
- e Ken dan keluarga harus tiba di airport satu jam sebelum keberangkatan.
- f Ken meminta tempat duduk di gang.

bersedia (sedia, a)	to be ready to, to be willing to sebelum	before keberangkatan (angkat, v)	departure
gang	aisle

Exercise 6 The following expressions refer to things you are being told not to do. Look at the signs and write the number of the expression next to the corresponding sign.

- i Dilarang mendahului
- ii Dilarang masuk
- iii Dilarang bélok kiri
- iv Dilarang balik arah
- v Dilarang membuang sampah
- vi Dilarang parkir
- vii Dilarang merokok
- viii Dilarang berhenti

berhenti (henti, v)	stop bélok kiri	turn left mendahului (dahulu, v)	to pass, to overtake balik arah	U turn
membuang (buang, v)	to throw sampah	litter, garbage

Employee Don't miss the train, Madam.

How the language works 2

1 Naik apa ke..., How shall we go to... The most common way to express going by some form of transport is by using the verb naik + vehicle word.

naik mobil naik keréta api to go by car to go by train

Some words for vehicles you have not yet met are:

motor	motorbike bécak	pedicab bajaj (pronounced bajai)	bajai
bémo	motorized pedicab kapal laut	ship
kapal terbang	plane

Naik is the most common way to say how you are going somewhere, although you can also express it using dengan, where we use by in English. So you can say, for example:

Meréka suka pergi ke sana They like going there by bus.
dengan bis.

Pagi ini ayah saya datang This morning my father came dari pasar dengan mobil. from the market by car.

In theory, you can add the prefix ber- to any form of transport, thus creating a verb meaning to go by that mode of transport. So naik keréta api would become berkeréta api. In practice, however, only two of these forms are common in colloquial language: berkuda, to go by horse, and bersepéda, to go by bike, which is very common. For all other forms of transport it is more natural to use naik:

Ratna bersepéda ke Ratna cycles to university universitas setiap hari. every day.

Finally, to go on foot is expressed by berjalan kaki (jalan kaki) in Indonesian:

Mari kita jalan kaki ke Let's walk to the cinema.
bioskop.

2 The last question word you will meet on this course is yang mana meaning which. It can be used on its own to ask Which one? or it can be used to mean which + noun in which case it follows the noun it refers to, like an adjective.

Exercise 7

Can you now say:

- a which bag
b which idea?

The important thing to note when using yang mana is that it is asking about a choice, given a set of alternatives. It differs in usage from noun + apa (see Unit 6) which asks about the type of something.

Look at these two examples:

Film apa yang kamu tonton?

*What films do you watch?
(i.e. what kind of films)*

Film yang mana yang kamu suka?

*Which film do you like?
(given that you have a choice of two or more)*

3 Prefix me- with suffix -i. Verbs with me- -i are created from noun, adjective, adverb and verb bases:

tahu to know

mengetahui to comprehend

cinta love

mencintai to love

kurang less mengurangi to reduce paham understanding

memahami to understand

Most of these verbs imply an action towards someone or something or a closing of distance between two things. These verbs always take an object. For example:

naik to go up

menaiki to climb dahulu previous mendahului to overtake dekat close mendekati to draw close to

Using Indonesian

Exercise 8 Choose words and phrases from the dialogues in this unit to complete the following:

- a Bis _____ ke pusat kota?
- b _____ duduk di dekat pintu keluar?
- c _____ reservasi untuk dua orang ke Lombok!
- d _____ saya ke Jalan Sudirman.
- e _____ ongkosnya dari Surabaya ke Bali?
- f _____ penerbangannya?
- g Jangan sampai _____ pesawat!
- h _____ kita ke Bandung?

pintu keluar exit

Exercise 9 Over to you!

You (A) are a student called Daniel Johnson. You have gone to the travel agent (B) to book a flight to Melbourne.

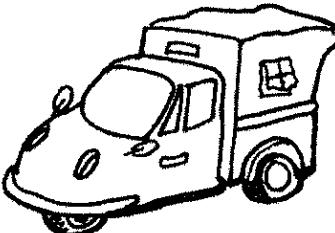

- A I would like to book a seat to Melbourne. Economy class.
- B Untuk tanggal berapa?
- A Next week (on) the 15th September. What's the fare?
- B 350 dolar untuk tiket pulang pergi.
- A How long is the flight to Melbourne from Jakarta?
- B Sekitar tiga jam.
- A Good, please make a reservation for me under the name of Daniel Johnson. Can I have an aisle seat?
- B Saya coba.

duduk di dekat gang an aisle seat

Getting around

Public transport in Indonesia comes in all shapes and sizes. Apart from trains, you can take buses from city to city. Some of these have air conditioning and some do not. Safety standards and regulations may not be what you are used to in your own country. Buses allow people to pile on, even though there is seemingly no room. In addition to buses, much smaller vehicles, known as angkot (short for angkutan kota, city transport), also follow set routes.

Probably the safest transport for a foreigner to take is a taxi that uses a meter. Other taxis, as well as bajaj (little more than a motorbike with a cab behind for passengers) or a bécak (a motorless pedicab) or a bémo (a motorized bécak – bécak motor) are also available, as are motorbikes which you hire with a driver and ride behind him! You will have to agree a price in advance with these private forms of transport. Interestingly, if you need to direct a bécak driver (tukang bécak), or if he needs to confirm the direction you want him to go in, he will use points of the compass rather than left and right! The points of the compass are: utara, north, selatan, south, timur, east, and barat, west.

Bajaj

Bécak

As of 1989, bécak were no longer permitted to be used on the main roads of Jakarta owing to increasing congestion. In fact, such is the congestion caused by people commuting in the mornings that some roads have been decreed a Three in one area between 7 and 10 a.m. This means that cars using these roads must have at least three passengers in them to be able to use the road. These zones are indicated by the sign KAWASAN THREE IN ONE, an interesting mix of English and Indonesian!

With Jakarta being as congested as it is, punctuality is not always possible, even with the best will in the world, so it is lucky that Indonesians recognize the concept they call jam karét or rubber time. It is not considered rude to arrive for an appointment up to an hour late. If you are doing business in Indonesia it is worth bearing this concept in mind to avoid any cultural misunderstandings.

- Ken Is there anything else, like massage? Every time I (come) to Indonesia, I always go to a massage parlour.
- Employee Yes, there is. Please telephone the concierge and they can arrange (it) for you. These are the keys to the rooms and the coupon for breakfast from 8 to 10.30. Have a nice stay.

How the language works 1

1 Did you notice the use of minta in the dialogue? Two more phrases you might find useful when making requests are Apa bisa minta?, May I have...? and Apa bisa kasih?, May I have...?

Apa bisa kasih kamar yang menghadap ke kolam renang? Can I have a room that looks out onto the swimming pool?

Note also that menghadap ke is used to express with a view of in Indonesian.

2 Position of question words. Units 1 to 10 have gradually introduced you to all the question words you will need to know to function in everyday Indonesian. You will have noticed that some question words occur in various positions in the sentence, while others, namely kenapa and mengapa must always occur as the first word in the sentence. Apa is also an exception, as you will see.

Although it is quite possible to place the other question words first in the sentence, there is a rule governing where the question word should occur, if you want to mimic authentic Indonesian speech.

To find where the question word should be placed, you first need to think of the question as it would be if it were a statement that already has the answer to the question in it. For example, if you want to ask Where does she come from?, one possible answer is She comes from New York; in Indonesian Dia berasal dari New York. The question word occupies the same position in the question as the thing it asks about in the corresponding statement. Therefore dari mana replaces dari New York giving you the completed question, Dia berasal dari mana?

Look at the following questions:

Siapa pergi ke London?	Who is going to London?
Yanti pergi ke mana?	Where is Yanti going?

These two questions could both be based on the sentence Yanti pergi ke London, Yanti is going to London. The first question asks who so siapa replaces Yanti. The second asks where Yanti is going, so ke mana replaces ke London.

Exercise 1 Make four questions in the following sentence based on the underlined and lettered words:

Tahun lalu a	Tuti b	berlibur c	dengan sepupunya d	di Lombok.
------------------------	------------------	----------------------	------------------------------	------------

Possible complications arise with apa because, as you know from Unit 2, apa not only means what?, but it also functions as a question marker. As a question marker apa must occur at the beginning of the sentence.

When you are using apa with the intended meaning of what?, you need to follow the positioning rules we have just seen, otherwise what you say might be ambiguous. Look at the following examples in which apa has different functions:

Apa anda minum? Are you drinking?
Anda minum apa? What are you drinking?

Apa kamu sedang makan? Are you eating?
Kamu sedang makan apa? What are you eating?

Two questions that you learnt in Unit 6 apa yang and siapa yang are always used at the beginning of the sentence and are exceptional to the rules of question word order. Many questions asking what? or who(m)? can be expressed both ways:

Dia kenal siapa? Who(m) does she know?
Siapa yang dia kenal? Who(m) does she know?

In addition, when noun + apa occurs, as in Unit 6, it is treated as a single unit and is not subject to the positioning rules.

Exercise 2 Translate the following pairs of questions paying particular attention to how the different position of apa affects the meaning.

- 1 a Apa dia makan?
b Dia makan apa?
- 2 a Apa mau pesan?
b Mau pesan apa?
- 3 a Apa kamu membaca?
b Kamu membaca apa?

- e Ken meminta kamar yang menghadap ke pantai.
- f Sarapan pagi mulai dari jam tujuh sampai jam 10.30.

- Mark Good afternoon. We would like to check in under the names Mark Spencer and Reza Septianingrum. We (were the ones who) reserved yesterday.
- Employee Wait a moment... I will check on the computer. That's correct, two single rooms under the name Mark Spencer and Reza Septianingrum.
- Reza Thank you. Is there a fitness centre here? I usually go to the gym every afternoon.
- Employee There is, also there is a swimming pool, sauna and steam bath.
- Mark Very interesting. I usually get up at eight o'clock. Then we go swimming, take a sauna and have breakfast.

- Employee There is a bar and disco. Every Sunday night there is a special band with a singer from the city.
- Mark In England I am used to going to the bar every week.
- Reza I can tell, you cannot wait to go there.
- Mark What about the food? I'm really hungry.
- Employee Tonight there is an Indonesian buffet. It's open from eight o'clock in the evening.
- Mark Thank you.
- Employee Here are the keys and these are the breakfast coupons for tomorrow. Have a nice stay.

How the language works 2

1 In this unit you have met biasanya which means usually. The base word biasa and a prefixed form terbiasa are both used to mean used to or accustomed to:

Saya biasa berbahasa Indonesia dengan teman-teman.

Adik Tuti sudah terbiasa menggunakan komputer.

I am used to speaking Indonesian with friends.

Tuti's little brother is already used to using a computer.

When biasa and terbiasa are used with verbs, as in the examples, they can be used just as they are. When they are used with a noun, dengan must be inserted:

Dia belum biasa dengan kepanasan di Indonesia.

He is not yet used to the heat in Indonesia.

kepanasan (panas, a) heat

Remember that where used to has a different meaning, such as that in the sentence We used to live here, either the tense marker dulu or dahulu must be used.

Dahulu kami tinggal di sini. We used to live here

2 The combination of the prefix ke- and the suffix -an, when applied to an adjective base, produces a certain type of noun:

baik	good	ke-baik-an = kebaikan	goodness
indah	beautiful	ke-indah-an = keindahan	beauty
sulit	difficult	ke-sulit-an = kesulitan	difficulty

This usage creates what is known as an abstract noun, that is, a noun that cannot be seen and usually refers to a general quality.

Exercise 4 Form abstract nouns from the following adjectives with ke- -an and, in each case, state what you think the noun you created means.

- a séhat healthy
- b aman safe
- c bersih clean
- d mudah easy
- e jelék ugly
- f nyaman pleasant
- g bodoh stupid
- h senang happy

Ke- prefix combined with -an suffix is used to create certain nouns from verbs:

datang	to come	kedatangan	arrival
pulang	to return home	kepulangan	return

Ke- -an with a noun base produces a new noun which often extends the meaning of the base noun, but the resulting meaning is not always as easy to deduce as with the adjective bases. They can often refer to places or institutions. Study the following:

hidup	life	kehidupan	way of life
bangsa	nation	kebangsaan	nationality
menteri	minister	kementerian	ministry
duta	ambassador	kedutaan	embassy

Using Indonesian

Exercise 5 Use the sentences that follow to make a question replacing the words in bold in each case.

- a Meréka akan berangkat ke Inggeris pada hari Selasa.
- b Yanti pergi ke bioskop dengan Siti.
- c Pagelaran Ramayana mulai jam delapan.
- d Penerbangan dari Jakarta ke Bali sekitar dua jam.
- e Minggu depan meréka akan pergi berlibur ke Medan.
- f Orang tuanya sudah datang dari luar negeri.
- g Kita bisa pergi dengan bis ke pusat kota.
- h Keréta Jakarta-Surabaya ada dua kali sehari.

pagelaran (gelar, v) performance

Exercise 6 Over to you!

You are booking a room ...

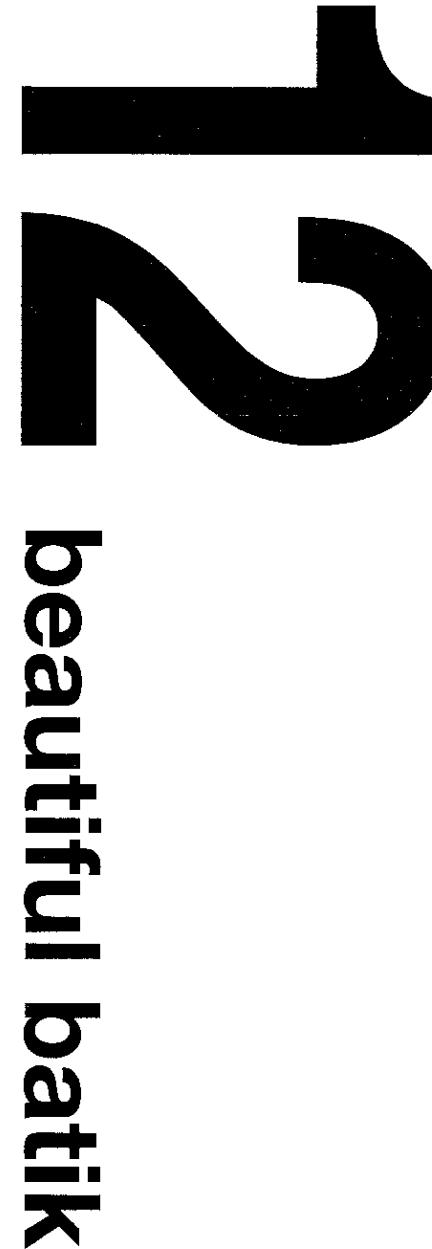

- 132
- A Selamat soré, Pak. Ada yang bisa saya bantu?
 - B Yes. I would like to stay here for a couple of days. Are there still vacancies?
 - A Masih.
 - B How much for one night?
 - A 450.000 rupiah.
 - B Is breakfast included?
 - A Ya. Sampai tanggal berapa Bapak tinggal di sini?
 - B Until the 10th December. Can I pay with another currency apart from US dollars?
 - A Bisa. Maaf, bisa saya lihat paspornya, Pak?
 - B Sure. Just a moment.
 - A Tolong isi formulir ini dan tanda tangan Bapak di sebelah kanan.
 - B OK. Is there a sauna here?
 - A Ada, juga kolam renang di lantai tiga. Pusat kebugaran ada di sampingnya.
 - B What time is it open?
 - A Jam sembilan pagi sampai jam 8.30 malam.
 - B Thank you.
 - A Selamat istirahat. Ini kunci kamar dan kupon untuk sarapan pagi.

Where to stay

In the towns, cities and major tourist areas such as Bali, you can find plenty of luxury hotels that can cater to your every need. If you are looking for a more authentic experience, or if you would like to sample Indonesian hospitality, there are several options open to you. You could try a wisma which is an Indonesian-style hotel but quite comfortable. If you want something more homely, then a losmén is what you seek. A losmén tends to be family run and, more often than not, you will find yourself eating meals with the family too, more like a paying guest than a client. Finally, if you are on a very tight budget, you could try a penginapan, inn, which provides all the very basic comforts but little else.

If you do go off the beaten track and are contemplating staying in a remote village or town, it is considered polite to consult with the village head (kepala desa or lurah) and ask for permission. Your manners and sensitivity will mark you as a person who has respect for the local culture and will endear the villagers to you.

If you ever have to make a complaint about anything while you are in Indonesia you may feel that your complaint is being brushed aside by the one you are addressing. He or she may appear to make light of your problem by saying something like Tidak apa-apa, It's OK, Tidak ada masalah, It's not a problem, Biar saja, Let it be, or something similar. Although this may appear, at face value, to be an indication of disinterest to a westerner, it is not to be taken as one. Different cultures deal with a potentially awkward situation, such as making a complaint, in different ways. Preferring the indirect approach, Indonesians tend to hide their embarrassment behind such an attitude as these phrases imply, but this does not mean that they do not take your complaints seriously. Furthermore, in any dealings you have with Indonesians, you should avoid an outward display of anger as this is regarded as childish and will almost certainly result in your wishes being ignored.

In this unit you will learn how to

- go shopping for clothes
- talk about sizes, colours, and what things are made of
- barter with a street seller

PART ONE

Dialogue

Jamilah is doing a spot of clothes shopping with her two children.

- Ibu Jamilah Saya mau membelikan suami saya keméja batik. Apa ada ukuran yang paling besar, warna biru?
- Pelayan Sebentar saya cari... Maaf Bu, Warna biru sudah habis terjual. Tinggal warna abu-abu. Warna biru ukuran S.
- Ibu Jamilah Itu kekecilan untuk suami saya. Dia tidak suka warna abu-abu. Ada yang lain?
- Pelayan Ya tetapi bahannya berbeda.
- Ibu Jamilah Mengapa ini lebih murah daripada yang tadi?
- Pelayan Oh, karena itu batik asli dan ini batik cap.
- Ibu Jamilah Hm... saya lebih suka yang itu. Sayang! Tidak ada warna biru.
- Calvin Ma, aku suka celana batik itu. Kelihatan nyaman dan coraknya unik.
- Ibu Jamilah Itu terbuat dari bahan katun. Apa ukuran-mu?
- Calvin M, sebesar itu saja.
- Ibu Jamilah Celana itu cocok sekali untuk kamu. Silvia, kamu mau apa?
- Silvia Aku mau baju yang berwarna merah itu.
- Ibu Jamilah Terlalu seksi untuk mu. Pilih yang lain saja!
- Pelayan Ini bonnya. Silahkan bayar di kasir.
- Ibu Jamilah Terima kasih.
- Pelayan Untuk celana panjang 15 persén diskon. Totalnya 825.000 rupiah. Ini uang kembalinya.

Translation

- Jamilah I want to buy a batik shirt for my husband. Do you have the biggest size in blue?
- Shop assistant Just a moment, I'll look for (one). We're right out of the blue one. We only have it in grey. We (only) have the blue (one) in a 'small'.
- Jamilah It is too small for my husband. He doesn't like grey. Are there any other ones?

- Shop assistant Yes, but they are a different material.
Jamilah Why are these cheaper than the last ones?
Shop assistant Oh, because those are genuine batik and these are printed batik.
Jamilah I prefer those. What a shame! You don't have them in blue.
Calvin Mum, I like those batik trousers. They look comfortable and the design is special.
Jamilah They are made from cotton. What's your size?
Calvin Medium, the same size as those (trousers).
Jamilah Those trousers really suit you. Silvia, what do you want?
Silvia I want that red dress.
Jamilah It's too sexy for you. Choose a different one.
Shop assistant Here is your bill. Please pay at the cashier.
Jamilah Thank you.
Shop assistant There is a 15% discount on these trousers. All together that comes to 825.000 rupiah. Here is your change.

How the language works 1

1 Terlalu, which you have already met briefly in Unit 11, is one way of saying too in Indonesian. It is used in the same way we use too in English:

terlalu besar	too big terlalu kecil	too small

In addition to terlalu certain nouns can also be modified to mean too by placing the adjective between the prefix ke- and the suffix -an. Here are some you may find useful when shopping:

kebesaran	too big kekecilan	too small kemahalan	too expensive
kependékan	too short kepanjangan	too long

Exercise 1 Make too... expressions using ke- -an with these adjectives, then translate them.

- a dingin
 b panas c penuh

- d asin e cepat f tinggi

dingin	cold	asin	salty
penuh	full	tinggi	tall

2 Making comparisons. When you wish to compare the qualities of one thing with another, i.e. when you want to say something is more... than something else, use lebih before the adjective or adverb:

lebih mahal	more expensive
lebih murah	more cheap (or cheaper)
Pakaian itu lebih mahal di Amérika.	These clothes are more expensive in America.

To express than as in more... than daripada is used:

lebih mahal daripada	more expensive than lebih murah daripada	more cheap than (or cheaper than)
Batik di Yogyakarta lebih murah daripada di Jakarta.	Batik in Yogyakarta is cheaper than in Jakarta.
Dia datang lebih sering daripada sebelumnya.	He comes more often than before.

Exercise 2 Add the missing words to the Indonesian sentences so that the meaning corresponds to the ones in English.

- a Amir goes to the cinema more often than Jani.
 Amir pergi ke bioskop _____ sering _____ Jani.
 b She is more diligent than her brother.
 Dia _____ rajin _____ kakaknya.
 c This house is bigger than that house.
 Rumah ini _____ besar _____ rumah itu.

One way to express the most... or the... -est, as in the biggest is formed by placing paling before the adjective instead of lebih.

Compare:

besar	big	lebih besar	bigger	paling besar	biggest énak	tasty	lebih énak	tastier	paling énak	tastiest

Exercise 3

How do you form these expressions in Indonesian?

- | | |
|----------------------|----------------|
| a better | f spicier |
| b the cheapest | g thirstiest |
| c the most difficult | h hotter |
| d prettier | i dirtier |
| e more crowded | j the smallest |

Adding paling to an adjective is not the only way to express the most... in Indonesian. The alternative form you need to be aware of is formed with the prefix ter- which is applied to the adjective to form exactly the same meaning as paling.

baik	good	ter-baik → terbaik	the best besar	big	ter-besar → terbesar	the biggest
bodoh	stupid	ter-bodoh → terbodoh	the most stupid

3 To say what something is made of, terbuat dari (or just dari) is used in Indonesian:

Cincin ini terbuat dari pérak.	This ring is made of silver.
Kué ini terbuat dari tepung beras.	This cake is made from rice flour.
Jakét saya terbuat dari kulit.	My jacket is leather.

pérak	silver
tepung beras	rice flour
kulit	leather

Exercise 4

Can you form these sentences in Indonesian?

- a That statue is made of marble.
- b This vase is made of clay.
- c This ball is made of rubber.

patung	statue	tanah liat	clay
marmor	marble	bola	ball
jambang	vase	karét	rubber

4 The last personal pronoun we shall be looking at in this course is aku, an informal word for I which Silvia and Calvin use in the dialogue. It is highly informal and should only be used between family members or to those with whom you are on very familiar terms (i.e. good friends) and with whom you share equal social standing. It would be highly inappropriate to use this when talking to a stranger. In fact, it might be taken as a sign of arrogance or lack of respect for someone if you use it inappropriately. You may hear it used, so you need to know what it means, but the best advice for a foreigner is: if in doubt, use sayá!

It can also be used as a possessive pronoun whereby it is added to the noun in question as a suffix, like -mu in Unit 2. Before it is added to the noun, the a drops, leaving you with -ku which means my:

rumahku	my house
mobilku	my car

5 There are two ways to express to wear in Indonesian. One way employs the verb pakai (or less colloquially memakai) which means to use as well as to wear.

Gadis itu memakai pakaian tradisional.	That girl is wearing traditional dress.
Saya biasa pakai sarung di rumah.	I'm used to wearing a sarong at home

The second way uses the ber- prefix to create a verb from the item of clothing being worn. In just the same way as the noun becomes the base for the transport words in Unit 10 (Part Two), the item of clothing becomes the base in this instance:

baju	dress berbaju	to wear a dress kebaya	kebaya*
berkebaya sutera	to wear a silk kebaya

*A kebaya is a traditional, ceremonial outfit for women that is worn with batik and a seléndang, a long scarf that is draped over one shoulder.

Exercise 5

Select words from the clothes vocabulary section beneath this exercise.

- a to wear a tie
- b to wear gloves
- c to wear a skirt
- d to wear a raincoat
- e to wear black trousers
- f to wear sunglasses
- g to wear a rattan hat

topi	hat
keméja	shirt
dasi	tie
jakét	jacket
rok	skirt
celana (panjang)	(long) trousers
celana péndék	short trousers
blus	blouse
jas	suit
jas hujan	raincoat
kacamata gelap	sunglasses
sarung tangan	glove(s)
kaos kaki	sock(s), stocking(s)
sepatu	shoe(s)
sepasang sepatu	a pair of shoes
ikat pinggang	belt
gelang	bracelet
anting-anting*	earrings
kalung	necklace
rotan	rattan
merah	red putih	white hitam	black hijau	green
kuning	yellow
biru	blue
ungu	purple
marun	maroon
merah jambu	pink coklat	brown

*anting-anting refers to dangle earrings, whereas stud-type earrings are giwang.

Colours can be made light or dark by adding muda and tua respectively:

biru muda	light blue
hijau muda	light green
coklat tua	dark brown
merah tua	dark red

6 To express to suit (someone or something) Indonesian uses cocok untuk:

Keméja itu cocok sekali untuk adikmu.

That shirt really suits your brother.

Note that the Indonesian version requires untuk, for. Such words are known as prepositions. Although prepositions are basically location words on, in, around etc., they often occur as an integral part of certain set phrases. In some cases, a preposition may be required in one language but not in the other to express a similar concept, as with cocok untuk, and sometimes the preposition is different in each language. For example, in English we say to spend money on something, but the Indonesian equivalent uses untuk – menghabiskan uang untuk:

Kamu sungguh-sungguh sudah menghabiskan semua uangmu untuk pakaian?

Did you really spend all your money on clothes?

sungguh-sungguh	really
menghabiskan (habis, a)	to spend (money or time)

7 The prefix ter- used with verbs can sometimes creates a form that is similar to a past participle in English. The past participle is the form that you can place after to be to indicate that something has happened, for example I am lost. The emphasis in using the ter- verbs in Indonesian is on the state of completedness of an action. Treat them like adjectives:

terkenal	famous
tersedia	available
tertarik	interested

Some ter- prefixed verbs can also imply an accidental occurrence or a misfortune:

terpaksa	forced (to), obliged (to) tersesat	lost
terjebak	stuck

- a Jamilah ingin membelikan celana batik untuk suaminya.
b Jamilah mencari ukuran paling besar, warna abu-abu.

- c Silvia membeli baju warna merah yang séksi.
- d Batik asli harganya lebih mahal dari harga batik cap.
- e Calvin memilih celana batik yang nyaman dan unik.

memberi (beri, v)	to give belanjaan (belanja, n)	purchases, items purchased

Exercise 7 Label the pictures using the clothes vocabulary in Exercise 5.

PART TWO

Dialogue

Reza has taken Mark to a traditional market so he can look for presents to take back to England.

- Mark Saya mau mencari oléh-oléh untuk teman dan keluarga saya. Kalung ini bagus sekali. Terbuat dari apa?
- Penjual Ini dari pévak.
- Mark Berapa harganya?
- Penjual 50.000 rupiah.
- Reza Kamu bisa tawar. Ini bukan harga pas.
- Mark Bisa kurangi harganya? 30.000 rupiah?
- Penjual Tidak bisa, Mas. Saya rugi.
- Reza 35.000 saja Pak. Kalau boléh.
- Penjual Boléhlah. Rugi sedikit tidak apa-apa asal mbak datang lagi kapan kapan. Mau beli berapa buah?
- Mark Saya beli tiga buah.
- Reza Mark, kenapa kamu beli yang itu? Yang ini lebih mengkilap.
- Mark Tidak apa-apa. Cuma untuk oléh-oléh.
- Penjual Itu harganya lebih mahal, karena pévak asli dan buatan tangan.
- Mark Apa ini?
- Reza Itu kain sarung. Kamu bisa pakai di rumah penganti celana panjang. Itu biasa di sini.
- Mark Saya mau beli satu.
- Penjual Saya juga ada kipas dari batik. Bisa dipakai untuk hiasan dinding.
- Mark Ya, tapi ukurannya besar sekali dan berat. Lain kali saja. Terima kasih.

pévak	silver tawar	bargain
harga pas	fixed price
kurangi (kurang)	to reduce
Bisa kurangi harganya?	Can you lower the price?
rugi	lose out
asal	as long as, provided that
kapan-kapan	sometimes
Berapa buah?*	(here) How many?
tiga buah*	(here) three (of them)

mengkilap (kilap, v)	to shine buatan tangan	hand made kain sarung	sarong
pengganti (ganti, v)	instead of
Itu biasa di sini.	It's usual here.
dipakai (pakai, v)	to be used bisa dipakai	it can be used pengganti	instead of kipas	fan
hiasan	decoration
dinding	wall
lain kali	another time

(*buah has a special meaning that will be discussed in Unit 14.)

Translation

- Mark I want to look for some presents for my friends and family.
This necklace is very beautiful. What's it made of?
Seller Silver.
Mark How much is it?
Seller 50,000 rupiah.
Reza You can bargain. The price isn't fixed.
Mark Can you lower the price? 30,000 rupiah?
Seller I can't. I'll make a loss.
Reza Just 35,000. If you can.
Seller OK. I'll make a small loss, as long as you come again sometimes. How many do you want?
Mark I want three.
Reza Mark, why did you buy those? This one's more shiny.
Mark It's OK. (They're) just for presents.
Seller Those are more expensive because they are made from real silver and they are hand made.
Mark What's this?
Reza That's a sarong. You can wear it at home instead of trousers. It's usual here.
Mark I want to buy one.
Seller I also have a batik fan. You can use it as a wall decoration.
Mark Yes, but it's too big and heavy. Another time, maybe. Thank you.

How the language works 2

1 Comparisons of equality. Indonesian has two ways of saying something is as... as something else, for example, She is as rich as her brother.

Add se- to the adjective that describes the quality you are comparing:

kaya rich	se-kaya → sekaya as rich as
Dia sekaya kakaknya.	She is as rich as her brother.
mahal expensive	se-mahal → semahal as expensive as
Kalung ini semahal gelang itu.	This necklace is as expensive as that bracelet.

Exercise 8

Form these comparisons:

- a as cheap as
- b as heavy as
- c as shy as

Use the construction sama adjective -nya dengan:

kaya rich	sama kayanya dengan as rich as
Dia sama kayanya dengan kakaknya.	She is as rich as her brother.
mahal expensive	sama mahalnya dengan as expensive as
Kalung sama mahalnya dengan gelang itu.	This necklace is as expensive as that bracelet.

(Sama dengan on its own means the same as. So you can say, for example: Rumah dia sama dengan rumah kita, His house is the same as our house.)

Exercise 9

Check you can form the following using the sama adjective -nya dengan construction:

- a as poor as
- b as bald as
- c as flirtatious as

kaya	rich
kalung	necklace
gelang	bracelet
berat	heavy malu	shy
miskin	poor
botak	bald
genit	flirtatious, coquettish (this word is common in Indonesia but doesn't have the same negative connotations as it does in English)

Sama dengan in Indonesian means the same as in English. As you know dengan means with, so Indonesians think of it as the same with. The word dengan features in several very common expressions where we use other prepositions, or no preposition, in English. It is worth learning the following list now, noting the difference between the two languages.

sama dengan	the same as berbeda dengan	different to
penuh dengan	full of kawin dengan	to get married to dengan télpon	by phone
dengan mobil	by car
dengan bis	by bus
bercakap dengan	to chat to berbicara dengan	to talk to kenal dengan	to know
berteman dengan	to be friends with

Examples:

Saya akan menghubungi dia dengan télpon.

I'm going to contact her by phone.

Ruangan itu penuh dengan asap rokok.

That room is full of smoke.

Meskipun harganya sama, kualitas tas ini berbeda dengan tas itu.

Although the price is the same, the quality of this bag is different to that bag.

menghubungi (hubung, v)	to contact ruangan (ruang, n)	room
asap rokok	smoke
meskipun	although
kualitas	quality

2 Me- prefix with -kan suffix. Some base words carry the prefix me- coupled with the suffix -kan. In many cases this combination is simply needed to create a verb from a noun base with no particular distinct meaning.

For example:

merencanakan	to make plans (from rencana, plans)
menggambarkan	to portray (from gambar, picture)

When me- -kan is applied to certain adjectives, the result is a verb in Indonesian that corresponds to an -ing adjective in English. For example:

melelahkan	tiring (formed from the adjective base lelah meaning tired)
------------	--

As me- -kan often creates a verb that indicates that something has been caused to be in a certain state, the thinking is – it makes me (or someone else) tired, so it is tiring.

Exercise 10 Can you work out what the following me- -kan verbs are in English, by looking at the base adjectives on the left?

- a malu embarrassed
- b senang pleased
- c puas satisfied
- d cemas worried
- e bosan bored
- f takut frightened
- memalukan
- menyenangkan
- memuaskan
- mencemaskan
- membosankan
- menakutkan

When me- -kan is applied to a verb base, a new verb is created that can have one of two basic meanings according to context. The first is a type of verb that we do not have in English. This type of verb stresses that the action is performed for the benefit of someone or something else which is why it is known as a benefactive verb. You can see an example of such a verb in the first dialogue – membelikan, to buy something for someone.

Saya memberikan dia bunga. I gave him a flower.

As benefactive verbs automatically carry the meaning of doing something for someone untuk, for is not required. However, it is not incorrect to use untuk with these verbs and many Indonesian speakers do!

Saya mau membelikan sesuatu untuk teman.

I want to buy something for a friend.

me- -kan creates a new verb from certain verb bases that changes the focus of the action from something that you do yourself into a related verb. You will notice that these base verbs are specifically those which have no receiver of the action. Therefore the me- -kan creates a related verb that allows you to do that action to something or someone else.

In English, too, we have verbs that perform both functions. You can say I returned or you can use the same verb in a different way with a receiver of the action and say I returned the book to the library. Although the form of such verbs is often the same in English, Indonesian needs to create a further verb around the original verb as a base with me- -kan.

Take the example with kembali, to return. You can say:

Saya kembali.

I returned.

To make the other form, me- and -kan are added to the base word kembali creating mengembalikan (sound change rules will be covered later in the course). The new verb means to return (something):

Saya mengembalikan buku I returned the book to the itu ke perpustakaan umum. public library.

Dia sudah mengeluarkan sampah. She's already put the trash out.

Mengeluarkan, to put something out, comes from the verb keluar, to go out.

perpustakaan	library sampah	rubbish, trash

About batik

If you are interested in the arts and crafts traditions of Indonesia, then you will certainly find the batik work of Central Java a delight! The word batik is thought to come from the Javanese word ambatik which means drawing or writing. Yogyakarta and Solo are the traditional homes of Indonesian batik where the craft has been honed to a fine art over the centuries.

In the traditional batik-making process, wax is applied to the cloth by hand, with a tool called a canting, or by using a copper stamp, known as a cap. When the wax becomes hard, the cloth is dyed, dried and the waxing/dyeing process is repeated with a different colour. The wax renders certain areas of the cloth resistant to the dyes which only colour the exposed areas.

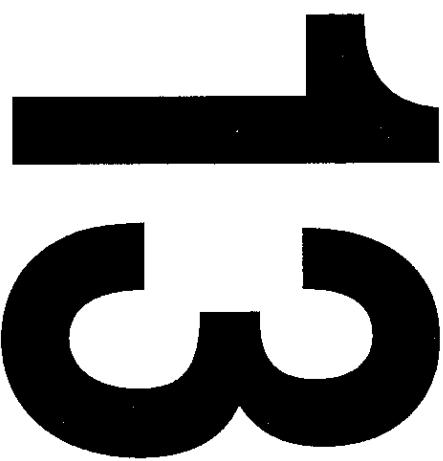

Batik that has been entirely produced in the traditional way, by a master-artisan using a canting can take months to complete depending on the intricacy of the pattern being created. For this reason, an item made from genuine batik tulis (literally written batik) can cost the equivalent of several hundred pounds. If you are shopping for the genuine article, and you want to be sure that you are not being offered imitation batik at a vastly inflated price, here is a tip that might help: Genuine batik tulis has exactly the same pattern on both sides of the material so if it is not fully reversible, it is definitely not genuine. If it is reversible it probably is.

Printed batik is exquisite, nonetheless, and the range of different batik products available means that you will never be at a loss for something authentic and unusual to take back as a souvenir or present from your trip. In major cities you will find shops devoted entirely to batik goods, where you can buy sarongs, fans, wall hangings, traditional clothing and much more. If you can bear to tear yourself away from the beaches of Bali and Lombok, a visit to the batik factories of Java would be well worth the ride.

Learning tip

If you have Indonesian friends, have you noticed any recurring mistakes they make when speaking English? When people learn a new language they sometimes try to fit the foreign language into the pattern of their own language, especially in areas of the foreign language that they have not yet mastered. For example, in this unit we have looked at some common expressions where the preposition is different in both languages, such as kawin dengan where Indonesians say to get married with rather than get married to which we use in English. Such an error does not impede the goal of communication, as you can easily see what the speaker means; however, it is even better to get it perfect! Such clues can help you to improve your Indonesian and, indeed help your friends improve their English! If you notice recurring differences such as an Indonesian saying the same with where he or she should say the same as check in your textbook or a dictionary to see why this is happening, as the answer could be a fundamental difference between the two languages and knowing about it can help you to improve your command of Indonesian, even if it is only in a small way.

How the language works 2

In English we are used to talking about a packet of cigarettes, a bottle of milk. These are mostly words that count things or put them into a category based on the type of container the thing comes in. These are some you will find useful:

piring	plate
mangkuk	bowl
botol	bottle
gelas	glass
cangkir	cup
kotak	box
bungkus	packet, parcel
potong	piece, slice

When you talk about one of something or a, the counting word, if you are using one, should be prefixed with se-, for example:

sepiring kari a plate of curry

However, when ordering food etc., you may also say:

satu piring kari

one plate of curry (as opposed to two, three etc., to make your order clear)

For any number of items above one, the counting word is used after the number, without the se-:

dua mangkuk soto

two bowls of soup

Generally speaking, if you are ordering a portion of some type of food, from a street vendor, for instance, you would do so according to what it comes in or on. Nasi goreng comes on a plate and bakso comes in a bowl, so you would use the appropriate counting word in your order. However, there is an even simpler option. You can use porsi which means portion and can be used to order anything.

Bisa saya minta satu porsi mie goréng? Can I have a portion of fried noodles?

2 Sometimes the ke- prefix -an suffix combination occurs with adjectives, nouns and verbs creating an expression that means that something unplanned and, in particular, unpleasant, has happened. It is rather like the use of ter- mentioned in Unit 12. The following are very common, so learn them as set expressions:

ketinggalan to miss (e.g., a form of transport) kesiangnan to oversleep kecopéatan to be pickpocketed

kemalaman

to stop out at night (with unpleasant results, eg missing the last bus home, getting home late with the prospect of being scolded) kehujanan to be caught in the rain kekenyangan

to over-eat (to the point of discomfort)

The meaning of some ke- -an expressions have become idiomatic in use. Two that are appropriate to talking about food and drink are:

kelaparan to be famished, starving

kehauasan to be parched, really thirsty

Using Indonesian

Exercise 4 Can you form the questions and expressions you might need in dealing with various street vendors?

A I would like to order bakso. How much for one bowl? Not too hot.

B I would like to order tea. How much for one bottle? Please don't use ice.

C I would like to order nasi goreng. How much for one plate? Don't use eggs. To take away, please.

D I would like to order saté kambing. How much for one plate? Could I have it rare?

setengah matang rare

Exercise 5 Write a suitable ke- -an expression under each of the following pictures. You may need to create expressions from adjectives using what you learnt in Unit 12. There are sample answers in the key.

c d

f

Exercise 6 Over to you!

You (B) are Ibu Tyler. You have decided to go to a restaurant for dinner. The waiter (A) greets you.

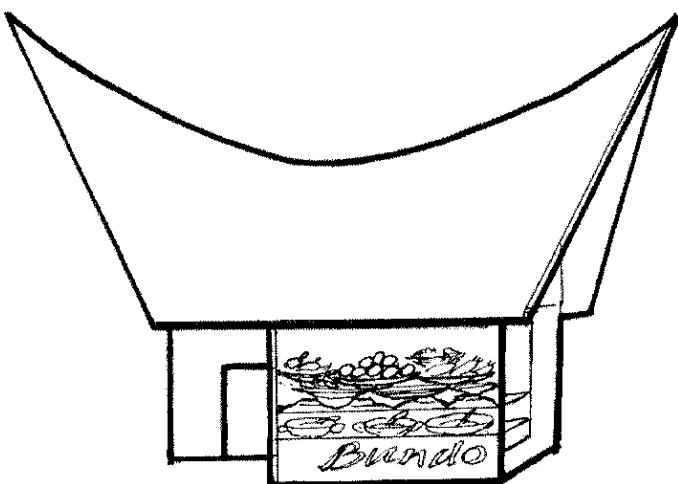

- A Selamat siang, Bu. Untuk berapa orang?
- B For one person.
- A Ini daftar makanannya. Mau pesan makanan apa?
- B I would like to order mie goréng. Does it contain shrimp?
- A Ya, tapi kami bisa buatkan tanpa udang.
- B That's good. I am allergic to shrimp.
- A Mau pesan minuman apa?
- B Do you have és campur?
- A Ya.
- B I would like és campur without tapé.
- A Mau pesan apa lagi, Bu?
- B That's all. How long (before) the food's ready?
- A Sekitar 15 menit.
- B No problem. Thank you.
- A Silahkan menunggu sebentar.

mengandung (kandung, n)	to contain udang	prawn, shrimp
tanpa	without
tapé	fermented cassava
Cukup itu saja.	That's all.

1 Eating out – Indonesian style

If you like spicy food, then you will love Indonesian cuisine! Be careful when you order 'extra hot' because your idea of what is extra hot might be where Indonesian spiciness leaves off!

There are many ways to sample authentic Indonesian food. For the more formal experience try a rumah makan Padang, Padang restaurant. Rice is always served at Padang restaurants, but the main feature is the variety of dishes you can try. Ten or so dishes of the customer's choice are served in small portions, so you can try many different types of cooking at one time. The plates are usually expertly piled one on top of the other in the shop window so that you can see what you can choose from. Indonesians may choose to eat with their fingers, which is why there is often a bowl of water and lemon present, to refresh their hands after eating. Eating in this way is not compulsory, so if none is provided, do not hesitate to ask for cutlery, if you need it!

Rumah makan Padang

A lot of food is sold on the street by vendors who wander the streets with their extremely narrow and compact mobile food stalls. They make their presence known in the area by banging on a pan or ringing a bell and announcing what they are selling. These vendors are quaintly known as kaki lima, five legs. The two wheels of the stall plus the stand make three 'legs' and the vendor's own make five! The vendor will serve you with the food and wait until you have finished it before moving on, as it tends to be served on real crockery rather than disposable plates.

You can also experience the Indonesian culinary atmosphere at a warung ténda, tent shop, also known as a warung gaul, socializing shop. These are open shops, usually with tables and some sort of makeshift tent (hence the name). Obviously they are static, unlike the wandering vendors, but the atmosphere is much less formal than a restaurant. Several vendors may operate at such a place, so you can sample a variety of foods. As the other name warung gaul implies, these shops are not just for eating but for socializing, so, not only will you get well fed there, you will have a genuine, local atmosphere to soak up and, hopefully, an opportunity to practise your Indonesian.

Indonesians are very fond of their snacks (makanan ringan) and eat them at breakfast time or when serving coffee or tea. Another word you might hear for snacks is cemilan. This is a native Javanese word that the Indonesians will be delighted to hear you using!

Although they are called minuman, many Indoensian drinks are more like desserts than drinks and are often served as such after meals: és kacang, and other drinks that are made with ice, are very refreshing in the hot climate.

Finally, a word on tipping! In big restaurants you are expected to tip, but only if a service charge (usually 10%) has not been applied to your bill. If no service charge has been applied, it is generally recommended to tip between 5 and 10% of the total bill. At small shops or street vendors, you are not expected to tip.

at the supermarket

In this unit you will learn how to

- shop for food at a shop or supermarket
- understand an Indonesian recipe

PART ONE

Dialogue

How the language works 1

1 Sedikit means a little or some but it can only be used with things that you cannot count, such as sugar, knowledge etc. For things that you can count you cannot use sedikit. Instead, you must use beberapa meaning a few or several. Banyak (a lot of), however, can be used with either.

Exercise 1 Look at the following nouns with banyak and the meanings. Write the words out again replacing banyak with sedikit or beberapa as appropriate.

- a banyak kopi a lot of coffee
- b banyak nasi goréng a lot of fried rice
- c banyak resép a lot of recipes
- d banyak pengetahuan a lot of knowledge
- e banyak porsi nasi goréng a lot of portions of fried rice

pengetahuan (tahu, v) knowledge

Note that how much? is rendered by berapa banyak? in Indonesian.

2 In Unit 13 you were introduced to counting words that categorize things according to the container they come in etc. This probably seemed very natural to you, as English categorizes such things in just the same way. In Indonesian, however, there are more counting words that are used for things you might not expect from an English point of view. In Unit 4 you came across seorang which is often used with jobs. This literally means a person and it acts like alan in English. There are more such counting words called classifiers, because they classify different sets of nouns according to certain inherent characteristics:

buah is used for fruit, large objects such as TVs, refrigerators, computers, books, clothes, cassettes etc.

butir is used for eggs and other small, round objects ékor is used for animals. Ékor means tail, therefore animals are counted in tails. This also includes animals with no tail!

Translation

Calvin	How many kilos of potatoes do we need?
Jamilah	About one kilo. We also need half a kilo of carrots and some onions.
Calvin	We are running out of garlic.
Jamilah	Yes, we need a half of a kilo, also spring onions and celery. Please put them into a plastic bag to have them weighed. Silvia, don't take those oranges. Please get the ones over there. How much is one chicken?
Shop assistant	35,000. It weighs a kilo and a half.
Jamilah	I would also like five pieces of steak. How much is one piece?
Shop assistant	15,000 rupiah per piece.
Jamilah	Why is it so expensive?
Butcher	Because it is imported from Australia.
Silvia	I want to go to the drinks section. I want to buy some cans of cola, two cans of beer and one bottle of whisky for dad.

lembar is used for paper, photographs and other flat objects orang is used for people pucuk is used specifically for letters tangkai is used for long, thin objects such as flowers

It will come as no surprise by now that to say one or alan the classifier must be prefixed by se-:

seékor babi	a pig
dua ékor tikus	two mice

Exercise 2 Try some counting!

- a eight sheets of paper
- b a paw-paw
- c a rose
- d four birds
- e three dictionaries

papaya	paw-paw	burung	bird
bunga mawar	rose

Classifiers are entirely optional. Sebuah rumah means a house, but so does rumah without the classifier! You do need to be aware of classifiers, however, as some speakers do use them in certain situations, such as when talking about jobs.

How the language works 21 Look at the following sentences in English:

- A We boiled the prawns.
 B The prawns were boiled by us.

Both sentences have the same meaning but each is expressed in a different way. Sentence A is known as active in that it stresses that someone or something is carrying out an action, but sentence B is known as passive because it stresses that something happened to someone or something not necessarily with the agent of the action (that is, the person or thing that carries out the action) being expressed. It is the passive we shall look at in this section.

The prefix di- indicates a passive.

The passive is mainly formed from verbs beginning with the me-prefix. The prefix (me-, men-, mem- or meng-) is removed so you are left with the base verb* and di- is added to this base:

- to take mengambil* → meng-ambil → ambil → di-ambil → diambil to be taken to give memberi → mem-beri → beri → di-beri → diberi to be given

Saya diberi uang. I was given money.

(*Some base verbs are subject to a sound shift when me- is added (see Unit 17). The di- prefix is added to the original base verb.)

Certain other verbs that do not begin with me- prefixes can also be made passive such as minum and makan, simply by adding the di- prefix to them:

- | | |
|--|-----------------------------------|
| minum to drink | diminum to be drunk |
| makan to eat | dimakan to be eaten |
| Kue akan dimakan. The cake will be eaten. | |

Exercise 5 Write the passive form of these verbs:

- | | |
|-------------|-------------|
| a mencari | d mengirim |
| b memeriksa | e mengantar |
| c menulis | f menjemput |

memeriksa (periksa, v) to examine

When you make a passive form in English, it is not always necessary to express the agent of the action – you can just say, for instance, The prawns were boiled, but you do not need to say by whom. You can do the same in Indonesian. If you do want to express who the action was done by, you can use oléh plus a personal pronoun, although the use of oléh is optional. Note that the person the action was done by with or without oléh must follow the passive verb. Note further that by him or by her can both be rendered by olehnya:

Dia diperiksa oléh dokter. } She was examined by the doctor.
Dia diperiksa dokter.

Anda akan dijemput oléh Sari di bandara. } You will be met at the airport by Sari.
Anda akan dijemput Sari di bandara.

Exercise 6 Change these sentences from active into passive ones.

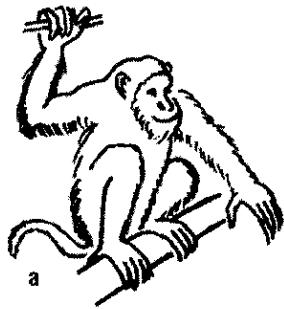

- a Dia sedang mendengar lagu.
- b Meréka menonton TV.
- c Kami harus minum obat tiga kali sehari.
- d Dokter menyuntik pasien.

lagu song

menyuntik (suntik, v) to inject

Using Indonesian

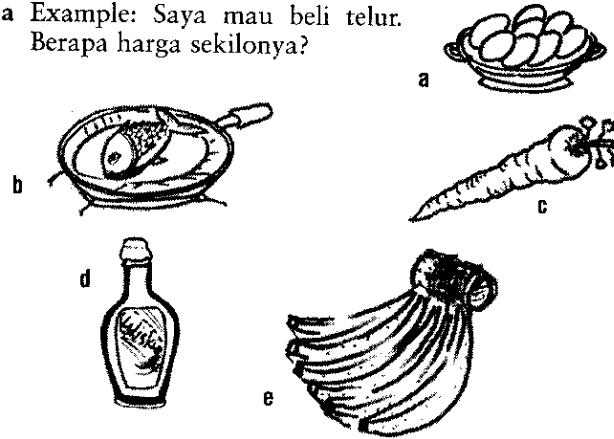

Exercise 7 Look at each of these pictures and write a suitable classifier under each. Use the se--form.

- a
- b
- c
- d
- e
- f

Exercise 8 Use the pictures to create a sentence and a question as in the example. Ask how much a kilo of each product costs, except for d, where you should ask how much a bottle costs.

a Example: Saya mau beli telur.
Berapa harga sekilonya?

Exercise 9 Over to you!

Take the part of Jamilah (A) who is shopping for meat.

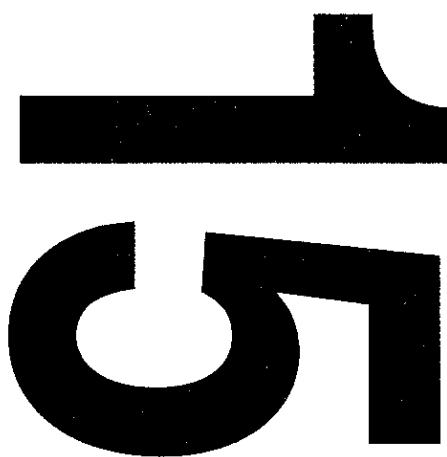

- A I would like to buy (some) beef.
- B Berapa kilo, Bu?
- A Two kilos. How much is that?
- B Tiga puluh ribu rupiah.
- A Please cut (it) into pieces.
- B Baik. Ini dagingnya.
- A Thank you.

dipotong-potong to cut into pieces

Supermarkets; four words for 'rice'

The pasar swalayan, literally self-service market, is how Indonesians refer to the supermarket. In such places you can buy all manner of produce, including a selection of imported items.

Rice is the staple diet in Indonesia and features at all three meals of the day. If you are staying in Indonesia and you are cooking for yourself, when you go shopping for rice you need to be aware that nasi is probably not what you want! East Asian countries tend to take their rice seriously so their languages often have two words for rice, depending on whether it is the cooked variety or the raw variety that you want. Nasi only refers to cooked rice. Raw rice in Indonesian is beras. To take it one stage further, sticky rice is ketan and the rice that you see in the process of growing in the sawah (rice field) is known as padi, a term that we have adopted into English from Indonesian/Malay.

From previous units, you already know that to talk about what you like you can use suka and to talk about what you do not like tidak suka. Saya suka mendaki gunung, I like climbing mountains. Another good word for like is gemar which is less colloquial and tends to sound more formal than suka but will give the listener a good impression of your Indonesian. It is important to note that gemar cannot be used to refer to people or animals:

Saya gemar main kartu. I like playing cards.

To say that you love doing something Indonesian uses suka sekali:

Saya suka sekali komédi. I love comedy.

Just in case you need it (you never know!), if you want to say I love you to a person, use Saya cinta kamu.

To express what you do not like, you can simply use tidak suka:

Saya tidak suka tiram. I don't like oysters.

In English, we tend to use the word hate in a fairly casual way when we talk about out likes and dislikes: I hate washing up! etc. In Indonesian hate is rendered by benci:

Saya benci masak.

I hate cooking.

Saya benci sekali berenang.

I hate swimming so much.

However, it is generally much better to express oneself in a less extreme way in Indonesian when talking about negative things. Therefore you (and the Indonesians you speak to) might find the phrase tidak begitu suka a more acceptable alternative. It corresponds to do not really like in English.

Saya tidak begitu suka baso. I don't really like baso.

Saya tidak begitu suka masak. I don't really like cooking.

A similar and very common expression uses kurang:

Saya kurang suka pisang goréng. I don't really like fried bananas.

Gemar acts as a root to give us kegemaran which means favourite and follows what it refers to, like other adjectives.

film kegemaran saya my favourite film

alat musik kegemaran saya my favourite musical instrument

Kegemaran can be used to talk about hobbies and activities that you like doing. As with gemar it cannot be used to talk about people or animals. Instead, either kesayangan or kesukaan must be used:

Dia pemain bola kaki kesayangan saya. He's my favourite football player.

Yet another word for favourite is favorit which is of foreign origin and popular among young people. The usage of favorit is not restricted so it can be used with anything, as in English:

film favorit saya my favourite film pemain bola kaki favorit saya my favourite football player

Exercise 1 Use the correct form of kegemaran or kesukaan/kesayangan with the following words. Use each one at least once.

- a olah-raga
- b bintang film
- c guru
- d sandiwara
- e binatang

bintang star sandiwara play (at the theatre)

binatang

animal

Another useful word derived from gemar is penggemar which expresses a real fan of... in Indonesian. As in English it does not just refer to sports, but can be used with anything.

Saya penggemar musik jazz. I'm a real fan of jazz music.

Ayah saya penggemar baseball. My dad's a real baseball fan.

Exercise 2 Are you a real fan of these sentences?

- a My girlfriend is a real fan of Leonardo di Caprio.
- b They are real fans of Chinese food.
- c Jani's sister is a real soap opera fan.
- d You're a real soccer fan, aren't you?

sinétron soap opera

Understanding Indonesian

Exercise 3 Read or listen to the dialogue again and say whether these statements are true or false.

- a Pada waktu luang Jamilah biasanya suka menonton film horor.
- b Jamilah mengantar Silvia kursus balét dua kali seminggu.
- c Setelah menikah Rika masih suka pergi menyelam.
- d Suami Jamilah menghabiskan waktunya dengan bermain komputer.
- e Suami Rika hobinya fotografi.
- f Jamilah tidak pintar main tenis.

film horor horror film(s)

setelah after

Exercise 4 Without referring back to the dialogue, see if you can complete the sentences with the correct information by selecting 1, 2 or 3 in each case.

- a Di Selandia Baru Ibu Jamilah biasanya
- 1 masak, baca koran dan nonton film
 - 2 masak, baca novel dan nonton film
 - 3 masak, baca novel dan nonton sinétron
- b Ibu Rika dan Ibu Jamilah gemar menonton film
- 1 drama
 - 2 petualangan
 - 3 komédi
- c Ibu Jamilah harus mengantar putrinya ke sekolah balé
- 1 hari Jumat dan Selasa
 - 2 hari Selasa dan Rabu
 - 3 hari Kamis dan Selasa
- d Suami Ibu Jamilah dan Ibu Rika penggemar
- 1 tenis
 - 2 bola kaki
 - 3 komputer

How the language works 2

1 When we talk about sports in English, we use a variety of verbs to express them. We say, for example, I play tennis, but I go skiing. In Indonesian, you will be glad to hear, one verb, main, is used for them all.

main tenis	to play tennis
main ski	to go skiing

Main is also used to talk about playing musical instruments:

main trombon	to play the trombone main piano	to play the piano

terompét	trumpet	suling	flute

2 Berapa lama kamu (sudah)...?, How long have you been...? To say how long you have been doing something selama translates for in the Indonesian version:

Dia tertarik dengan ténis méja selama dua tahun.

She's been interested in table tennis for two years.

Exercise 5

Can you form these sentences?

- a I have been studying pencak silat for three weeks.
- b He has been interested in karate since he went to Japan.
- 2 The prefix pe- indicates nouns that refer to a person who performs an action. Thus, pe- nouns are often connected with jobs and sports. Many, but not all, are derived directly from ber- and me- prefixed verbs, with the pe- replacing the ber- or the me-:

penari	dancer	(from menari , to dance) perenang	swimmer	(from berenang , to swim) pemain	player	(from main , to play)

Exercise 6

See if you can work out the meanings of these performer nouns using some of the verbs you have met already in the course. Remember to think of them in their prefixed form!

- a penulis
- b pembantu
- c pembeli
- d penjual
- e penjaga
- f pengajar
- g pekerja
- h pelari

berlari (lari, v) to run

Entertainment – Indonesian style

On your travels around Indonesia you might get the chance to see a wayang kulit (leather shadow puppet) performance. Such shows often retell the Hindu epic, the Ramayana, which plays such an important part in Indonesian culture, especially in the chiefly Hindu areas of the archipelago such as Bali. In fact, the Balinese dance, the kecak is also based on the Ramayana. Although performances of wayang kulit and wayang golék (wooden puppets) have become a quaint tourist attraction, they have roots that are steeped in ancient tradition.

It would be a great injustice to refer to the dalang as mere puppeteers. They are highly trained and gifted performers who maintain a position of respect within Indonesian society. Not only do the dalang have to captivate the audience by telling the story and act out the voices of the puppets as well as the movements, but they also have to direct the gamelan orchestra, which always accompanies the show, from backstage. Performances are usually given in a local language such as Balinese, Sundanese or Javanese, so do not be surprised if the language does not sound like what you have learnt in this book!

A gamelan orchestra consists of a collection of various bowls and gongs that resonate at different frequencies, which, when combined with the drums, tend to have a rather meditative effect.

Another form of music that you cannot miss in Indonesia is dangdut. It is a kind of folk music that grew up in rural areas, and is loved and danced to by people today, old and young, alongside the usual pop music. It was derived from the musical traditions of India, Portugal and Arabia that came to Indonesia, thanks to the spice trade over many centuries. Dangdut did not always enjoy popularity as the lyrics were considered rather risqué and the dancing was considered indecent by some. All big towns and cities should have a dangdut bar somewhere, so why not give it a try? Do not be too surprised if you find yourself addicted to it before long!

Pencak silat is to Indonesia and Malaysia what karate is to Japan and kung fu is to China. Although there are many different styles of the art throughout Indonesia and Malaysia, the traditional roots of the art remain the same. As well as promoting health and strength, the art is a system of self-defence that grew out of a need to protect oneself and one's family and loved ones from man and beast.

How the language works 1

1 Sakit means ill or sick. It is also used to express which part of the body feels painful or aching, or ill. The body part follows sakit:

Saya sakit perut.

I have a stomach ache.

badan	body	léhér	neck
kepala	head	tenggorokan	throat
rambut	hair	bahu	shoulder(s)
mata	eye(s)	dada	chest
alis mata	eyebrow(s)	perut	stomach
dahi	forehead	tangan	hand(s)
telinga	ear	jari	finger(s)
hidung	nose	jempol	thumb
pipi	cheek(s)	paha	thigh(s)
mulut	mouth	betis	calf/calves
bibir	lips	kaki	leg/legs, foot/feet*
dagu	chin

*Indonesian does not make a distinction between legs and feet!

Exercise 1 How are we feeling?

- a He has a headache.
- b Do you have an earache?
- c My hand hurts.

Some other words for ailments you may find useful are:

maag	indigestion	pusing	dizzy
batuk	cough	muntah	to vomit
demam	feverish

2 In English, we always say to take medicine but in Indonesian you usually say to drink medicine, minum obat or, as in the dialogue, you can say pakai obat, literally to use medicine.

3 This section deals with how to give commands in Indonesian. There are two types of commands: one tells someone to do something, positive command, and the other tells someone not to do something, negative command.

To give someone a positive command simply state the verb for the action you wish completed:

Makan itu!

Eat that!

There are certain factors to take into account regarding the form of the verb when giving commands. This is where an awareness of verb bases comes in useful. If the verb you want to make a command from is a ber- or a me- verb with a verb base, then the ber- or me- drops leaving just the base to use as the command form:

bermain to play ber-main
Main di sana!
Play over there!

mencari to look for men-cari
Cari pekerjaan!
Look for a job!

If you make a command from a verb with prefix me- combined with suffix -kan then just the me- is removed leaving verb base + -kan as the command form. You have already met this form in expressions such as:

Tolong, buatkan saya Please make me a reservation réservasi untuk besok. for tomorrow.

This comes from membuatkan, to do something for someone.

Masukkan jeruk di tas ini! Put the oranges in this bag!

This is from memasukkan, to put (something) into.

Jangan, which means don't is used to form the negative command to tell someone not to do something. In the negative command, however, the prefixes me- and ber- are retained when using jangan:

Jangan bermain di rumah! Don't play in the house!
Jangan menghidupkan TV! Don't turn on the TV!

Exercise 2 Try some commands!

- Take out the garbage!
- Run faster!
- Don't work all day long!
- Don't buy too much chocolate!

sepanjang hari all day long

In informal spoken style, with both positive and negative commands only the base of the verb (with any suffixes like -kan) is very often used:

Jangan main di sini! Don't play here!
Jangan rokok di kamar tamu, ya? Don't smoke in the living room, OK?

As in the last example, you can add ya? to a command to soften it. Another way to reduce the force of a command is to add -lah to the verb. It is added directly to the verb or the adjective as a suffix. You should be aware that without it, your commands will have a distinctly forceful tone to them.

Bacalah! Read!

The suffix -lah is especially useful when making positive commands using adjectives. If you want to say Be happy!, you will remember that there is no verb to be in Indonesian so you just add -lah to the adjective.

Indonesian often uses the passive form of the verb when making commands. This is due to a cultural necessity to avoid directness if possible, even when giving an explicit instruction:

Jangan dibuka pintu itu. Don't open the door.
Dingin! (Literally: Don't let the door be opened!) It's cold!

How the language works 2

1 Throughout the course you will have noticed that there are many expressions where a word is doubled, sometimes with a prefix added and sometimes with a vowel change in the second word. This is technically known as reduplication. So far, the only usage we have looked at gave you the information that the doubling of a noun is sometimes required to create a plural form (refer back to Unit 5).

Although there is no particular reason why reduplication occurs in certain expressions, such as kupu-kupu, butterfly, there are three broad categories of (added) meaning that reduplicated expressions fall into:

- Expressions of time

pagi-pagi	early in the morning malam-malam	late at night kadang-kadang	sometimes sebentar-sebentar	now and again sekali-sekali	once in a while
tiba-tiba	suddenly
kapan-kapan	one of these days
- doing something in a leisurely way or with no particular goal in mind duduk-duduk	to sit about (relaxing) jalan-jalan	to go out for a stroll, to 'hang around' lihat-lihat	to browse

omong-omong	to chat (this also means by the way in certain contexts)
- emphasis

keras-keras	loudly lekas-lekas	hurry up! tergesa-gesa	to be in a hurry terburu-buru	to be in a hurry bermacam-macam	different kinds of bersama-sama	together
cepat-cepat	very quickly satu-satu	one by one
dua-dua	two by two etc.

2 Prefix/suffix pe-an and per-an. In some cases pe-an (per-an) nouns that are created from verb bases correspond to what are known as verbal nouns in English. That is, they end in -ing but are not expressing a continuous tense:

baca	to read	pembacaan	reading jual	to sell	penjualan	selling
beli	to buy	pembelian	buying

Formed from a concrete noun, the pe-an (per-an) combination often creates a new noun that extends or augments the meaning of the original noun, which now becomes the base. Look at the following examples noting the meanings of the original noun and the corresponding modified nouns:

gunung	mountain	pegunungan	mountain range bukit	hill	perbukitan	hilly region
kota	city	perkotaan	urbanized area pustaka	book*	perpustakaan	library

pustaka* is an archaic word for book and perpustakaan is a collection of books, i.e. a library.

Some of the nouns created by pe- -an (per- -an) carry meanings that can be a little difficult to relate directly to the original base verb. When the meaning of both the base verb and the created noun are known, however, the link is easy to see, even if it sometimes requires a little lateral thinking as to how the meaning evolved. Examples:

menginap	to spend the night	penginapan	inn (somewhere) membangun	to build	pembangunan	construction terbit	to appear	penerbitan	publishing house

main	to play	permainan	game
------	----------------	-----------	-------------

Penginapan derives its meaning from a place to spend the night, i.e. an inn.

In Unit 8 we met a few verbs that have different meanings when the prefix me- is attached, one of which was bangun which, when the prefix is added, means to build. The meaning of pembangunan is the noun derived from the prefixed verb membangun.

If you think of penerbitan as a place which makes things appear, i.e. be published, then the link between the verb and the noun becomes clear.

Exercise 5 Using what you know about pe- -an (per- -an) type nouns from the information just given, see if you can work out the meaning of the nouns in the right-hand column created from the noun (a-d) and verb (e-i) bases in the left-hand column.

1 Herbal medicines; drinking water

Many Indonesians prefer to put their trust in what we in the west would call alternative medicine, rather than go and see a doctor. Indonesia's herbal medicine tradition goes back for centuries, and many recipes are made from herbs that you can find only in the archipelago. You can buy a herbal drink called jamu which is a mix of herbs and spices, either from a jamu shop or from a tukang jamu, a lady who makes varieties of the drink and wanders the street selling it from a basket she carries on her back or on the back of a bicycle.

Mark's mistake in the dialogue is one that all visitors should take heed of. The tap water in Indonesia is not safe to drink. Instead, you can buy bottled water known as air putih. This literally means white water and it refers to all water that you can drink safely.

a phone call

In this unit you will learn how to

- make a phone call
- talk about the weather
- understand some of the features of street Indonesian
- use a dictionary

3 Sound changes. You will have noticed that, when you encounter words with the me- or pe- prefixes, the base words these words are derived from sometimes look different from the base words themselves. This is because some base words undergo changes when they have the me- or pe- prefixes attached to them.

The rules are as follows:

- When me- or pe- are used as prefixes before c, d and j they become men- and pen- respectively:

cuci	→ mencuci	to wash jemput	→ menjemput	to pick up jual	→ penjual	seller
daki	→ pendaki	climber

- These prefixes also become men- and pen- before bases beginning with t but in this case, the t disappears:

terima	→ menerima	to receive tangis	→ menangis	to cry terjemah	→ penerjemahan	translating
tari	→ penari	dancer

- me- and pe- become mem- and pem- before b:

buang	→ membuang	to throw bungkus	→ membungkus	to wrap up bantu	→ pembantu	helper
berita	→ pemberitaan	announcement

- They also become mem- and pem- before p but the p disappears:

pinjam	→ meminjam	to borrow pijat	→ memijat	to massage pilih	→ pemilihan	election
pandu	→ pemandu	guide

- me- becomes meng- and pe- becomes peng- before g or h:

ganti	→ mengganti	to replace hidup	→ menghidupkan	to turn on (an appliance) ganggu	→ penggangguan	annoying
habis	→ penghabisan	conclusion

- meng- and peng- are also used before k which disappears:

kira	→ mengira	to guess
kirim	→ mengirim	to send kenal	→ pengenalan	identification
kemudi	→ pengemudi	driver

No problem.
How about the plans for this afternoon?
I think we'd better call it off because it's raining heavily.
How about tomorrow? I hope the weather will be fine.
OK, see you tomorrow.

How the language works 1

1 You can make local, national or even international calls from the warung tépon or telephone kiosks you will find in any city. Unlike coin phone booths that you might find elsewhere there is an attendant in the kiosks. Halo! is usually used for Hello! when picking up a ringing phone in Indonesia.

2 Talking about the weather. Bagaimana cuacanya?, How's the weather?

berawan	cloudy berkabut	foggy panas	hot
cerah	bright
banyak badai	stormy berangin	windy basah	wet mendung	overcast lembab	damp/humid
hujan	raining

You may also find these words useful:

banjir	flood
topan	typhoon

musim is used to refer to seasons in Indonesian:

musim semi	spring musim panas	summer musim gugur	autumn
musim dingin	winter

Indonesia, however, only really has two seasons, dry and hot or wet and hot!

musim panas	dry season musim hujan	rainy season

- me- and pe- become meng- and peng- before a vowel:

isi	→ mengisi	to fill in obrol	→ mengobrol	to chat urus	→ pengurus	manager alam	→ pengalaman	experience

- me- becomes meny- and pe- becomes peny- before bases beginning with s but note that the s disappears:

sombong	→ menyombongkan	to boast sebut	→ menyebut	to mention seberang	→ penyeberangan	crossing
sewa	→ penyéwaan	renting out

Exercise 1 How do you think these words will appear when the prefix in the left-hand column is added? (For some of the words a suffix has already been added to create a useful word, the meaning of which is given in the right-hand column. The root appears in bold.)

a me-	terjemahkan	= to translate b me-	usik	= to tease
c me-	sisir	= to comb
d me-	bantah	= to argue e pe-	bangunan	= construction f pe-	serang	= attacker
g pe-	segar	= stimulating
h pe-	imporan	= importation

4 Using a dictionary. A knowledge of sound changes is particularly useful because Indonesian dictionaries list words alphabetically according to their bases. This means that, when you come across an unknown word that you want to look up, you need to be able to identify the base of the word you are looking for. In other cases where there are several possibilities, you may need to look for the root under more than one letter. For example, looking at the sound change rules, you know that, if the word sought begins with meng- then the base word will be one that begins with a vowel, g-, h-, or k-. You might need to look under all of these before you find the corresponding base word.

You do not necessarily need to sit down and memorize the rules as explained earlier, although doing so would be of benefit. As you use a dictionary, you will need to refer to them so often that you will soon acquire a sense of how this happens naturally.

In keeping with the approach we have taken in this course, vocabulary is listed in alphabetical order just as it appears in the text to make it more user friendly for English speakers.

PART TWO

In this course we have opted to introduce you to Indonesian the way it is really spoken. In addition, you will no doubt encounter a highly informal spoken form of the language on the streets that might make you wonder what language you are actually hearing! While we have concentrated on standard spoken Indonesian throughout this course, this brief guide to informal speech will help to make you more streetwise, linguistically at any rate. Although you need not imitate such a spoken style, unless you want to, of course, you will find it vital to understanding the informal Indonesian that the locals use between themselves.

- Reza How are you? What are you doing here?
Weni Hey, you, Reza. Long time no see. I am just off for a walk. Where have you been?
Reza I'm just taking my western friend shopping. He wants to buy some souvenirs for his mother.
Weni Your boyfriend, right?
Reza No! He's just a friend. Hey, by the way, this is Mark. Mark, this is Weni.
Mark Pleased to meet you.
Weni Where are you from?
Mark England.
Weni By the way, my mum's throwing a party this Sunday. If you're free, come along, Mark, too.

Weni Hm, I've already moved to Kemang. Don't worry, I'll pick you up.
Reza OK then. Thanks, Weni.

How the language works 2

Street Indonesian takes the concept of being economical with words and sounds to the extreme. Unfortunately for foreign learners this makes Indonesian speech even faster than it already is! The following is by no means an exhaustive explanation of street Indonesian but it serves as an introduction.

1 A feature of the spoken language that is not just confined to slang, and that you have already come across in the course, concerns verbs beginning with the me- prefix. With some verbs this form becomes a ng as you can see when mengantar becomes nganter and mengomong becomes ngomong.

2 Certain standard Indonesian sounds are reduced in street Indonesian:

- au changes to o
kalau → kalo
- ai changes to é
sampai → sampé
- a sometimes changes to e
teman → temen

3 Some words have become shortened and/or run together:

- bagaimana → gimana terima kasih → makasih

4 Informal, street language (i.e. slang) makes use of various non-standard vocabulary words. Some common ones are:

- gué in place of saya (I)
- lu instead of kamu (you/your)
- nyokap instead of ibu (mother)
- nggak instead of tidak (no, not)

And a special word for a foreigner and, specifically a westerner, bulé!

5 You may also have noticed in the sample dialogue the usage of certain extra words in the sentences such as dong, kok, deh and ya. These are commonly added to utterances as tags which are mainly used to convey various shades of emphasis:

- dong is used to reinforce a statement:

Pasti dong, kita datang! Of course we're coming!

It can also be used with commands and requests:

- | | |
|---------------------|-------------------------|
| Tolong dong. | Please. |
| Diam dong! | Please be quiet! |

- kok is used to reinforce statements, too:

Dia cuma temen kok! No, he's just a friend!

Kok can also be used at the beginning of a sentence with the meaning of How come...?

Kok dia tidak tahu? How come he doesn't know?

- déh corresponds to then in such phrases as:

Iya déh.	OK, then.
Minum aja déh!	Well, drink it then!

- ya? is a question tag, like bukan? or kan? It is very common in Indonesian speech. It is used to confirm the content of the statement or question:

Pacar lu, ya?	Your boyfriend, right?
Sukar, ya?	It's difficult, isn't it? / It's difficult, right?

As you saw in Unit 16, it is often added to commands:

Jangan lupa, ya? Don't forget, OK?

Taking your Indonesian further

Recommended books

If you are considering buying a dictionary, there are a couple of points to look for if you want to choose one that is useful and effective. What you really need, especially in the development stages of learning, is a dictionary that not only gives you the equivalent word in the foreign language, but also gives you example phrases showing you how to use the various translations in context. A dictionary that does not include adequate examples of contextual usage will only really help you understand Indonesian, but may be unsuitable if you want to put your English into Indonesian!

Another point to look for is whether the dictionary has been designed for Indonesian learners or for foreign learners of Indonesian. If it is designed for Indonesians learning English, you may find that it is not as useful as it could be for your needs. We recommend:

Wendy Sahanaya and Albert Tan, The Oxford Study Indonesian Dictionary, Oxford University Press, 2001 (available through OUP Australia: www.oup.com.au)

This is an excellent starter dictionary and as up to date as you will find anywhere. It contains a wealth of indispensable examples of usage and is also fairly compact, which makes it easy to use if you are travelling.

If you are serious about studying the language to a high level and especially if you are working with advanced texts or you would like to study the finer points of the language, you will need a good reference grammar. An excellent choice is:

James Neil Sneddon, Indonesian, A Comprehensive Grammar, Routledge, 1996

Multimedia

DVDs can be a great source for language learning! With most DVDs you can change the soundtrack and subtitles to suit your preferences. If you get a DVD of an Indonesian film, you could turn on the subtitles so that you can study the utterances that you do not catch or understand. It does not matter if the DVD is not an Indonesian film, as long as you can opt for an Indonesian-dubbed soundtrack and subtitles in Indonesian and/or English. It would be a great idea to see if you can get your favourite films with an optional Indonesian soundtrack, so that you already know what is being said and so that you will be even more motivated to 'study'. You can learn a great deal by comparing the way in which something is expressed in Indonesian with how it is expressed in English. You also have the option of turning on the subtitles so that you can check the written form of the language being used.

Of course, videos are also useful, but they do not have the flexibility of DVDs. The beauty of the DVD is that you can listen to the film in Indonesian and have English subtitles to help you, listen to the English and read the Indonesian subtitles, or combine subtitles and soundtrack however you want.

Other suggestions

With the grounding that this course provides, you will find that any opportunity to use your Indonesian will help you to expand your knowledge of the language, so seeking out opportunities to speak the language should be a priority if you are intent on taking your knowledge to new heights.

Carry a small notebook with you in which you can record any new phrases or words that you find interesting or useful. Make a point of learning these phrases and putting them into practice as soon as possible, either in conversation or in writing. You could also note down the new vocabulary that you acquire from reading and keep the notebook with you to use during those times in the day you usually reserve for commuting etc.

An important principle that applies to any language you learn is 'use it or lose it'! If you do not keep on using the language by speaking, listening, reading or writing, then you will find that you start to lose active use of the language as your brain tends to put skills you are not using 'on the back burner'. If this does happen, you will still have a passive knowledge and your active command of Indonesian can be brought back with a few hours of dedicated study. However, it is much better to keep the learning going, once you start.

A dictionary can be a good source of vocabulary expansion. As you know, Indonesian words are built on roots. You could flick through the dictionary and select a root word that looks useful or common, then learn all the various meanings the prefixes and affixes provide to that root, and, if you use a dictionary with plenty of example phrases, such as the one recommended here, you should learn some of those too, as you are learning structures that use the new vocabulary in context. You could keep an alphabetical filing system of flash cards with the root at the top and vocabulary and usage examples below. You could add to these as your knowledge expands and refer to them regularly to test yourself on your retention and keep the language alive in your mind.

Get hold of a magazine in Indonesian on a subject that interests you such as cars, fashion or cooking... whatever happens to be your hobby. Go through the articles noting down and learning new words and phrases that you come across. Do not be concerned that the vocabulary may be specific to a certain subject area, because you will still be exposing your mind to the patterns of the language. This will reinforce structures already in place, as well as expanding your existing knowledge.
